Three Snipers Terrorize New Orleans: 7 Dead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Police in full guerrilla warfare gear stormed onto the roof of a downtown hotel today which had been occupied by two black snipers who had killed six persons and wounded 15 others during a night and day of bloody fighting.

There was no sign of the two men.

One sniper was slain early by police stationed in a helicopter gunship circling the roof of the hotel. After he fell, police continued to riddle his body with machine-gun fire for a further five minutes.

Two officers were wounded at the start of the rush. One was dragged away by fellow officers and the other hobbled off with a leg wound. Police said they did not know if the officers were wounded by fire from the snipers or from ricocheting police bullets.

The dramatic storming of the rooftop fortress was broadcast live on nationwide television.

Reaching the roof, the officers hacked away with an axe at the door of one of the bunkers and poured gunfire inside.

The body of one dead sniper — torn apart by police gunfire Sunday night — lay sprawled face up nearby.

Before the police rush, helicopters and police marksmen fired bullets, armor-piercing shells and tear gas at the two snipers atop the 18-floor Howard Johnson Hotel. Seven persons had been killed before police stormed the roof.

The battle began after three men, identified by police as blacks, stormed into the downtown Howard Johnson Hotel Sunday morning. They began setting fires to curtains in the hotel rooms, officers said, and then aimed a stream of bullets on firemen and police who appeared on the scene.

Louisiana's Attorney - General William Guste has called for a federal investigation to determine whether the killings were part of a national terrorist conspiracy.

"I am now convinced that there is an underground, national, suicidal group bent on creating terror in America," Guste said after asking the U.S. attorney-general for an investigation.

It was quiet from dawn until nearly noon today, but then sniper fire rang out again.

The gunshots came a few minutes after a helicopter, with police sharpshooters at the ready, hovered a few feet over the roof and blasted high-velocity tear gas at a stairwell.

Minutes later, police reported gunfire on a patrolman stationed at an intersection several blocks from the hotel.

Israeli, Syrian Tanks Battle

Times News Services

Israel and Syria fought aerial, artillery and tank battles along their border today.

The Israeli military command said in Tel Aviv that its pilots shot down five enemy MiG-21s and raided targets deep inside Syrian territory. An official communique said six Syrian tanks were also destroyed in the ground fighting.

In Cairo, a usually well-informed Egyptian official said President Anwar Sadat has instructed his war minister, Gen. Ahmed Ismail, to plan an Egyptian military response to Israeli air and artillery attacks against Syria.

The renewal of military action being contemplated at the highest level of the Egyptian government would be limited in nature, the source indicated. It could involve Egyptian air strikes at Israeli targets, he suggested.

Syria today urged other Arab countries to "immediately go into battle with Israel and not let Syria stand alone to take the enemy's heavy blows."

In a message that seemed aimed at Syria's federation partners, Libya and Egypt, the broadcast said: "Only the combined efforts of Arab countries can bring an end to Israeli arrogance."

Israel listed its own casualties as one soldier wounded and denied any of its planes or tanks were lost.

In Damascus, a Syrian military spokesman said that three Israeli planes were shot down in the fighting and raids and conceded the loss of three Syrian planes.

Interrupting its regular programs at 4:45 p.m. Damacus Radio quoted the spokesman as saying:

"The fighting between our forces and the Israelis is still going on with artillery and tanks, along the entire length of the front."

As the two sides blazed away at each other on the ground, the Israeli command said, Israeli planes raided an army camp near Latakia on the northern Syrian coast and bit a radar station on the outskirts of Damascus.

The strike, against a coastal headquarters base, was one of the northernmost since the 1967 Middle East war. The latter, five miles northwest of the Syrian capital, was the closest to Damascus since Oct. 30.

It was the fourth such battle since Israel began its hunter-killer strikes into Syria in retaliation for the massacre of its 11 Olympians in Munich Sept. 5.

Upset Bid By Tories

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield is expected to make his first attempt to topple the minority Liberal government as he speaks today in the eight-day debate on the speech from the throne.

Stanfield, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, New Democrat Leader David Lewis, and Social Credit Leader Real Caouette are all scheduled to speak today.

Stanfield, speaking first, will move a motion of non-confidence in the government, a move already doomed by the NDP decision of last week to support the government for the time being.

But, while the 107 Conservatives know they cannot defeat the 109-member Liberal government by themselves, they may hope to come up with a motion that will make the NDP squirm if it declines to support the motion.

ICY WEATHER DIPS AS DEEP AS TEXAS

The whole of Canada and much of the United States, as far south as Texas, is clamped in deep-freeze temperatures with no respite expected for at least 48 hours.

Shortages of natural gas, propane and heating oil in six midwestern states has forced closure of factories, schools, churches and civic buildings.

The Nixon administration today authorized increased imports of heating oil to help meet the emergency. The office of emergency preparedness has increased quotas from the Virgin Islands by 250 million gallons for the January-April period.

Hardest hit are Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Indiana, Colorado and Ohio.

Governor Arthur Link of North Dakota today met with legislative leaders and state officials to draft legislation which will order public facilities, including schools, to cut back on use of heating fuel.

Link said it may be necessary to close facilities on a priority basis.

Billions of bushels of crops may be spoiled in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio. The weather in these states turned from rain in October and November directly to snow and bitter cold in December.

Low temperature records were shattered across Canada on the weekend.

Several records toppled in British Columbia, even two in Victoria, which fared better than most parts of the country.

A 30-year-old record fell Saturday in Victoria when the temperature dipped to 15 degrees, beating out a 21 degree record for Jan. 6, set in 1942.

Sunday it was the same story. The temperature dropped to 15. The coldest temperature for Jan. 7 before Sunday was 26 degrees in 1964.

Oldest record to fall in B.C. Sunday was in Revelstoke, where a reading of 19 below zero broke by two degrees a record set 36 years ago.

Coldest spot in B.C. was Puntzi Mountain where the temperature crashed to 38 below.

Nanaimo reported a low of nine degrees, 16 degrees below the previous record. Vancouver bottomed out at 14 degrees, compared to a previous low of 17 in 1937.

At Prince George it was a chilly 27 below zero, beating

No Dock Talks Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for both sides in the British Columbia dock dispute said Sunday no new talks have been scheduled following a breaking off of negotiations Friday night.

However, spokesmen for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Unions and the B.C. Maritime Employers Association indicated there is no immediate danger of a shutdown of B.C. ports.

BCMEA President Ed Strang said his group will probably want to meet to discuss the situation, but said no arrangements have been made for further negotiations with the union. He said the employers are not considering any form of lockout action.

Mills Holding Back Supplies

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Lumber prices in B.C., which have risen between 30 per cent and 70 per cent in the past year, are expected to rise again this month, according to retailers.

A spokesman for the Vancouver Island Building Suppliers Association said his organization is planning a publicity drive to make the public aware of these increasing costs which, he said, are the results of price increases by mills.

He said retailers are reluctant to discuss the increases as individuals because of the great difficulty already being experienced in getting lumber at any prices from mills.

"We don't want to annoy our suppliers," he said. "At the present time we are unable to get any more lumber from them. We believe they are planning to increase prices again before supplying any lumber except for lines where they have a big surplus."

He gave these examples of price increases in the past year in Victoria.

The most popular construction item, he said, is 2 by 4 hemlock mill run studs. These have increased 45 per cent in the past 12 months.

Second most popular construction item is 1 by 8 mill run hemlock shiplap. This is up 77 per cent in the past year.

Third popular item for contractors is 2 by 4 fir number 1 and 2 grades for rafters. These are up 30 per cent.

Most popular retail item for homeowners is the six-foot special 2 by 4 or 1 by 3. These are up between 50 per cent and 70 per cent, depending on dimensions.

Plywood prices are expected to go up 12 per cent.

Over-all, there have been 13 occasions in the past 12 months when mills have instituted across-the-board price increases.

"There was no increase in December and because of past experience we are certain there will be a new price the previous record by 10 degrees.

Other record lows were established at Abbotsford, Port Hardy and Kamloops.

Ontario's coldest spot was Armstrong, 100 miles north of Lake Superior, where residents shivered in 41 below temperatures. It was 29 below in Muskoka and 30 below in the province's far north.

Three Alberta locations set new records — 29 below at Jasper, 30 below at Rocky Mountain House and 27 below at Banff.

Suppliers of oil fuel in Victoria said today that deliveries were normal but road conditions had posed some problems in getting around.

"We're just keeping our fingers crossed that we don't have more snow," one dealer said.

Another said there had been some problems Friday when a barge had been late in arriving from the mainland.

"But we have good supplies now," he added, "and don't anticipate any more trouble."

Doctors, too, have reported being extra busy, coping with residents stricken with a particularly virulent form of flu.

Panama Flats, off Carey Road in Saanich and other flooded areas became a winterland delight for hundreds Sunday, who donned skates and took advantage of the iced surfaces.

A weather office spokesman said today that although sunshine should bring the temperature up to the 30s today the thermometer should stay between 15 and 20 overnight.

There'll be more of the same for at least 48 hours.

"There is a large area of high pressure still around," he said, "and what storms there are coming in will hit well down the California coast."

Boy Injured In Car Mishap

Nine-year-old Duncan Bamforth, 73 Sylvan Lane, was treated Saturday for hip and leg injuries at Royal Jubilee Hospital after being struck by a car in the 1600 block Edgeware.

Police identified the driver of the car as Robert Pearce of 2551 Blackwood.

The mishap was among a rash of weekend auto accidents that did a total of $2,000 in damage.

PRINT-OUT TAPE of a patient's heart action is examined by Royal Jubilee Hospital nurse Pam Watson using electrocardiogram telementry equipment. The only Canadian installation of its kind, equipment is link with mobile unit used by Saanich fire department paramedics, who are now certified to administer drugs to emergency heart cases. (Irving Strickland photo.)

Firemen Set To Handle Heart Attacks

Training is completed for seven Saanich firemen in the administration of drugs for heart attack victims and the new emergency service will be available before the end of January.

Mayor Hugh Curtis made the announcement in advance of his annual address to council which takes place tonight.

He called the certification of paramedic ambulance attendants "further refinement of an already superlative service," the only heart-monitoring ambulance service in the country.

Saanich ambulance, operated by the fire department, was fitted with two-way radio-telementry equipment in 1969 to put paramedics in communication with Royal Jubilee Hospital intensive care ward as heart victims are sped toward medical treatment. Telemetry enables the hospital to monitor heart action.

A defibrillator also is part of the equipment carried, which may be used to restore heartbeats of persons who have suffered cardiac arrest, or restore rhythmic action.

Cutris said the firemen were trained under direction of Dr. George M. Woodwark to inject intramuscular drugs for patients suspected of having mild myocardial infraction and arrythmias. The drugs are used to regulate heartbeats.

Their certificates rate paramedic firemen as having "sound competence" in the duties for which they were trained by Dr. Woodwark.

Curtis said these men are protected by municipal indemnity in the event of civil suit arising from emergency action.

Gunship Rains Lead

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Time after time throughout the night, the big helicopter hovered over the roof of the hotel, acting as a gunship for police sharpshooters doing battle with snipers holed up on the roof.

Over and over, Lt.-Col. C. H. Pitman turned on the chopper's powerful landing lights, illuminating the roof of the 18-storey Downtown Howard Johnson Hotel, and the police gunners aboard let the lead fly.

It was bad weather for it. Misting rain. Poor visibility. The sky came down to the 30th floor, and tops of taller buildings near the hotel disappeared into the cloud ceiling.

The marine crew of four didn't get into the shooting, restricting their role to providing police with a gun platform.

Thousands of bullets were fired at the target, a one-room concrete structure above the hotel's emergency stairwell at one end of the rectangular roof. It was like a fortress bunker.

Until the marine chopper was pressed into emergency service as a makeshift gunship, the snipers were in a nearly-impregnable position.

But three police gunners aboard the chopper concentrated their fire and finally ripped a hole in the windowless wall of the bunker.

Then, on every pass, they aimed their automatic rifles into the hole so that bullets ricocheted inside.

On each pass, the helicopter hovered about two minutes while they emptied clip after clip of 5.56-millimetre bullets — small but of high velocity — mixed with bright red streaks of tracers.

"I just don't see how they can survive those ricochets," said Frank Burns, one of the gunners.

They did it, it developed, by ducking part-way down the stairs when the chopper passed.

At one point Sunday, one of the snipers darted out of the stairway opening in the bunker to get a better shot at the helicopter. The gunners zeroed in on him. He tried to run, zig-zagging across the roof, but was cut down by a fusillade of bullets.

"He darted out and aimed that big rifle, and the guys in the chopper ripped him up," said John E. Fields, a police sharpshooter who was watching with binoculars from atop the nearby City Hall.

Each time the helicopter landed in a parking lot, two crew members went over every inch of it with flashlights. After 20 passes they had found several bullet holes but no serious damage.

list any day now," the spokesman said.

"Some people become alarmed about price increases of 2 per cent or 5 per cent per year. These are price increases of from 5 per cent to 10 per cent each month. We think the public should be aware of what is going on. We are alarmed and we think they should be too."

He said retailers are selling lumber to contractors and then discovering that the wholesale price has risen above the amount of the retail price.

"The profit margin is very slim as it is and sometimes it is gone completely because of these increases in price."

He said the retailers could do nothing about the increases except prepare the public for more.

Wayne Farmer, president of the British Columbia Construction Association, said the increasing prices were putting great pressures on contractors.

Farmer, general manager of Farmer Construction, said the escalating costs were adding to the already high bankruptcy rate among contracting firms.

"Some jobs are being completed at a loss and contractors are very often left holding the bag," he said.

The small contractor is particularly vulnerable because he must buy lumber on a day basis. Some large contractors are able to negotiate a price that stays firm for 30 days, Farmer said.

He said the only defence for contractors was to inflate bidding prices and hope for the best.

In some cases bids that were thought to be inflated were overtaken by price increases.

SYDNEY HIT BY RECORD RAINFALL

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Sydney was swamped today with 6½ inches of rain in the wettest night anyone can remember.

The deluge started at midnight Sunday night and eased at 7 a.m. Parts of some streets collapsed under the flooding waters. Hundreds of cars stalled and there was a giant traffic tangle this morning.

SNIPERS TERRORIZE CITY

Authorities determined that the new shots were coming from a nearby building, and a police tank-like armored car was sent to the scene.

The helicopter drew no fire on three early-morning passes over the hotel, including the third pass for the tear gas.

As hundreds of spectators rushed to the scene Sunday, streets around the hotel were blockaded as police moved cautiously in an attempt to prevent further slaughter. The hotel is across the street from the city hall and about six blocks from the famed French quarter.

Police contemplated an assault today but later appeared content to play a waiting game and wear down the gunmen with sharpshooting.

"Time is our ally," said Police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso. "They're at our will now. We're going to win."

Motive for the bloodbath remained a puzzle though some reports identified the gunmen as black militants. One hotel employee, a black, was quoted as saying the snipers were firing only at whites.

Some city officials suggested the gunmen were maintaining a pattern of violence against city police that began Dec. 1 when a police cadet was killed near his headquarters. Since then, several other officers have been wounded.

At one point early today, one of the surviving snipers was reported to have crawled to the other end of the hotel roof. Police sharpshooters in surrounding buildings opened fire, but Giarrusso ordered all firing stopped except by marksmen 600 yards away in the federal building.

FIRED ON COMRADES

His order came after police on the 17th floor of the hotel said they were coming under fire, apparently by their own men.

The toll of dead included the three policemen, two hotel guests believed to have died in the fires set by the snipers, a front-desk clerk mowed down when the gunmen burst into the hotel and an unidentified man found in the hotel.

As the drama continued, most of the city's business district was paralysed, with streets blockaded around the hotel. Officials allowed no one through.

Two separate fires in which arson is suspected and which authorities say may be linked with the shootings destroyed two downtown warehouses Jan. 1.

MURDER TRIAL OPENS

The B.C. Supreme Court trial of Ernest Laverne Hotvedt, 28, charged with the murder of his 28-year-old wife, Linda, opened today before Mr. Justice Douglas E. Andrews.

Hotvedt was arrested Nov. 5 after the woman was found in her home at 1255 Balmoral with several stab wounds.

Prosecutor Allan Bigelow said the trial is expected to finish in the latter part of this week and the entire week has been reserved.

Defence counsel is Dermod Owen-Flood.

Fire Guts House

Fire this morning gutted the living room, kitchen, attic and roof of a house at 1205 Johnson, causing an estimated $7,500 in damage.

A fire department spokesman said the fire could have been caused by a faulty furnace.

The fire at the single-storey frame house was brought under control within 30 minutes.

In the house at the time were a Mr. Reid, thought to be about 60; Emma Williams, 46; Evelyn Holland, her infant son, and two other children, Francis, five, and Michael, three.

Department of national defence officials today began investigating the cause of a fire which broke out in one of the married quarters at Patricia Bay Sunday about 6 p.m.

There were five children in the house at the time, the eldest being the 15-year-old daughter of the occupants, Sgt. and Mrs. John Adams, who were visiting next door at the time.

The fire was fought by the base's fire department and volunteer firemen from Sidney.

A spokesman said the contents of the kitchen and dining room were lost and there was severe smoke damage in the rest of the house.

MIGHTY SNEEZE AND SHE HEARS!

COVENTRY, England (AP) — Jean Haynes gave a mighty sneeze and ended a lifetime of near silence. It cured the deafness she had had since birth, and which doctors had said was incurable.

The sneeze exploded Saturday as she worked at her bench in an auto factory in this Midlands city. Suddenly, Jean, 22, could hear so well she had to tear off her sensitive hearing aid.

She wept for joy and bounded around the plant hugging friends.

The cure started when she proved allergic to the plastic foam used in the upholstery department where she worked. She couldn't stop sneezing, and once kept going for about six hours.

She was moved to another department, but she still had one good sneeze left. Doctors believe the sneeze unlocked a tube connecting her middle ear and nose, in which the cause of her deafness apparently had lain.

Hanoi, U.S. Resume Talks; In 'Icy' Atmosphere

PARIS (AP) — U.S. envoy Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho resumed their Vietnam peace talks in an apparently icy atmosphere today, conferring for 4½ hours in a suburban villa owned by the French Communist party.

It was the first meeting of the two top negotiators since the talks were suspended Dec. 13 and followed by massive American bombing raids on North Vietnam.

Resumption of the peace talks was believed to have been part of a backstage deal under which President Nixon called a halt to the raids of the North Vietnamese industrial heartland north of the 20th parallel on Dec. 30. North Vietnamese public statements since then have given no hint of a softening in Hanoi's position.

Tho, as host of today's meeting, seemed to go out of his way to demonstrate Hanoi's anger over the bombing of the Hanoi-Haiphong area. For the first time since the secret talks began, Kissinger and his aides were given no handshake when they arrived and left the meeting.

On their arrival, the Americans were left standing for almost a minute at the front door of the villa in suburban Gif sur Yvette. Kissinger finally pushed open the door and went inside.

The American negotiators emerged grim-faced after the meeting, again with no North Vietnamese official on hand to bid them farewell as in the past.

During previous meetings, Tho and Kissinger were frequently seen shaking hands and smiling together.

There was no information from either delegation on what was discussed at the meeting, or when the two sides would meet again.

Meanwhile, in Vietnam, a U.S. flight leader mistakenly guided five U.S. fighter-bombers into an accidental attack on the Da Nang air base today.

Ten Americans and one Vietnamese were reported wounded by shrapnel or injured while running for cover. No deaths were reported. The western part of the base where the bombs hit is thinly populated.

The South Vietnamese command reported that Viet Cong mortars killed nine civilians and wounded 49 in a daylight attack today on the provincial capital of Vi Thanh, 110 miles southwest of Saigon.

North Vietnmese and Viet Cong attacks in South Vietnam dropped to 77 for the 24 hours ending at dawn today, from an average of 100 a day during the last five days the Saigon command said. Six of the attacks were carried out by rockets and mortars and headquarters said, involved no infantry assaults.

It has been more than 10 weeks since Kissinger told a Washington news conference that "peace is at hand." Arriving from Washington Sunday night in a more subdued mood, he said: "The president has sent me back to Paris to make one more major effort to conclude the negotiations.

"We expect that the talks this time will be serious and worthy of the yearning of people all over the world for an early end of the war," Kissinger said.

But Tho on his arrival Saturday from Hanoi, Peking and Moscow gave no indication he was ready to concede anything. He said the decisive moment had come for the United States to sign the draft agreement he and Kissinger worked out in October "or continue the war."

In Cambridge, Mass., a group of about 200 Asian affairs experts met at Harvard to condemn the blanket bombing of North Vietnam and recommend Congress withhold all further funds from the war.

Labeling the air attacks a "savage and irresponsible use of American power," the scholars said the U.S. public didn't realize what is involved in terror bombing, since they were among the few peoples in the world never to have been bombed.

"We are stigmatized as being on a par with the beasts of the past, the Nazi in particular," one Harvard scholar said.

1,056 Names On Telegram Sent PM

A telegram with 1,056 names, ranging from housewives to Supreme Court judges, protesting the American bombing of North Vietnam was sent Saturday from Victoria to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Mrs. Rhoda Kaellis said today that letters are still coming in and these will be forwarded to Ottawa.

They are being collected at Telegram, Box 21, Victoria.

Mrs. Kaellis said public opinion across Canada probably had some effect on the federal government's motion of censure.

Payment Crisis Facing U.K.

LONDON (AP) — Britain faces a staggering $2.35-billion balance-of-payments deficit and a tight credit squeeze this year unless exports are increased rapidly, economists warned today.

They predicted there is trouble ahead even if the government, already plagued by inflation, labor unrest and ailing industry, takes "drastic action" to avoid the crisis.

The grim analysis came in the London and Cambridge Economic Bulletin, prepared by the Cambridge University department of applied economics.

The report said the government's campaign to get the economy back into shape has "got off to an extraordinarily bad start."

It said that the balance of payments for the second half of last year showed a %300-of last year showed a $705-million deficit and showed no sign of improving.

IMPORTS ARE UP

The economists also noted with alarm there was a spectacular six-per-cent increase in consumption last year and an "astonishing increase" of 10 per cent in imports at a time when output crawled up by a skimpy three per cent.

Stressing that productivity and exports have virtually stagnated, the Bulletin said exports will have to be increased by a 10 per cent annually the next five years if Britain hopes to match the expected nine-per-cent annual rise in imports.

Yet, the economists concluded, exports are only expected to increase by five per cent this year.

If, as expected, imports went up by 10 per cent this year, "there would be a current account deficit of about $2.35 billion this year," they calculated.

WHO IS MOVING?

Support Pledged Says Lol

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times reports that Cambodian President Lon Nol says the Nixon administration has promised his embattled government "firm support" against North Vietnamese "aggression."

The Cambodian leader also said in written responses to questions submitted by the paper that he felt U.S. bombs have so weakened North Vietnam that it will be forced to negotiate a "just" peace settlement and withdraw from Cambodian territory.

Lon Nol also rejected peace negotiations with deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Cambodian exile leader living in Peking.

"I remind you Sihanouk was overthrown by all the Khmer people," Lon Nol said in a rare news conference. "All Khmer people now suffer from his acts an crimes against them. In my opinion it will not be possible to negotiate with the prince."

Khmers are Cambodians.

Ratepayers Demand Vote On Maple Bay Housing

NORTH COWICHAN — Plans by a Vancouver firm to construct between 1,200 to 1,500 housing units within the next 10 years on Maple Bay Road have been met with strong opposition by a group of ratepayers.

The group, headed by Deane Russell, of Maple Bay, said they will ask North Cowichan council to hold a "full scale referendum" before any development takes place.

Council approved in principle in early December a land use contract to Kingsview Properties in order that the 505 acres on Mount Tzouhalem could be developed under stringent controls.

Russell said his group opposes the proposed "satellite city" mainly because it would "kill our natural life style."

He fears that a possible high assessment would eventually drive residents along Maple Bay Road off their land.

Residents are also concerned about the heavier traffic that would result in the area from the increased population of about 5,000 people. North Cowichan now has a population of about 10,000 while nearby Duncan has about 4,390 residents.

Russell feels that, although there are only 100 ratepayers living along Maple Bay Road, about 548 North Cowichan-Southend residents would be directly or indirectly affected by the five phase proposal.

Council members, who said they can't understand ratepayers opposition, said they will meet ratepayers to discuss the development.

Ald. Margaret Robertson, who lives near the proposed development, said she is really surprised at the sudden protests against the project.

"The development did not come over night," she said. "It seems to be very difficult to communicate and it is astounding that so few people were aware of the zoning hearing. It would be an exclusive development."

Mrs. Robertson, who has lived in the valley for 25 years, said she would love to see it remain as it was 20 years ago but "have we the right to stop people coming here? I think the proposed development is better than piecemeal development."

Mayor Gerry Smith said he is in favor of the proposed development because he feels it will utilize land that is not favorable for farming.

He pointed out that the development would cost North Cowichan nothing.

"The developers will have to pay all the costs for roads, underground wiring and a sewer line to the sewage lagoon. The firm has put in a large subdivision in the Richmond area and the council there has highly recommended them. The firm is financially good."

SOOKE WOMAN WINS $5,000

Mrs. Mary Trill has been saving a long time for new rugs and drapes to put in her mobile home — now she won't have to save another cent.

The first winner of the B.C. school sports lottery, Mrs. Trill of 1958 Caldwell, in Sooke, plans to spend most of the $5,000 on new home furnishings.

But first she has promised 16-year-old Anne Phillips, who sold her the ticket, $100 of her winnings.

Mrs. Trill's name was drawn Saturday by Neal Henderson, president of the B.C. Federation of School Athletic Associations.

It's the first lottery held under the scheme and has grossed about $75,000 for use in secondary schools' athletic programs.

Under the cost-sharing formula, half the earnings will be returned directly to the 115 participating secondary schools while the other half will be administered by a trust board composed of education authorities.

"I thought somebody was playing a little game with me when they phoned me Saturday," Mrs. Trill said.

"I often buy lottery tickets but I've never won anything before.

"I bought two $1 tickets from Anne," she said. "I usually buy things like that from the school because my children went there."

Mrs. Trill said she will receive the $5,000 cheque Tuesday at a special assembly at Edward Milne Secondary School.

Action and Reactions

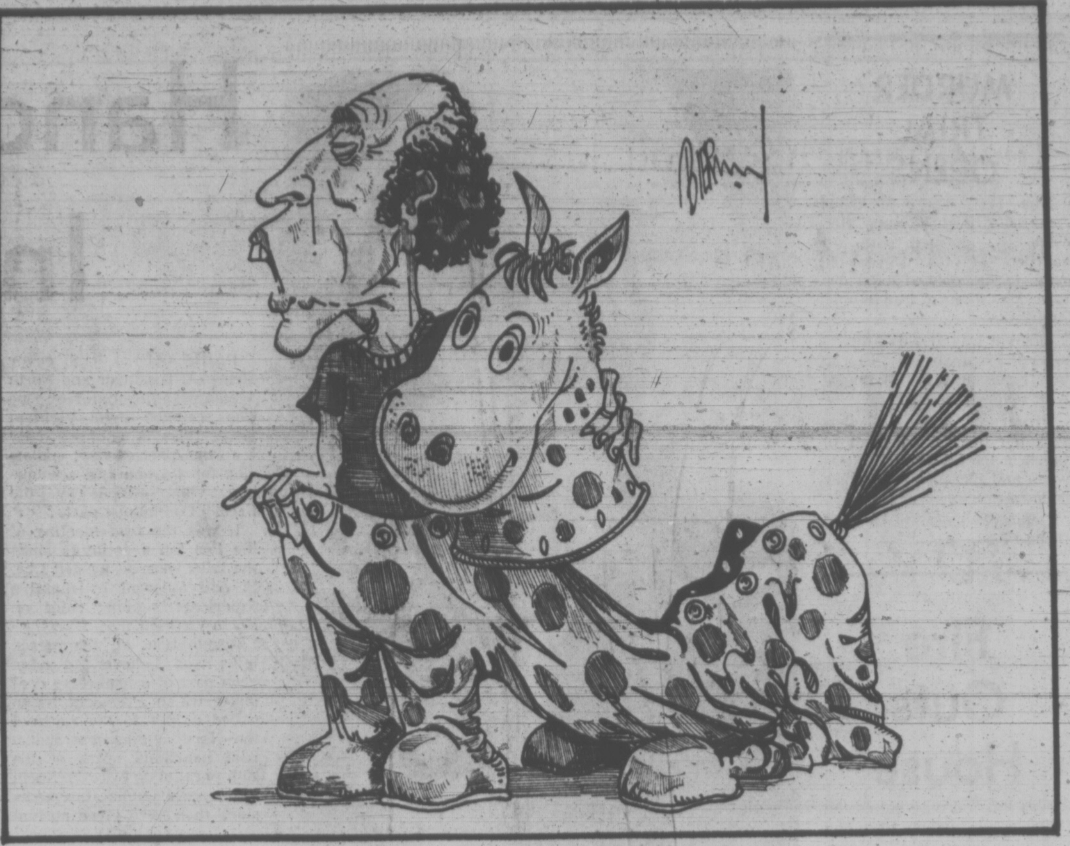
The chairman of the Employers' Council of B.C., Mr. William Hamilton, has voiced concern that the so-far unknown potential of the province's NDP government may result in a deterrent to the establishment of new business enterprises, or to the continuation of old ones, here. He is not only worried about what the government may do; he is particularly apprehensive about how it will pay for its activities — that is, how heavy the tax load is going to be. New business ventures may take a chance on the effects of some government policies, but they are not likely to embark on projects that are going to face an extra burden of taxes to finance socialist programs.

Such an attitude may be held quite regardless of the merit or otherwise of the programs in question. If a corporation, competing with other firms elsewhere in Canada or abroad, is subject to taxes which they do not carry, then it will be at a disadvantage — perhaps a fatal one. Certainly such a situation will not invite prospective newcomers.

As Mr. Hamilton puts it: "While the government will be viewing (taxation policy) from the standpoints of idealism and 'anti-corporate bumishness', business will be arguing from the hard school of experience and the bottom line on the balance sheet."

Back of Mr. Hamilton's thinking there may be, apart from a recognition of NDP socialist idealism and good intentions, a recollection of the government's resort to tough, unyielding authority when it feels that God is on its side. This was demonstrated in the recent action to force amalgamation on areas adjacent to Kamloops and Kelowna. The same type of tactics — legal, but authoritarian in this democratic age — could be used against private business as well.

Premier Barrett will do well to recognize the economic effects as well as the social effects of his legislation. His apparent surprise that the market for B.C. Tel shares should decline following his announced intention to take over the company betrayed a lack of appreciation — whether real or simulated — that interfering with A can create effects not only on B but also on C and D. If C and D are business firms that decide to pull out of the province in order to avoid local problems, for instance, the source of taxable funds for social improvements could become diminished. So could public patience.



"... C'mon Dave ... time to govern ..."

Saanich Feels the Squeeze

A projection of municipal taxes in Saanich based on increases during recent years emphasizes the grounds for concern by many home-owners in this community. They fear that escalating costs will eventually drive them from their homes.

Causes of the rise in costs are obvious. Severe inflation is being felt. Residents are receiving improved services — sewerage, police and fire protection among them — and assessments tied to property values automatically increase as the demand for desirable locations and housing grows stronger.

In most cases, enhanced resale value provides the owner with a compensating asset — but only if he wants to sell. If it is his desire to retain his house as his home, to raise his family there and not to convert his real estate into cash, he is subjected to an ever-growing burden of municipal taxation.

This is a point that has been underlined frequently by Saanich's Mayor Hugh Curtis, now also MLA for the district.

He and other municipal leaders in Greater Victoria have repeatedly urged the provincial government to show greater concern for home-owners. Requests to have educational costs transferred wholly to the province are part of the continuing theme. Municipal costs, of course, will still have to be paid and home-owners are among the taxpayers who will pay them and receive most of the benefits. But if the basis of taxation were broadened the family home might be better protected.

Saanich provides a good example of current trends. Residents there wanted better amenities — more recreational facilities among them — and got them at a price. The price has pushed their taxes up and will continue to do so as more facilities are provided.

What has happened in Saanich during the transformation from a rural to an increasingly urbanized area may also be expected in low-tax, relatively undeveloped regions outside the Greater Victoria limits. As they absorb a denser population, essential public services and other facilities will be demanded. And that spells higher taxes.

A Permanent Speaker?

The election of Lucien Lamoureux as Mr. Speaker was little more than formal ritual as the House of Commons opened. The tributes extended to him by leaders of all parties reflected the genuine esteem in which he is held, specifically as the result of his previous service in that office.

Once the pre-election rumor that he might not seek re-election had been dispelled, it was generally accepted that, running as an Independent, he would be returned by his constituency and in the natural sequence of events he would again preside.

No doubt the capabilities of Mr. Lamoureux, his personality and his character have stamped him as a most fitting person, in the opinion of all parties, to occupy the Speaker's chair. Despite earlier party affiliations, he enjoys general trust and confidence.

But while the result in the present instance — as in others before it — placed the right man in the right position, why leave the office to the vagaries of elections? With a permanent Speaker, parties could agree beforehand on a suitable person for the post, relieve him of electoral anxieties and assure the chair of a generally acceptable occupant.

WILLIAM R. FRYE

Hard Bargaining at Paris

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Henry Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho were back at the bargaining table today for what may well be, at last, the authentic climax of Vietnam peace efforts.

Success of these efforts depends essentially on two things:

1. Preservation of American bargaining power — which is to say, President Nixon's freedom to give or withhold the things Hanoi wants.

2. Leverage on Saigon sufficient to block effective sabotage from that quarter.

Virtually all other major elements in the equation are intact. Moscow and Peking have, it is understood, helped maintain the balance of political power in Hanoi which, last October, produced a decision to settle the conflict.

The climate of opinion in the United States, and notably in Congress, is such as to tolerate, and perhaps even to welcome, a less-than-satisfactory peace — which is the only kind that is likely to be negotiated. No effective counter-pressures from the side of the hawks are visible.

Earlier Impression

And sentiment abroad, among America's allies, is as strongly for compromise as it ever could be.

So if the minimum essential conditions can be extracted from Hanoi, and if Saigon can be prevented from vetoing the scheme, there can be peace.

What constitutes an essential minimum from Hanoi depends on what is meant by "peace." If what is envisaged is a temporary interlude in the fighting, during which American forces would disengage — that is, a separate peace for the United States — then the only really indispensable condition is that the American PoWs be freed as part of the package. Nothing else is difficult.

If, on the other hand, the objective is a permanent end to the war, with future competition to consist of political infighting and subversion, then much remains to be settled, all of it having to do with the conditions in which future political warfare would be waged.

It seemed, last October, that Hanoi finally was willing to accept a separate peace with Washington, a truce to permit disengagement. Much of the confusion which has followed has derived from doubt that that was, and is, in fact the case — and if so, whether Washington, faced with Saigon's all-out objections, is prepared to go ahead and accept the deal.

The basic American offer of disengagement was made last May 8 by President Nixon when he announced the blockade. He said the United States would "stop all acts of force throughout Indochina" and withdraw in four months if the PoWs were freed and an "internationally supervised cease-fire throughout Indochina" were established.

The terms of the October accord seemed to include these points. Then North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, in a magazine interview, drew back from what Kissinger had thought was a promise to free the prisoners.

PHAM VAN DONG
. . . simultaneous release

"All military and civilian detainees, not only Americans, on both sides must be released at the same time," Pham Van Dong said. And the civilian detainees included scores of thousands of Viet Cong cadre in Saigon's jails, which President Thieu was not about to free if the war was soon to resume.

Whether the point subsequently was clarified in private negotiations has never been disclosed. But indications are that Le Duc Tho has been taking the Pham Van Dong line, and that at best, the point remains obscure.

We do know that a second important element of Nixon's May 8 offer, apparently agreed to in October, has been obscured or withdrawn. That is the provision for an "internationally supervised cease-fire throughout Indochina."

The size and effectiveness of the supervisory team, apparently settled upon in October, has been so seriously cast into doubt as to leave in question Hanoi's agreement even to a temporary cease-fire, let alone a permanent one.

The net effect is to indicate that Hanoi may no longer be willing to cooperate in an American disengagement. The North Vietnamese no longer seem prepared to make a separate peace.

Sentiment Abroad

At least, this was the impression last month when the talks broke down. Since then, there have been 12 days of massive bombing north of the 20th parallel, which Hanoi may have thought President Nixon would not dare undertake. And Hanoi has agreed to resume the peace talks.

Relief from the bombing and from the blockade is what Hanoi stands primarily to gain from American disengagement. It is, or should be, quite sufficient recompense for freeing the PoWs and tightening the supervision of the cease-fire.

If, however, Hanoi can get relief — indeed, if it can get total American disengagement — for nothing, it will not pay a price. If Congress cuts off funds for the war or removes the threat that Hanoi may be punished from the air, there will be little motive to free the prisoners.

They could then be withheld for use in a bigger bargain, one in which the United States would have to help Hanoi win political control of Saigon. That was, prior to October, what North Vietnam had sought to accomplish.

It is a good time for Congress to keep its hands off the negotiating process — or, if it feels compelled to intervene, to do so by pressuring Thieu. A threat that his umbilical cord would be severed if he balks at American disengagement could be a constructive contribution.

Politics being what it is, however, it seems more likely that Congress will pull the rug from under the wrong president.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

A Gathering of Dark Clouds

WASHINGTON — The latest trouble now sprouting on the undefended border of North America has long roots.

As early as 1962 the Cuban missile crisis complicated, if it did not cool, the historically warm relations between Canada and the United States. When the Conservative Canadian government delayed the mobilization of its military forces to meet a threat of nuclear war, the American government of President Kennedy asked itself whether Canada was still the reliable old friend and ally that it has always seemed to be.

Was a different sort of nation emerging north of the border? Though the question was never voiced in public, it remained, and undoubtedly was distorted, in the private official mind of Washington.

After the Cuban episode a sequence of arguments, or accidents, aggravated what was supposed to be the world's closest international friendship. Prime Minister Diefenbaker's open quarrel with President Kennedy was followed by Prime Minister Pearson's criticism of President Johnson's policy in Vietnam, and then by Prime Minister Trudeau's withdrawal of Canadian NATO troops from Europe and his cranky personal attack on John Connally.

Frictions

For 10 years the frictions of the border, between governments not peoples, have constantly increased. Today, as the Canadian visitor in Washington can see, they are pushing the neighbors toward a crunch unforeseen and still misunderstood by both. And Canada, its own political affairs in disarray, was never less prepared for this hard bargaining.

Here, for the moment, I am not concerned with the wisdom of either nation, their joint mistakes in the past, the rights and wrongs of the present case. The grave dispute already under way between governments that do not understand each other is too complex, and usually too confused in the public dialogue, for quick judgment. It also involves so many elements, practical and emotional, that no brief newspaper column can begin to cover them.

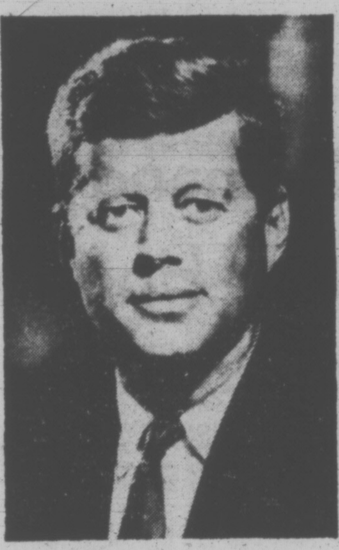
But the point of departure in the continental debate so clearly ahead of us can be summarized in a series of assumptions once accepted on both sides and now in serious doubt.

The first assumption, of course, still holds good — that Canada and the United States are and always will be friends, their daily business, their prosperity, their security and their lifeways inevitably locked together.

The second assumption collapsed some two decades ago, as Mr. Pearson noted at the time — that the neighbors' relations would always remain easy and automatic as in earlier days. Or, as Mr. Trudeau put it later on, the Canadian mouse may have to live beside the American elephant but intends to live in its own fashion, whether the elephant agrees or not.

A third assumption, innocently accepted on both sides after the Second World War, seemed to be indisputable then but is no longer — that a world devastated by the war would recover through unlimited, nondiscriminatory multilateral trade, with prosperity ensured for all nations willing to embrace the grand design.

No one foresaw then the rise of a giant trade bloc in Europe, the economic miracle of Japan or, most surprising of all, the sudden demand of the self-contained Communist bloc for goods, even food, from the West.



JOHN F. KENNEDY
. . . open quarrel

The post-war ideal of free trade, benefitting everyone, is threatened by all these separate blocs unless they change their direction. Still worse for Canada and the United States, the world's two largest bilateral traders in their own bloc, they may not fit naturally into any of the other blocs. Or, more accurately, the other blocs, in particular the huge European Common Market, seem determined to discriminate against them (though a rich Europe demands American military defence almost as a matter of right).

Hence the obvious danger confronting both the North American nations is an increasing exclusion from a world market hedged and bedevilled by trade barriers, visible and invisible. Hence, too, the vital economic question that must be answered in the next two or three years at latest is whether the world, ignoring the bitter lessons of the past, will repeat the protectionist follies of the 1930s and the great depression that followed them. The approaching round of GATT tariff negotiations, and the parallel attempt to build a new international monetary system, will begin to answer that worldwide question.

Within it, Canada must face other questions peculiar to itself.

Lacking a mass domestic market at home, overwhelmingly dependent on the single American market, and afflicted by unemployment even at a time of boom, how is Canada to maintain its prosperity and economic autonomy if the American market is diminished by the extra protectionist barriers already proposed in a frightened Congress?

How, as it increasingly nourishes its manufacturing industries by various protectionist devices of its own, can it avoid retaliation from the United States? How, in short, does a mouse come to terms with an elephant which, rightly or wrongly, believes that it is receiving unfair treatment in the continental bargain?

Resource Depletion

As if this were not enough to daunt any Canadian government, even a majority government capable of governing effectively, a new and larger element has lately been added to the mix. For the first time in its affluent history, the United States now realizes that its raw resources, above all the resources of energy, are gravely depleted, that it must look abroad for additional supplies. And it looks, naturally, to the convenient source beside it, the northern treasure chest of Canada.

In practical terms, therefore, the Canadian government, when it is again able to govern effectively, must decide what resources, like precious fossil fuels, it can afford to sell while keeping plenty for its own future needs. It must recognize that while it possesses strong leverage at the bargaining table the United States does also, and certainly intends to use it because, in Washington's view, the existing bargain is unfair.

Another report will try to analyze the dispute of facts which is almost unimaginably misconstrued on both sides, apart from the emotional overtones. Meanwhile a final assumption long accepted should be noted and rejected — that the world owes the United States and Canada a permanent living standard far higher than its own under the just laws of Providence. Nothing could be more false and dangerous among all the accepted assumptions. Yet it continues to bewitch the continental neighbors in what could become later on a fool's economic paradise.

Breadth

As readers of the Times we would like to express appreciation for the breadth of viewpoint extended in your editorial columns, the articles culled from outside publications, and the generous allotment of space to those of us who write letters from time to time.

Regarding that last point we would like to extend a particular word of appreciation to M.P.B. Wrixon whose letters cover every aspect of the Vietnam tragedy, and put us all to shame for having shared "the crime of silence".

We must also mention the excellence of your cartoonist, Bob Bierman—one of the best.—C. B. Williams, 729 Haliburton Road, E. L. Bailey, 728 Haliburton Road.

Callous Treatment

"Blow, blow thou winter wind, thou art not so unkind as man's ingratitude."

If Shakespeare were alive today he would likely attach the above to the present situation of those of our elderly citizens still here; those pioneers who opened up the country and put Canada on the map. The present ingratitude to those early gracious people, many of whom now surviving are suffering want and deprivation in this age of plenty, should be put straight.

All this can be compared to the callous treatment of many of this country's war veterans. The government system of cheeseparing now going on should be challenged by every citizen who claims to have a conscience, to see to it that the solemn oath of service to King and country, given by those engaged in conflict, should for ever be recognized. Mr. Trudeau's pampered young denizens of today should realize that but for these worthy warriors they might have been born under the heel of Mr. Hitler or go to their graves under the bombs of Mr. Nixon.

Therefore, the hardship of old age in our surviving senior citizens should be generously regarded by adequate relief and reward. Most veterans' organizations are running in the red and old age pensions are ravaged by inflation, while all are feeling the blast of a withering winter wind. — Clarence Goode, 1840 St. Ann.

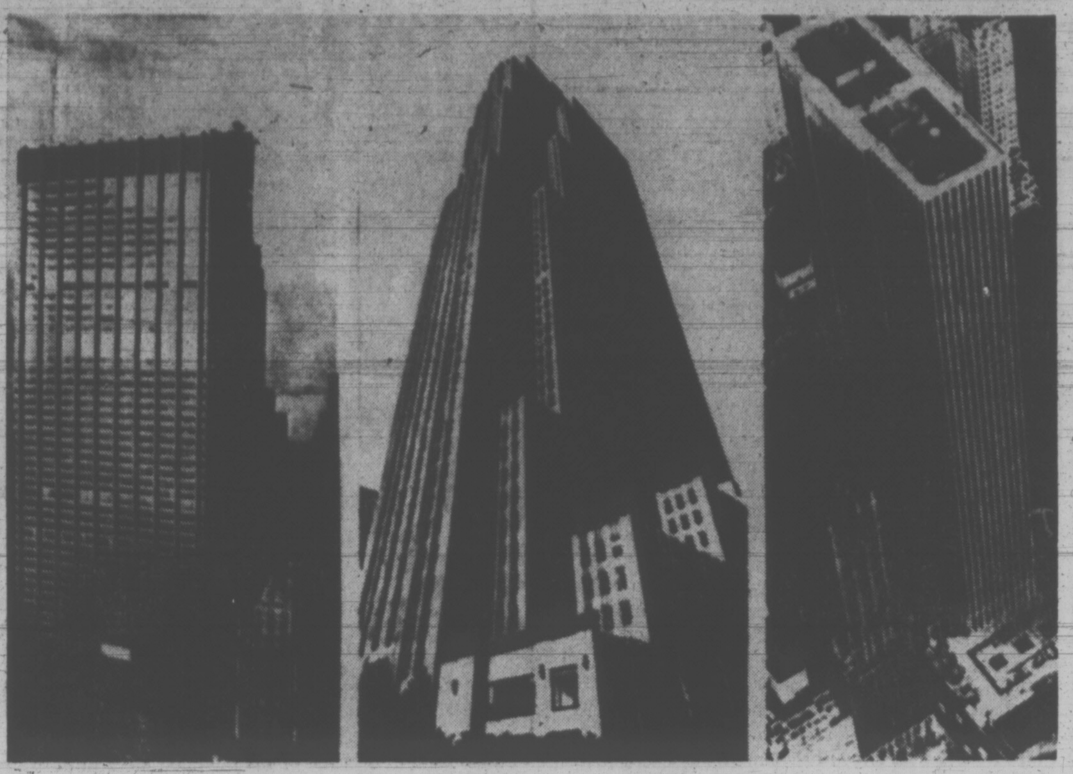
'They have no rationale Other than man's vanity'

High-Rises May Be Due For a Fall



Better architecture can give us more for less

By WOLF VON ECKARDT
The Washington Post

We may see the downfall of the high-rise.

Man, of course, has always had the Promethean urge.

The Egyptians, historians tell us, built a 400-foot-high lighthouse at the marshy mouth of the Nile circa 280 B.C. The Greeks, said classicist Douglas D. Feaver at a recent international conference on tall buildings at Lehigh University, had sense enough to stay close to the ground, though they surely had the technology to build as high as Babylon.

But in the Rome of the second century A.D., Juvenal, the satirist, complained bitterly about the proliferation of high-rise tenements, some reaching 100 feet above the sidewalk.

At the time of its material glory, not only the streets of Rome but its very apartments were terrorized by bullying drunks and mugging bandits.

Architect Oscar Newman, in a study conducted at New York University, just echoed the same complaint more than 2,000 years later. Newman found after studying a number of low-income housing projects around the country that the crime rate increases almost proportionally with building height.

Crime Tripled

The total number of crimes of all kinds, according to police statistics and other data, reports Newman, is three times higher in towering elevator apartment buildings, particularly in large projects, than in neighborhoods of detached homes, townhouses and walk-up garden apartments inhabited by the same socio-economic group.

The rich can afford to protect themselves against the criminals who take advantage of the anonymous no-man's land spaces such as lobbies, elevators, hallways, fire stairs and roofs. Luxury apartments have doormen, guards and electronic security devices, but "when people begin to protect themselves as a community," says Newman, "the battle against crime is effectively lost."

And that — the loss of community, rather than only the increase in crime — is the essence of the growing disenchantment with high-rise buildings, which are, of course, the mainstay of modern architecture.

This disenchantment, which often turns to anger, is by no means confined to the residents of established neighborhoods who do not want their yards shaded by high-rise intruders and their tranquil streets inundated with the automobile traffic that new, high-density developments enevitably generate.

Modern architects, too, are beginning to be appalled by the social and esthetic effects of what they have wrought with their skyscraping towers and slabs.

A year ago, for instance, the famous Greek architect and city planner, Constantinos A. Doxiadis, whose operations span the globe, published a remarkable document. He entitled it "Confessions of a Criminal."

His foremost crime, Doxiadis wrote, was to have advocated and designed high-rise buildings.

Such buildings, he explained, "work against nature by spoiling the scale of the landscape. The most successful cities of the past have been the ones where man and his buildings were in a certain balance with nature, such as Athens or Florence."

High-rise buildings, Doxiadis continued, "work against man himself, especially against children who lose their direct contacts with nature. Even where the contact is maintained, it is subject to parental control. As a result, the children suffer and so do the parents."

These buildings, furthermore, "work against society because they do not help the units of social importance — the family and the extended family, the neighborhood — to function as naturally and as normally as before."

'Network' Overload

As a good many other architects and city planners are now beginning to point out, Doxiadis notes that high-rise buildings "work against the networks" — his term for the complex of roads, sewer and water mains, electric and telephone lines and all the other pipes, wires and strings that hold modern urban life together. Their concentration in high-rise buildings is often difficult and always expensive. It frequently overloads the networks, as our poor telephone service, our brownouts and blackouts demonstrate.

We can improve the networks, of course.

We may be able to reduce the fire hazards inherent in high-rise buildings that were horribly dramatized by the recent tragedies in New Orleans and Atlanta. Televiewers all across the nation watched as people leaped to their death because, in a matter of minutes, these two proud towers of modern architecture turned into sealed infernos.

Firefighters have pointed out for years that this peril is built into modern high-rise structures. The elevator and mechanical cores become powerful flues in the event of a fire, sucking the heat and smoke to the floor above with terrifying speed. Sealed windows keep the inferno inside. With elevators aflame and fire stairs blocked by heat and smoke, there is often no escape. Firemen are frequently unable to come to the rescue above the seventh floor.

Better, built-in fire protection and better fire code enforcement can probably somewhat reduce these dangers. The worst effects of high-rise buildings are social and environmental.

Nathaniel Owings, one of the founders of Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, the architectural firm which has designed some of the tallest and most famous skyscrapers of the past two or three decades, "confessed" this even more succinctly, perhaps, than Doxiadis.

"History has proven that skyscrapers tend to dehumanize the area in which they are raised," he said the other day. "They suck the lifeblood of the area around them, drawing up into the air what should be lying closer to the human scale."

The foremost argument in favor of skyscrapers and high-rise buildings is that the high, vertical concentration of people saves land for open space and enjoyment. The experience of American cities has shown, however, that this is simply not true.

First of all, high-rise buildings must be placed fairly far apart to assure sufficient air and sunlight for their occupants. Little, if any, of the space between them, as you can see on the aerial photographs of high-rise clusters, is used for greenery and enjoyment. The parks are used for parking because while you can stack people, you can't efficiently stack automobiles.

But even where the open space between the slabs and towers are landscaped, they are mostly dead. There is no life in them because there are no shops, no community buildings, no reason for people to be, except in the rare instances where there are attractive playgrounds. And they are deserted at sundown.

The result is that the shops and the shopping centres and community activities must be spread out — some distance away from the isolated high-rise dwellers. So the urban spread happens anyway, but in a disorganized, haphazard fashion that tends to disintegrate the natural community life that is essential if we don't want society to disintergate.

True, high-rise offices can often work more efficiently than horizontally spread out offices.

A good many people without children — bachelors, and young or old couples — enjoy living in high-rise buildings. The guard down in the lobby gives them a sense of security. They like the location (often close to work) and enjoy the view their building often deprives others of.

Scientifically Weak

We must respect these preferences. Because of them, no doubt, some high-rise buildings will continue to be built.

But we should stop kidding ourselves that high-rises save land or preserve nature or that they benefit the city.

Architecture is supposed to be both an art and a science. As works of art, much modern architecture, including some tall buildings, is often most praiseworthy. As a science, however, modern architecture is still most deficient. There is practically no scientifically valid research and evidence about the psychological effects and public (as opposed to private) cost-benefit ratios of high-rise buildings and other types.

There is no saving in land. There is no saving in cost. There is, to the contrary, increasing evidence that the public pays more for the roads and services high-rise concentrations demand than it gains in tax revenues. Builders keep building them because they promise greater private profit but that, too, is now being questioned by many economists.

With good design, you can attain the same densities and can accomodate the same number of people on the same amount of land closer to the ground, than you can by piling them into human filing cabinets. And with some ingenuity you can still give each family a little private patio or roof garden or garden terrace.

So in the end, high-rise structures and their brothers, the skyscrapers, are simply expressions of vanity and power. They have no rational logic other than that Promethean urge to reach for the sky, the vanity to create a landmark for all to see.

Will He Go All the Way?

THE SUN
An Editorial

It is premature to cheer Attorney-General Alex Macdonald for not making the traditional year-end Queen's Counsel appointments. In light of his past criticism of this practice, he could hardly do anything else. And the fact that he apparently sees enough merit in the principle of these honors to warrant a review makes his action no more than a moratorium. These we've had before.

Mr. Macdonald, it seems, finds it fair and equitable that one particular way of making a living — his way, as it happens — should be singled out from all other professions and trades for this unique and presumably profitable honor.

In March of 1966, as a member of the opposition, he said in the legislature that the title of QC was intended as an honor for outstanding members of the bar, but that it had become heavily interlarded with political consideration. This was why it had fallen into disrepute, he said, and "until this institution is put on a proper footing it should be abolished."

What Mr. Macdonald said then was right, as far as it went. As practised by the federal government and most provincial governments, the granting of QCs is blatantly corrupted by patronage and constitutes both a farce and a fraud.

In the last B.C. list, the distinction — with its right to add the magic letters after one's name, preferred court seating, court gowns of silk instead of cotton — went, among others, to one Tom Campbell, then mayor of Vancouver, whose practice of law had been negligible, to put it at its kindest.

Mr. Macdonald's predecessor, Leslie Peterson, explained that QCs — surprise! — are awarded not only for legal merit but for public service. His rationalization was hilarious on either count even without the underlying message that the only public servant worthy of such an honor from the province was one who happened to be a lawyer as well.

By sitting out this year's QC appointments, Alex Macdonald has shown rather more descretion than federal Justice Minister Otto Lang.

Whatever the outstanding professional qualities that led to Mr. Lang's appointments — one QC went to a defeated cabinet minister, another to a man whom even the usually objective Canadian Press felt compelled to identify as a "close friend of Prime Minister Trudeau" — a moratorium on these traditional goodies also might have been wiser counsel.

Still, any cheering for Attorney-General Macdonald, for all his comparative wisdom, will have to wait until one sees the nature of his review. If it proves to be no more comprehensive than the look-see promised by the NDP government of Manitoba — leading to "reform" rather than abolition — it hardly can be good enough.

The question that should be asked is why any supposedly egalitarian Canadian government should hang on to this remnant of a system of honors which we inherited from our British forebears. And, particularly, why, out of all the butchers and bakers and candlestickmakers who surely can be equally deserving, it should make an elite out of lawyers alone.

Answering this question may not be the highest of the B.C. government's priorities. It is a test, just the same, of its impartiality. Certainly it is too important to be left to lawyers.

Nixon Tries to Turn Clock Back

By T. R. B.
New Republic

In this century Coolidge, and Harding, and Hoover, and Ike, were "conservatives"; but Coolidge was passive, Harding was gullible, Hoover was impotent, and Ike never knew what it was all about. Nixon is different; he knows the political score, he is an activist and he is definitely trying to set the clock back. We think this is dangerous.

The hardest thing to believe about Mr. Nixon is that he believes what he says he believes. Can he really believe that there has been "a breakdown in frankly what I would call the leadership class in this country?" — yet that is what he told an interviewer in the glow of his election landslide.

Is it possible that he believes that the nation's media is generally out to get him? Or that he thinks school busing will destroy middle class values?

Or that he thinks Americans are children — what did he say? — "The average American is just like the child in the family ... (if you pamper him) you are going to make him soft, spoiled, and eventually a weak individual." These ideas are very difficult things to credit, yet Mr. Nixon, in his lonely aloofness in the White House, seems definitely to believe them.

There is a pattern of mean-spiritedness about the Administration that sometimes seems to leap from social matters to Vietnam. Grandmotherly Dorothy McCardle (68), society reporter for the Washington Post (which the White House staff is still trying to pay back for its Watergate exposures), is conspicuously exluded from a series of presidential social functions, including a Sunday prayer service, while North Vietnam, in turn, is paid off by a bloodthirsty barrage of bombs for haggling over the escalated Kissinger-Nixon peace terms.

The bomb load from Mr. Nixon is greater than that which any other small nation has endured and survived, and Communist leaders may yet come to heel. The total tonnage is approaching a couple of Hiroshimas. But the real story, we think, is not what is happening in Vietnam, savage though it is, but at home. Since it involves spiritual values it is harder to measure.

America is bemused and bewildered. After giving Mr. Nixon one of history's greatest landslides it sits back to relax; to enjoy the "peace is at hand." And then the bombing. Instead of bringing home POW's for Christmas we make new ones every day! "When I tell you I am completely confident that we are going to have a settlement," Mr. Nixon asserted in his post-election statement, "you can bank on it."

Who can believe anyone anymore? It is as hard to swallow as Kissinger's lame excuse for failure. "It became apparent that there was in preparation a massive Communist effort to launch an attack throughout South Vietnam to begin several days before the cease-fire would have been declared." Correspondents searched for confirmation of this supposed build-up from U.S. officials in Vietnam; in vain.

The revival of the war leaves public opinion groping and inarticulate, and this feeling of helplessness may turn into an attitude of indifference and disengagement and spiritual depletion that will involve other great issues before the country. As a little group of war protesters trudged hopefully back and forth near the White House on Christmas day, they must have wondered if Mr. Nixon is, indeed, right; that the average American is "just like the child in the family." Does papa really know best?

The two great issues before America are poverty and race. Mr. Nixon as a conservative is turning the clock back on both of them. If there is no protest over Vietnam will there be any protest over curtailing housing for the poor, or enforcing civil rights for blacks? Once you create a national mood of apathy and helplessness it spreads like a plague.

Mr. Nixon's proposed new $250 billion budget will slash expenditures for a host of social welfare programs designed to aid the poor and the near poor and he declines to contemplate raising taxes to help bridge the gulf between haves and have-nots. In reorganizing his Administration the first man to feel the axe is Father Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, for 15 years a magnificent chairman and member of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission. Father Hesburgh criticized the Justice Department for refusal to enforce existing civil right statutes. He called busing a phoney issue.

Last month former President Johnson recalled the civil rights crusade of the Sixties, which he helped to launch. But his successor used the so-called "busing issue" as the successful code word in the 1972 election for an appeal to segregationists. Many think race was the great undeclared domestic issue of the campaign.

Interviewd by the National Catholic Reporter, a lay-edited weekly published in Kansas City, Father Hesburgh says that Mr. Nixon spent not more than 15 minutes with the Commission in the last four years. Speaking of Presidential aides H. R. Haldeman and John Erlichman, Father Hesburgh says they are "good men, both of them" but lacking in some quality of adventure: "Take how these two guys spend their off hours. They get together with their families and watch home movies they've taken of Nixon campaigning. Now I can think of better ways to spend my spare time."

We may be headed for quite turbulent times ahead. Indifference to poverty and civil rights will not cure them. And with an activist conservative President conspicuously failing to take Congress, let alone the public, into his confidence on Vietnam he seems to be heading straight for a confrontation with the legislature.

It is a very strange situation indeed; we don't recall anything like it. The cabinet has been down-graded, the executive tightened and reorganized so that top staff aides no longer can be summoned to Congress but have executive immunity or, like Roy L. Ash, head of the Office of Management and Budget, don't even require Senatorial confirmation; the networks frightened; reporters jailed; Supreme Court packed with Nixon conservatives; the public bemused with off-again, on-again war, and the gauntlet thrown down to a vacillating Congress over the President's right to impound funds and to carry on an undeclared war. Can Congress put its house in order? Does it want to? We must wait and see.

Kelowna Postal Workers Agree to End Strike

KELOWNA (CP) — Postal workers here returned to work Saturday night, but the issues that led to a strike Thursday remained unresolved.

Inside work began following a conference between postmaster John Arcand and the Postal Workers Union. About 50 postal workers walked out in a dispute over shift changes.

Guard Slugged; $20,000 Stolen

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP in Burnaby said that between $15,000 and $20,000 in cash and an undetermined amount in cheques was stolen by a man who hid in an Eaton's store after closing time, slugged a guard and robbed a safe.

Police said the bandit, who wore his hair in a pony-tail, hid inside the store and attacked a security guard who was putting Friday's receipts into a safe at about 9:30 p.m.

Police said the bandit struck the guard several times, removed three money bags from the open safe and escaped by smashing a store window. He left in a 1963 or 1964 Valiant.

Houseboat, Cruiser Destroyed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ted Leach, 22, a night watchman for Granson Yacht Charters, was recovering in hospital Sunday from burns suffered in an explosion that destroyed a houseboat, wrecked a 42-foot cruiser and damaged two other vessels. Cause of the explosion is believed to have been gas fumes that excaped from a gas line which had burst in the freezing weather. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

Nicholson to Administer Oath

MERRITT (CP) — Lieut.-Gov. John Nicholson was to administer the oath of office to the incoming mayor and aldermen here today. Nicholson will attend an official dinner tonight honoring outgoing mayor Allan Collett. Floyd Brown was elected mayor.

$200,000 Grant Not Enough

VANCOUVER (CP) — Len Marcale, executive director of the British Columbia Association of Non-Status Indians, has criticized a local initiatives project grant of nearly $200,000 as "just a drop in the bucket" and nearly too late. He said the money will be used for emergency repairs to renovate and improve poor housing in a winter-warmth project.

Pacific Centre Talks Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Art Phillips said city council will meet Pacific Centre Ltd. officials next Monday to try to renegotiate the city's deal with the developers of the two-block downtown Vancouver development.

Phillips said the city cannot avoid being shortchanged financially on the deal, but he wants more favorable terms than the old council accepted.

He said he sees no hope of recovering any of the approximately $3.5 million the city has already lost on the deal, on which he says it was out-negotiated by the Fairview Corp. (B.C.) Ltd., parent company of the Pacific Centre development.

MINORITY TRICKY

Keeping a minority government alive even for two days takes some adroit politicking, University of Victoria Liberals discovered during the weekend.

Prime Minister Dolly Marks' government managed to survive the duration of the annual UVic model parliament, held in the provincial legislative chamber.

But the Liberals saw their plurality cut from 21 seats to 18 with the defection of three members from their ranks Sunday.

And a New Democratic Party non-confidence motion was avoided Saturday afternoon only by some fast inter-party negotiating. The motion was withdrawn.

NDP Leader of the Opposition Ron Armstrong wasn't anxious to try forming his own government, so he and most of his party voted with the Liberals. The Progressive Conservatives, although they didn't like some government bills, preferred the Liberals to the NDP.

The three Liberal defectors, who included the environment minister Paul McKivett, sat as independent Liberals and generally voted with the Conservatives.

An NDP bill abolishing capital punishment was defeated by a narrow margin Saturday night, with the NDP voting for the bill, the Conservatives against and the Liberals splitting.

The NDP had better luck with a bill prohibiting companies from strikebreaking, which was passed Sunday. The bill gave fines up to $50,000 and up to 10 years in prison to directors of strike-breaking companies.

Most government bills were passed, but a bill making the local initiatives program a permanent year-round entity was defeated.

The 50-member parliament was elected on campus last November. The last two parliaments held saw NDP minority governments.

Four Found Slain

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Police have described as a triple murder and suicide the deaths early Sunday of four Owen Sound residents.

Dead are Judy Quesnel, 26, David Bolton, 27; Joan Mustard, 28, and Ernest Quesnel, 30, estranged husband of Mrs. Quesnel.

Police Chief Tom Law said today the department received a telephone call from Quesnel early Sunday morning "Saying that he had just killed his wife and her boyfriend and his girlfriend and was going to kill himself."

Mrs. Edward Bolton, mother of the dead man, told police that Quesnel's six-year-old daughter, Susan, ran barefoot through the snow to the Bolton residence, just a few doors away from the Quesnel home, shouting: "My mommy's dead and so is Dave. They're all bloody."

Five Quesnel children, who had been living with their mother since she and her husband separated six months ago, were in the house sleeping when Quesnel shot their mother.

Hitler's Car Nets $153,000

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — "It was more than I planned to pay for it," said Earl Clark after purchasing Adolf Hitler's private car for $153,000 Saturday, "but I never doubted that I would get it."

Clark, operator of the Dutch Wonderland Museum in Lancaster, Pa., had to set a record for auto bids however, before being able to claim the 11,000-pound Mercedes Benz as his own.

Richard Randall, a Wycoff, N.Y., horse exhibitor, entered the bidding at $80,000 and went to $152,000 before dropping out.

Auctioneer Dean Kruse said the previous record payment for a car was $90,000, paid for Greta Garbo's Deusenburg last year.

Sources said Tom Barrett a prominent Scottsdale businessman who sold the Hitler car Saturday, had $77,000 invested in it.

The car, one of more than 100 presented for auction here Saturday, was ordered by Hitler in 1941 and used as his personal parade car during the early years of the Second World War.

Hitler transported himself, Mussolini, Baron Mannerheim and other notables in it on state occasions.

When Germany began to lose the war, Hitler gave the car to Mannerheim, who shipped it from Finland to Sweden to keep the Russians from getting it. Later, the Swedish government seized it for taxes.

The Swedes traded the car to an American importing firm for an undisclosed quantity of ball bearings.

THIS BRITISH push-button dialling unit with a memory store was exhibited in London recently. It can store 10 frequently called numbers which can be called automatically by pressing only two buttons. It also remembers the last number called so that if it is engaged it can be tried again by pressing another button. It can be used with any ordinary dial telephone. (CP photo.)

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain futures came under heavy selling pressure on tte board of trade today.

There appeared to be no outside influence on commodities.

Weather over the weekend in the Midwestern United States was generally cold with some snow flurries.

At one time, some selling in the soybean complex was attributed to easiness of cash meal.

The selling in wheat, corn and oats was generally without much outside influence, although the weather had some effect on corn prices. Commercial support was lacking from the opening bell.

GARBAGEMEN AIM FOR PEAK

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Student garbagemen will clean up refuse left by climbers on Alaska's Mt. McKinley, North America's highest mountain.

Students in the Denali Arctic Environmental Project at Idaho State University will concentrate on carrying off litter left by climbing expeditions on the west buttress and Muldrow routes of the 20,320-foot mountain.

Dividend Payments Higher

TORONTO (CP) — Dividend payments by Canadian companies last year were up 3.3 per cent from 1971 but fell slightly lower than the record total in 1970, says Pitfield, Mackay, Ross and Co. of Toronto.

Despite a decline of $40 million in the mining sector, the 1972 total reached $1.63 billion. This compares with 1.58 billion in 1971 and is $900,000 below the 1970 figure.

Payments for 1972 were more than five times the 1938 pre-war high of $313 million.

Bell Canada continued as Canada's highest dividend payer with a 1972 total of $110 million, up from $104 million the year before. International Nickel Co. of Canada paid $74.5 million or 29 per cent of dividends paid by mining companies, down from $97 million in 1971.

Of last year's total dividends, miscellaneous industrials accounted for $795 million, up from $739 million a year earlier, mines accounted for $254 million, down from $294 million, utilities accounted for $300 million, up from $277 million, and institutions and trusts accounted for $278 million, up from $266 million.

Spill Laws Stiffened

SEATTLE (AP) — The U.S. coast guard has announced new anti-pollution regulations aimed at reducing accidental oil discharges.

The preventive actions are emphasized by the new rules, Rear Admiral Joseph McClelland, 13th district commander, says. Tank vessels, barges and certain terminal facilities which conduct bulk oil transfers are affected.

One rule will require operating personnel to demonstrate knowledge of procedures for stopping pollution.

Most of the new regulations take effect July 1, 1974.

Prices on the Toronto market were mixed to lower in active trading today.

Bank, oil refining, trust and loan and beverage stocks were among sectors of the market recording losses while chemical, merchandising, pipeline and real estate issues were higher.

Advances remained well ahead of declines, 285 to 193, while 251 issues remained unchanged.

Western Supplies A rose 1¾ to $24, Holiday Inns 1¼ to $14¼, Doman Industries 1 to $15⅞, Falconbridge Nickel 1 to $72¼ and Woodward A ⅞ to $31¾.

Columbia Cellulose dropped 10 cents to $1.15, Imperial Oil ½ to $46⅝, A.G.F. Management ¼ to $6, Agra Industries ⅛ to $13⅞ and Auto Electric ⅛ to $10.

Placer climbed ¾ to $46¼ and Cassiar ⅝ to $14⅝ Dome Mines slipped ¾ to $68⅜ and McIntyre ½ to $48.

New York

New York stopped to catch its breath after the sweeping advances of the last few sessions. Trading was fairly active. Most price changes were fractional.

Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. was down ⅜ to $15⅝. Last week the company reported a larger loss than a year ago in its fiscal quarter ended Nov. 25, and said it ENDED Nov. 25, and said it would omit the fourth quarter dividend.

Holiday Inns was 1⅛ lower at $39⅜, after the publication of an unfavorable report from an analyst.

Montreal

All sectors declined in moderate trading at Montreal today.

Banister Corp. rose 5⅝ to $32⅝, Simpsons Sears 3 to $48 and Falcon Nickel 1¼ to $72¼ while Hudson Bay Oil dropped

London

The London market drifted lower in quiet trading today as investors stayed on the sidelines pending the outcome of economic talks between the British government and union and business leaders.

The Financial Times index dropped 3.5 to 504.6 near the end of the session.

Many leading stocks dropped between two and six pence. Among exceptions were Unilever and P and O.

Thomson Organisation advanced 15 pence, reflecting its heavy selling pressure on the troleum consortium.

Special Hearing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver lawyer Douglas Jolliff has been summoned to appear before a special hearing of the Law Society of British Columbia Jan. 30 to answer charges that he conducted himself in a disrespectful manner towards the court and provincial judge Les Bewley. Jolliff was banned by Judge Bewley from appearing before him after Jolliff criticized the judge for failing to appear in court to sentence a client last May.

Bapco to Cut Paint Production

There will be some reduction in paint production as a result of consolidation of manufacturing processes in Surrey, says Bapco president Robert Law.

But the start-up capacity had not yet been determined.

Earlier, union sources predicted that Bapco would cut back from its annual production of 2 million gallons per year to 500,000 gallons per year.

Law sai dthere would be some reduction but probably not as severe as union sources were predicting.

Bapco has announced it will phase out its operations at Laurel Point in Victoria and move to a seven-acre site at Newton in Surrey. The move is expected to be completed by year's end.

Law said preliminary production figures would be misleading in any case because Bapco planned to expand production rapidly, going into new lines.

He said the move to more efficient premises was necessary because the Bapco line was under cost pressures. It was unable to raise prices much for competitive reasons and yet cost of production was escalating.

Some of the cost pressures would be reduced with the new production equipment and the mainland location. Transportation osts were proving to be a major expense, he said.

Law said the marketing flow of paints would change when the move takes place.

At present, Bapco, owned by Canadian Industries Ltd., sells paint acorss western Canada.

Bapco will continue to sell to some customers on the Prairies but CIL paints in Ontario will take over some Bapco customers in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Law said it was not simply a declaration of zones on a provincial basis, although Bapco would sell mainly in B.C., Alberta and Saskatchewan.

"Unfortunately, the paint business can not be divided along provincial lines," he said. "It is not that easy."

He said Bapco has not been excluded from any areas but was discussing servicing of eastern customers with CIL to see if the present system could be made more efficient.

Copper Next For Japanese

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

A new round of investment in British Columbia copper production is expected from Japan this year as supplies become scare and prices rise.

Japan has already invested heavily in coal and investment in copper is expected to be the next development.

There is already some Japanese investment in production of copper concentrates. Lornex Mining is in Highland Valley is being financed in part by a consortium of nine Japanese companies to assure the consortium can purchase the entire copper production for 12 years.

The additional financing was forced upon Lornex when it discovered its costs for starting its mine-mill venture would be $143 million, not its original estimate of $124 million.

Production of copper concentrates at Lornex began in October.

However, because the new provincial government will attempt to discourage export of copper concentrates this year, there will be tremendous pressures to construct copper smelters to produce refined copper or copper wire.

Smelters involve expenditures in the order of $50 million each and Japan is known to be interested in supplying much of this capital in exchange for a guaranteed source of copper.

The trend toward rising copper prices also will encourage Japanese investors to invest in British Columbia production.

British Columbia had advantages in the race for copper smelters not shared by some other major copper producing countries.

For example, Chile and Zambia are hampered by political instability and production difficulties. They are encountering machinery breakdowns and a shortage of parts.

The United States continues to be the major copper producer but is encountering severe pollution problems. Costs of altering existing smelters to halt air pollution would be so high as to be prohibitive.

The U.S. is faced with phasing out some of its old smelters and building new ones to replace them.

So, for the first time British Columbia is starting even with the big copper producers in the southwest U.S., for smelter costs are comparable in both countries.

The only difference is the U.S. firms have access to more borrowing power, a factor which may be offset by the eager Japanese.

Premier Barrett has said he would welcome Japanese investment in British Columbia, but on his terms.

Talks between the premier and Japanese copper purchasers are expected early this year.

JOHN McKENZIE
. . . scores for East stars

By The Canadian Press

It's not so much who you are but where you are that draws the World Hockey Association crowds.

WHA officials discovered on the weekend, to their dismay, the league's elite were somewhat less than a showcase at Quebec City where the first all-star game drew less than half the house.

But in St. Paul, Minn., where the Fighting Saints were performing for the first time in the new Civic Centre, a near sellout house saw their favorites drop a 6-2 score to Winnipeg Jets.

The Jets' win gave them 48 points in the Western Division race to move five points ahead of second place Minnesota.

Only 4,991 were in the 10,000-seat Quebec Coliseum Saturday to see the East roll over the West 6-2 in a lively encounter that featured many former National Hockey League stars.

Gary Jarrett and Danny Lawson of Cleveland Crusaders, Johnny McKenzie of Philadelphia Blazers, Larry Pleau and Jim Dorey of New England Whalers and Wayne Carleton of Ottawa Nationals scored for the East.

The winners, while pelting three Western goaltenders for 47 shots, broke a 1-1 deadlock with three second-period goals.

Los Angeles Sharks' Jerry Odrowski gave the Western all-stars a short-lived lead at 10:39 of the opening period. Twelve seconds later, Jarrett beat Ernie Wakely of Winnipeg Jets for the equalizer, the only one of 18 Eastern shots to get past him.

In the second period, McKenzie, Pleau and Dorey added to the Eastern totals against Alberta Oilers' Jack Norris before Bobby Hull of the Jets beat Whalers' Al Smith early in the final period with the second West goal.

Smith, who replaced starter Gerry Cheevers midway in the second period, blanked the Western shooters the rest of the way while Lawson and Carleton completed the rout on Minnesota's Mike Curran, the U.S. Olympic star of the 1972 Winter Games at Sapporo, Japan.

Although the players, along with WHA officials, were disappointed at the Coliseum turnout, it was felt that blanket television coverage, severe winter temperatures and the fact it was an afternoon game combined to cut into the expected crowd.

During the pre-game business, the WHA Players' Association was formed with Bill Hicke of Alberta the group's first president.

The association also announced the appointment of lawyer Curt Leichner of Portland, Ore., as its general counsel. Other members of the WHAPA executive include Kent Douglas, New York Raiders, vice-president; Rich Sentes, Ottawa, secretary and Ron Buchanan, Cleveland, treasurer.

Hull and his Winnipeg Jets flew into St. Paul immediately after the game in Quebec City and blitzed the Minnesota defences for 53 shots at another former U.S. Olympian ace, Jack McCartan.

Chris Bordeleau's 28th and 29th goals of the season, 33 seconds apart early in the third period, moved the Jets into a 5-1 lead that the Fighting Saints couldn't make up before 13,426 fans in the new 16,180 seat Civic Centre.

Dunc Rousseau also scored twice for the Jets with the others going to Ab McDonald and Milt Black. George Morrison and Fred Speck scored for the Saints.

Best Sips Champagne And Tastes Hot Water

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Temperamental soccer star George Best was reported in hot water again Monday, this time over a bar brawl involving two men needling him.

And naturally, there was a pretty girl around. Jennifer Bath, a 22-year-old artist, defended the stormy superstar and said: "It wasn't George's fault. He wasn't causing any trouble."

Best, a 26-year-old Northern Irishman with a taste for glamor girls, apparently ran into trouble as he sipped champagne to celebrate a good day at the races with friends in the fashionable New Grapes Hotel Saturday night.

Miss Bath said three young men "started saying things to make George lose his temper."

It apparently got Best's Irish up and "glasses were thrown and blows exchanged," according to Miss Bath.

"Two men were taken out of the bar, one with a black eye. Police were holding George back."

Police were called in. Best later left the hotel with his friends and police said they did not plan to take any action.

Best, fired by his Manchester United club last month after skipping training to frolic in London's Trendy night spots, was involved in a club fracas last November.

He was charged with assaulting a 20-year-old waitress in a Manchester night spot. He is scheduled to appear in court here Jan. 11.

Best's personal manager, Frank Evans, was quoted saying Sunday night the star will not fly to Canada to join a soccer circus. Best was earlier reported "enthusiastic" about the offer.

The Daily Mail reported Evans said the offer, from wealthy sex cinema owner Joe Martin, would not be accepted "because neither George or I know anything about this man's background."

"We had been waiting for an offer to come in writing before George finally agreed to play in the Canadian series. It was all over but for the signing.

"But when the contract arrives, it will now be torn up. George wants nothing to do with Mr. Martin."

Martin offered Best $2,000 a game for a 12-match series in Canada plus at least $5,000 expenses.

Evans' rejection of the offer coincided with a refusal Sunday by the Ontario Soccer Association to permit any of its regular players to take part in the soccer circus series. There was speculation Martin's proposed series now may be called off.

Japanese Boys Lose One Bout In Tour Opener

Members of the Japanese national high school wrestling team are proving that they consider the grapple game as more than just exercise.

The Japanese boys, who meet a Victoria representative squad Friday (7:30 p.m.) at S. J. Willis Junior High School, impressed Canadian Olympic wrestling coach Paul Nemeth with their stamina as they made the first of nine exhibition appearances in British Columbia.

Competing in New Westminster during the weekend, the touring students dropped just one bout as they defeated the New Westminster high school team 9-1.

Ron Scott was the lone winner on the New Westminster squad, pinning Tomaru Mishinmura to win the 147-pound event. Scott used a judo throw for the pin and sent Mishimura to the hospital for X-rays, but only Mishimura's pride was dented.

Scott's round was the only bright one for New Westminster as the Japanese wrestlers made short work of the other bouts.

Coach Nobuo Inque said his boys will form the nucleus of the next Japanese Olympic squad, and Nemeth, also coach of the University of British Columbia team, was beaming over the single win.

"There is vast improvement," Nemeth said. "We're a lot closer to them now than we were during their first visit (in 1969)."

Nemeth said mat sports are a way of life in Japan while here they're just exercise.

"You take tonight," Nemeth said. "These Japanese boys warmed up for 45 minutes. If our wrestlers did that they'd drop dead from exhaustion."

During the 2969 B.C. tour, the Japanese won 99 of 100 bouts.

WILLIS TEAM WINS

In Victoria, the Japanese will face a group that is dominated by S. J. Willis athletes, who warmed up for the event over the weekend by maintaining superiority over opponents on a visit to Port Angeles.

For the third straight year, S. J. Willis wrestlers won the home-and-home exhibition series against Port Angeles squads, beating Stevens Junior High 51-48 and defeating Roosevelt Junior High 90-47 in Port Angeles. S. J. Willis downed Stevens 80-6 and Roosevelt 54-45 in Victoria, Dec. 8.

Dan Cameron won four matches for Victoria while Andy Halusiak, Randy Strandland, Llew Poulin, Dennis Lacroix, Alan Fokkema, David Phillips and Lorne Chan recorded double wins.

Beirnes Bidding To Retain Title

Ewart Beirnes of Victoria Curling Club will be back to try and retain his title when play opens Tuesday in the second annual seniors bonspiel at Esquimalt Curling Club.

First draw in the four-day, four-event spiel is at 9 a.m. with further rounds at 11:15 a.m., 1:30 and 3:45 p.m. for each of the first three days. Semi-finals are slated for 10 a.m. Friday with finals set to begin at 12:30 p.m.

First draw for each rink:

11:15 — Alf Howell (E) vs. Duff Gurolamy (V), Bill Shearing (E) vs. Len Margetts (V), Les Court (V) vs. Ab Boyer (E), John Dahl (E) vs. Henry Schommer (V), Jack Clark (V) vs. Art Silver (V), Jack Smith (E) vs. Wilf Hansen (E).

1:30 p.m. — Cy McDermott (E) vs. Ernie Jolly (E), Morley McDonald (V) vs. Larry Ormand (N).

Bays, Mt. Doug Connect

Greater Victoria high school basketball teams enjoyed greatest success on the tournament trail Saturday.

Oak Bay Bays won the fourth annual Sasquatch invitational boys' tourney in Mission with a 57-47 victory over Mission Roadrunners in the final.

And in Courtnay, Douglas won the inaugural Towette girls' tourney with a 63-31 triumph over Belmont in an all-Victoria final.

Oak Bay held a 16-3 lead in the opening quarter and opened up a 32-17 gap by half time.

Chris Trumpy led Bays with 16 points, four more than the total fired by clubmates Grant Boland and Brian Sutherland-Brown. Boland was named the tourney's most valuable player and Sutherland-Brown and Trumpy were accorded all-star honors.

Mary Ann Longmore led Mt. Douglas, the reigning B.C. champions, with 17 points while Terry Weeks and Jan Nowell each fired eight points for Belmont.

Jill Smith of Mt. Douglas was selected as the tourney's most valuable player while Misses Longmore, Nowell and Weeks as well as Ronnie Hind of Mt. Douglas and Janice Turner of Reynolds were named to the first all-star squad.

Elsewhere, Greater Victoria boys' teams lost two out of three exhibition encounters.

Point Grey Greyhounds nipped host Belmont Braves 46-43 and Hillside Hillanders topped Mt. Douglas Rams 65-51 in West Vancouver. Mount View Hornets scored the lone exhibition win, edging Killarney Cougars, 46-45.

Dave Whyte led Greyhounds with 15 points while Gary Davison and Bob Wilson fired eight points each for Braves. Trevor Hart and John Gordon led Hillanders with 18 points each while Doug Mosher hit 18 points for Rams.

Gary Budd paced the Hornets to victory with 13 points.

Horrigan Discovers Recipe for Success

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

Tim Horrigan turned into a 21-year-old giant killer during the South Island men's curling playdowns on the weekend, but he never would have made it without help from a man more than twice his age and a benevolent boss.

Horrigan was one of four southern division skips qualifying for the Island finals against four northern representatives Jan. 19-21 at Racquet Club.

He did it the hard way, knocking off several favorites over the weekend at Victoria Curling Club. His victims were clubmate Keith Dagg of Victoria CC, Playland's Jim Gallaugher, 9-7; Duncan's Fred Duncan, 9-4, and Racquet Club's Lyle Garraway, 9-8.

Joining him will be clubmate Les Brice, who swept through five games without a loss, and two Duncan entrants, Gord Stewart and veteran Glen Harper, both qualifying out of "B" flight Sunday night by completing 5-1 records in the 33-rink playoff.

North Island rinks making the grade on the weekend in Campbell River were Chuck Perry and Terry Bloom of Comox Valley Curling Club of Courtenay and Winston Allen and Norm Thiessen of Nanaimo.

Two South Island women's rinks and two schoolgirls' representatives also were determined Sunday at Victoria CC and they'll go against northern representatives in island finals at Racquet Club the same time as the men.

The women's representatives are Carmell Marshall of Esquimalt, who swept to a 4-0 record on the "A" side of the 18-rink event, by stealing three on the last end for a 7-6 sudden-death victory over Joan Fitzsimmons of Playland.

Girls' qualifyers were Julie Barker or Esquimalt and Barbara Jaines of Duncan.

North Island women's and girls' representatives will be decided next weekend in Port Alberni.

Experienced Clarke Supplies Calm

Horrigan has curled six years, mostly out of Esquimalt Sports Centre where he worked on the maintenance gang, and three years ago represented the South Island in the schoolboys' playdowns while attending Esquimalt High School.

He's been having an exceptional season so far at Victoria CC and a month ago began putting together his Consols rink. His first choice was second Murray Walker, 18.

Then he decided he needed a third with experience. Wilf Clarke, 49, was his choice.

"I'd played against him in bonspiels and club draws," Horrigan explained. "He's older and has the experience and I figured he could calm me down."

Clarke at first declined, but Horrigan talked him into it.

Now all he needed was a lead.

"So I asked Gary (21-year-old Gary Wilkinson) two weeks ago and he said yes. But one week later he turned around and said he couldn't because of work. He told me if I was stuck, he'd try."

Tim was stuck so Gary got time off to curl Thursday night's 9-8 win over Racquet Club's Lyle Garraway. He still had to work Saturday, though, leaving Horrigan with the prospect of going into the second round with only three men.

"That would have been suicide," Horrigan said.

That's when Jack Bower entered the picture. Jack is Gary's boss at Mitchell and Anderson Lumber and Friday night he excused Wilkinson from Saturday's duties so he could continue with the rink.

"We'd never have made it without Gary," Horrigan added.

Brice, a fireman in Oak Bay, entered his rink mainly to tune up for next month's provincial firefighters' playoffs in Prince George. With him are third Lonnie Restell and second Stan Thame, both Victoria firefighters, and lead Al Hayton, with the Saanich Fire Department.

Harper fought his way back through "B" flight after a 10-6 loss to Playland's Jim Gallaugher in the second round. He beat Esquimalt's Lynol Mack 14-5, Hughes 7-6, Don Matheson of Racquet Club 11-4 and finished off his comeback Sunday night by beating Garraway 14-7.

With Harper are third Vern Kaspick, second Hugh Williams and lead Doug Belton.

WORKING TOWARD A WIN, second Wayne Buck (left) and lead Frank Fraser of Gord Stewart's Duncan rink bring rock into house during South Island men's victory that earned quartet berth in Island finals Jan. 19-21 at Racquet Club.

Soviet Nats Blast Bucks

Times News Services

Russia's national hockey team has made it a perfect record at the gate and on the ice in four games against Western Hockey League rivals.

The Soviets attracted capacity crowds in each of their clashes with WHL professionals and they wound up with four straight triumphs when they overpowered the Buckaroos 11-4 Saturday night at Portland before 10,492 fans.

Earlier on the trip to the United States, the Soviets defeated Seattle, Phoenix and San Diego of the WHL and New Haven of the American Hockey League. They also won the World cup competition in Colorado and Minnesota.

Portland held a 4-3 lead after the first period, but the Russians picked up three unanswered goals in the middle period and added five more in the final period.

Art Jones, Mike Keeler, Andy Hebenton and Ken Campbell scored for the Buckaroos.

Another Russian team—the Moscow Dynamos—whipped Galt Hornets 8-3 Saturday night to wrap up second place in the Ontario international tournament, which was won by Czechoslovakia.

In another Saturday game, Owen Sound Dowtowners earned their only point of the tourney by playing to a 3-3 deadlock with Kingston Aces before only about 500 Owen Sound fans.

The Czechs finished undefeated in five games, running up 10 points. Moscow had eight points—its only loss was to the strong Czechoslovakian team—while Galt had six, Kingston three, Timra of Sweden two and Owen Sound one.

Yuri Chichurin scored two goals for Moscow with Yuri Reps getting one goal and three assists as Dynamos outshot the Hornets 37-24 before 2,993 fans.

TOTEMS TRIMMED

At Stockholm Saturday, tournament champion Spartak of Moscow exploded with five third-period goals to whip British Columbia Totems 10-5 in Ahearne Cup competition.

Doug Bentley scored three goals for the Totems, who played a fast-moving game with none of the rough tactics that had marked their earlier appearances in the tourney.

Spartak, which started the final period in a 5-5 tie, was the top team with 12 points, Canada had none.

The touring Czech national team erupted for three first-period goals Saturday at Durham, N.H., and went on for a 4-0 victory over New Hampshire.

PITTSBURGH DEALS NORIS TO BLUES

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues have acquired defenceman Joe Noris from Pittsburgh Penguins in a National Hockey League transaction Sunday.

To make room for him, the Blues returned defenceman Chuck Hamilton to their Denver Spurs Western League farm team. In the deal, the Spurs sent leftwinger Jim Shires to Pittsburgh.

Mikita Up to Terrorizing Tricks

By The Canadian Press

The spirit has mellowed, but the zest and determination with which Stan Mikita terrorized opposition goaltenders in his early years with Chicago Black Hawks is back.

The slightly-built centre, fully-recovered from back injuries that have plagued him the last two seasons, was up to his old tricks Sunday against Boston Bruins.

He scored Chicago's first goal then drew assists on the other four as the Black Hawks nipped Boston 5-4 to move eight points ahead of Minnesota North Stars, whom they blanked 2-0 Saturday, in the National Hockey League's West Division.

The five-point game moved Mikita into second place in the individual scoring race at the half-way point in the schedule with 58 points, two behind Boston's Phil Esposito.

Elsewhere Sunday, shutouts told the story as Buffalo Sabres downed Philadelphia Flyers 2-0, New York Rangers blanked Pittsburgh Penguins 3-0, Toronto Maple Leafs whitewashed California Golden Seals 4-0 and Detroit Red Wings burdened New York Islanders with a similar setback.

In another contest, the surprising Atlanta Flames, a first-year franchise along with the Islanders, trimmed Vancouver Canucks 5-2 to climb into third place in the West.

Saturday's other scores were: Montreal Canadiens 5, California 0; Toronto 4, Los Angeles Kings 2; Buffalo 4, the Rangers 1; Detroit 4, the Islanders 0; Pittsburgh 4, Vancouver 2 and Atlanta 2, St. Louis Blues 2.

Montreal gets a chance to pad its two-point lead in the East over Boston when they entertain Minnesota tonight.

It marked the second Chicago victory in as many meetings with the defending Stanley Cup champions this season. And the scrappy Mikita engineered the win, setting up linemates Cliff Koroll and Dan Maloney for two goals each.

Maloney's second of the game, at 19:09 of the second period, broke a 4-4 deadlock and goaltender Tony Esposito blanked the high-scoring Bruins the rest of the way.

Bobby Orr, the Bruins' ace defenceman, drew three assists but was in the penalty box when Maloney scored the game winner.

The Sabres, meanwhile, stretched their unbeaten string at home to 21 games—18 wins and three ties. Dave Dryden registered his second shutout and got all the scoring he needed when Jim Lorentz beat Philadelphia's Doug Favel at 14:41 of the second period after the Flyers' goalie had stopped two successive drives by Gerry Meehan.

The win kept Buffalo apace with the Rangers, each with 53 points in the East, two behind Boston and four back of Montreal.

The Rangers took advantage of an unusual penalty to Pittsburgh's Ken Schinkel to score the winner against Pittsburgh as Eddie Giacomin turned in his third shutout in five games.

The veteran Penguin left the Pittsburgh players' bench twice in the first period while fights were in progress on the ice. NHL rule 66G dictates that any player leavin the players' bench during a fight will be given a double minor and game misconduct.

Referee Ron Wicks caught Schinkel the second time although the Pittsburgh winger, who has been inactive of late, was obviously skating off the kinks in his aging legs at the other end of the rink and had no interest in the fights.

While the Penguins were shorthanded because of the double minor to Schinkel, Walt Tkaczuk scored New York's go-ahead goal.

Bill Fairbairn's insurance score in the second period drew a Happy Birthday blast from the Madison Square Garden organist and 17,000 fans joined in.

Funseth's Wife Proves Positive Thinking Pays

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rod Funseth, who admits to some occasional negative thinking, called his wife, Sandi, after the third round of the $135,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

"I've got a 17-stroke lead over last place," the curly-haired, soft-spoken Funseth told her.

Sandi, no negative thinker, promptly put two bottles of champagne on ice.

Funseth, who has made a 13-year career as a supporting player to the like of Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino, scored a solid, methodical three-stroke victory Sunday in the event that opens a 12-month schedule on the pro tour.

"I'm so negative, if I had a 10-stroke lead, I'd be afraid I was going to fall and break a leg," the 39-year-old Funseth said.

Funseth stroked irons to within almost tap-in distance for consecutive birdies on the eighth and ninth holes, parred the last nine in routine fashion and finished with a two-underpar 69 for a 276 total on the 7,028-yard Riviera Country Club course.

It was only the second career victory—the other was in the 1965 Phoenix open—for Funseth, who has collected $27,000.

Second place ended in a fourway tie among Don Bies, Australian David Graham, Dave Hill and Tom Weiskopf, all at 279.

Vida's Ready for Salary Battle

OAKLAND (AP) — Vida Blue, who waged a lengthy salary dispute last season with Oakland Athletics owner Charles O. Finley, said he will seek another raise in a new contract that is "not going to be the easiest one he's going to sign."

In a telephone interview Saturday from his Mansfield, La., home, the southpaw pitcher said he would meet Finley within two weeks in Chicago to discuss his contract.

Blue, the 1971 Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Award winner, said, "I won't be negotiating at $50,000."

After a long holdout last season, he signed for a reported $50,000, substantially less than the $75,000 he asked.

"I want a raise for two reasons," Blue said. "First, he Finley, made a statement after the 1971 playoffs that players deserve a raise for championships."

"Second," he said, "I want a raise because I was part of the team and if they get a raise I should get one. I think everyone on the team should get a raise because we won the world championship as a team."

Blue said he would do his own negotiations this season. Los Angeles lawyer Robert Gerst represented Blue in last year's negotiations.

If he is not signed when the club's Arizona spring training camp opens Feb. 24, Blue said, "I'm goin' home."

His record was 24-8 in 1971, then sank to 6-10 last season. However, Blue made a strong contribution in late season games for the Athletics.

Cougar Errors Around Net Lead to 5-3 Loss to Bruins

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Saturday's Western Canada Junior Hockey League game at Memorial Arena attracted talent-hunting representatives of five National Hockey League teams but only a single thought about Victoria Cougars' shooting.

"Poor" was the general reading of Victoria's shot-taking after the Cougars succumbed, 5-3, to New Westminster Bruins before 1,777 fans.

Bud Poile, Vancouver's recuperating general manager enjoying a busman's holiday; Lou Jankowski, the one-time Victoria Maple Leaf player now charting 19-year-olds for St. Louis Blues; Pittsburgh's Rudy Migay; Greg Timmins of Detroit Red Wings, and Dave Poile, Bud's son and an executive with Atlanta Flames, gave the NHL fair representation.

Jankowski, better known for his scoring ability than his skating or physical power, found several faults with Cougars' shooting unity.

"Two and even three Cougar forwards were going behind the net at the same time," noticed Lou. "You've got to have a heckova curve on a shot to score from behind.

"When a Cougar does get into the slot, his linemates seem to ignore him."

Another fault Jankowski detected was "jumbled positional" play. When two players did get in front of the goal, they invariably crowded into the same area.

"Both the Bruins and Cougars also neglect rebound possibilities. That is; players don't follow up a shot with the idea of jumping on a good rebound. Instead, they swing away from the play.

"You don't get better scoring chances than rebounds. (Dale) Cook scored the opening goal on a rebound, and it probably was one of the easiest goals he scored all season."

Cougars enjoyed their fair share of the play. But while Victoria players struggled to score, it came easier to the Bruins. Never hesitating to put the puck in the direction of the net when there was nothing better to do, the Bruins came up with four "easy" goals.

Bruins' better shooting and stronger positional play turned out to be the difference.

Cook's goal was his 33rd of the season, establishing a Victoria club record. Frank Hyndman and rookie Rick Lapointe counted Victoria's other goals while Wayne Dye, Gord Lane, Bob Bilodeau, Ron Kennedy and Emile Demoissac scored for Westminster.

It was the third straight loss for Cougars, who play Edmonton Oil Kings here Wednesday and next Saturday.

Despite their shortage of shooting unity, the Cats deserved a better fate. Cook and Al McLaren were stymied by New Westminster goalie Terry Richardson on clear breakaways, Brad Richardson banged a shot off the piping after beating the netminder, and Frank Hyndman and Terry Ewasiuk were stopped on great chances from scrambles.

The Bruins didn't have as many clear-cut chances.

Cougars played without forward Don Williams, nursing an eye injury, and defenceman Ed Boucha, out with a knee ailment. Both could be ready to play Wednesday against Edmonton.

Bruins Rally To Grab Lead

Times News Services

New Westminster Bruins, Edmonton Oil Kings and Winnipeg Jets all kicked up late storms Sunday to avoid defeat in the Western Canada Junior Hockey League.

New Westminster had to come through with two goals late in the third period to avoid an upset to Vancouver Nats, the hapless tail-enders in the Western Division. Behind all the way until Wayne Dye and Bob Stumpf scored with less than six minutes remaining. Bruins won 5-4.

The win boosted Bruins back into the West lead. Flin Flon Bombers, continuing to show great offensive punch, helped Bruins by sweeping a two-game series from Calgary Centennials, 8-3 and 5-1.

Westminster now leads Calgary by one point.

At Edmonton, the Oil Kings stormed back with 35 shots and four goals in the second and third periods to edge Medicine Hat Tigers 4-2. Tigers clearly dominated the first period and jumped into a 2-0 lead on goals by Tom Lysiak and Boyd Anderson.

The most surprising comeback occurred in Regina. The hometown Pats took an early 5-0 lead, but couldn't hold it against Winnipeg Jets. The East Division trailers bounced back to salvage a 5-5 tie despite Regina's 53-shot assault on Winnipeg goalies Frank Turnbull and Jim Foubister.

The tie stung Regina coach Bob Turner more than Saturday's 5-3 loss to the Tigers in Medicine Hat.

In the weekend's other game, Swift Current snapped an eight-game losing streak by treating 1,500 hometown fans to a 7-5 decision over Brandon Wheat Kings.

Stockers Romp; Blues Trip Boxers

Stockers North American hammered JBAA Gulls 14-4 Sunday in a Victoria Intermediate Hockey League game at Juan de Fuca Arena.

In other intermediate action, Chemainus Blues dropped London Boxing Club 6-4 Saturday at Fuller's Lake Arena to take over sole possession of second place in the Vancouver Island League.

Murray Morrison pumped in five goals to lead Stockers while Errol Goulden added two and singles were scored by Ken Waet, Rodger Thompson, Murray Sotheran, Lawrie Huck, Gerry Caldwell, Les Bergman and Rugs Pritchard.

Russ Joyal (2), Murray Scott and Norm Baker replied for Gulls.

Don Smith set the pace for Chemainus with three goals while Lou Shreenan scored twice and Earl Robinson fired one. Dave Parenteau, Glen McCallum, Gary Strother and Bill Kanezasky scored for Boxers.

Gulls Take Top Spot In Junior 'B' League

Juan de Fuca Gulls assumed first place in the Southern Island Junior "B" Hockey League on Saturday by trampling host Racquet Club Kings, 10-2.

In the other league encounter, visiting Esquimalt A and W squeezed out a 9-8 decision over Lake Cowichan Bairds.

Dave Archibald scored four goals to lead Gulls while Kevin Alexander added three. Other Juan de Fuca scorers were Bruce Armitage, Barry MacLaughlan and Barry Hilton while Bobby Boyd and John Nomland replied for Kings.

Gulls now lead Victoria Nixons by one point and enjoy a game in hand.

Dan O'Connell scored on a power play at 9:45 of the third period to break an 8-8 deadlock and give Esquimalt its win. Dave Lale and Rick Fisher scored twice each for Esquimalt while other singles were counted by Gordie Brooks, Bill Parsons, Kerry Brewster and John Entzminger.

Harold Neuffer scored three times for Bairds while Jim Woodside and Gus Ryan added two each. Mike Ekert fired the single.

JoAnn Takes Miami Event

MIAMI (AP) — Jo Ann Prentice survived a charge by Beth Stone and claimed the $4,500 top prize with a one-stroke victory in the Burdine's Invitational golf tournament Sunday.

Miss Stone missed a two-foot par putt at No. 17 and an eight-foot birdie putt at 18, both of which would have tied Miss Prentice, who finished with four under-par 212.

Pam Higgins, who led the first day of the 54-hole event with a 68 and was co-leader with Miss Prentice with a 140 after Saturday's play, had a two-over-par 74 Sunday to finish third at 214.

Sandra Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., and now a resident of Miami, came in with a 219 total and won $618.

Aussie Clinches Title

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Anders Wangel of Australia clinched the World 420 yachting championship with a second-place finish Sunday in the fifth heat of the six-heat event. Peter Sievewright, also of Australia, won the fifth heat and remained in contention for second place with countryman John Gilder.

England Loses To All Blacks

TWICKENHAM, England (AP) — The All Blacks of New Zealand defeated England 9-0 in a gruelling Rugby Union Match Saturday for the third international victory of their British tour.

The All Blacks led 6-0 at halftime.

Ian Kirkpatrick scored a try for New Zealand in the eighth minute and Joe Karam converted. Britain Williams added a drop goal in the 58th minute.

New Zealand, which had previously beaten Wales and Scotland, will play Ireland and France before returning home.

England slowly came into the game but fullback Stan Doble missed chances with penalty kicks. He was off target with three attempts in the first half.

On the strike of half-time, England won the ball from a scrum right on the New Zealand line, but was crowded out by the All Blacks in a bid for a try.

From a similar position in the second half England got the ball again and this time Warfield dived over the line, but the try was disallowed for a forward pass.

That was a big disappointment for the 50,000 home fans, who were roaring for England as the team showed signs of getting on top. Less than a minute later Williams dropped a superb goal from 35 yards and virtually sealed the match for the All Blacks.

Scots Name Ormond

GLASGOW (CP) — Willie Ormond, manager of St. Johnstone of the Scottish Football League, has been given the job of trying to get Scotland into the 1974 World Cup finals.

Ormond, a former Scottish international, takes over from Tommy Docherty, who now is manager of Manchester United of the English League First Division. Docherty said he was willing to continue as manager of Scotland on a part-time basis, but the Scottish Football Association preferred a fulltime boss.

Scotland made a good start in qualifying rounds in World Cup play under Docherty, beating Denmark twice. However, two tougher games against Czechoslovakia will be played later this year.

Super Loop for Colleges?

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

A super college hockey league embracing top teams from across Canada may become a reality by next season.

Clare Drake, coach of Alberta Golden Bears, said Sunday night that the idea already is under study by Bob Boucher, coach of St. Mary's University Huskies of Halifax, and a meeting is planned soon to discuss his findings.

If a super league becomes a reality, it likely would include Alberta, UBC Thunderbirds, University of Toronto Blues, Loyola College Warriors of Montreal, St. Mary's and possibly three to five additional schools. Laurentian of Sudbury, York of Toronto and University of Sherbrooke all would be candidates.

Purpose of the league would be to upgrade the level of competition among schools that take hockey seriously. Drake felt a schedule of 40 games for each school would be ideal.

"I agree that right now we don't play enough games to develop top hockey players," he said, "but the secret is to play 40 competitive games supplemented by teaching technique in practices."

He feels a super college league would make money.

"If the league is as competitive as it looks, every rink would sell out and you couldbreak the nut financially," he said.

Drake, a master of coaching technique during his 15 seasons guiding the Bears, has 10 Western Canada and two national college titles to his credit.

Sunday his team completely dominated play in registering a 4-1 Canada West Athletic Association victory over University of Victoria Vikings at Memorial Arena.

The score would have been more one-sided if Viking goaltender Murray Finlay hadn't turned in a phenominal effort, kicking out 67 shots as Vikings stayed even at 1-1 until the final nine minutes. The 21-year-old former Cougar blocked 36 shots in blanking Alberta in the second period.

Rick Wyrozub scored twice and Bruce Crawford and Dave Couves once each for Bears while Jim Inglis got the UVic goal.

Saturday at Memorial Arena, Alberta romped to a 15-2 victory with a 66-shot barrage. Couves got four goals, Wyrozub three, Crawford and Marcel St. Arnaud two each and Jerry LeGrandeur, Clarence Wanchulak, Gerry Hornby and Paul St. Cyr one apiece. Bruce Nesbit and Larry Hackman were the marksmen for Vikings, now 0-11 in league play. Alberta is third at 6-2.

In the only other weekend game, Calgary Dinosaurs downed Saskatchewan Huskies 4-1 on goals by Jim Young, Tom Yates, Craig Stewart asd Howie Colborne.

Lorna Lights Vikettes' Fire

Lorna McHattie supplied most of the fire Saturday as University of Victoria Vikettes overpowered University of Alberta Pandas 50-27 in a Canada West University Athletic Association women's basketball game in Edmonton.

Things didn't go quite so smoothly for UVic Vikings in a men's game, also played in Edmonton. Alberta Golden Bears topped Vikings, 69-46.

Miss McHattie pumped in 25 points to lead the Vikettes to a second straight win over the Pandas. UVic won 48-27 Friday.

Vikettes, who used a strong 1-2-2 zone defence to begin strongly and led 29-16 at the intermission, now have a 6-2, won-lost record and hold down third place in the league.

Mike Frisby scored 23 points to lead Bears to a second straight win over Vikings. The UVic men, now 2-6 in the league, lost a 64-56 decision on Friday. Tom Holmes led Vikings with 12 points.

In other CWUAA action Saturday, University of British Columbia Thunderettes trounced visiting Calgary Dinnies 75-28 in a women's game while UBC Thunderbirds humbled Calgary Dinosaurs 75-51 in a men's game at Vancouver.

VIKETTES (50)—Mary Clarkson, Laurie Atkinnon 2, Kathy Auburn 4, Lydia Gledhill 1, Donna Blackstock, Diana Brozuk 4 June Piggott, Linda Braun 4, Edna Ritchie 10, Lorna McHattie 25.

PANDAS (27) — Jeanette Holloway, Evonne Shea 6, Isobelle Piasecki 2, Jan Dieman, Wendy Martin 6, Valerie Kashman 1, Joanne Mortimer, Dianne Chisholm 6, Kathy Moore 4, Deena Mitchell 2.

VIKINGS (46) — Corky Jossul, Dave Tooby 2, Jim Hunter 2, Jim Duddridge 3, Harry Hunter 2, Tom Holmes 12, Brent Mullin 2, Pard Hogeweide 6, Chris Hall 7 Mike Bishop 10.

GOLDEN BEARS (69) — Leigh Goldie 4, Doug Nicholls, Alan Price, Tom Solyom 12, Art Uhl, Wally Tollestrup 8, Bain McMillan 5, Brian Hart 4, Dave Holland, Mike Frisby 23, Steve Panteluk 13, Terry Valeriote.

South's Stars Rise Again As College Curtain Falls

Times News Services

The South won two of three college football bowl games from the North at the weekend.

The North's only victory turned up Sunday in Tampa, Fla., when Louisville quarterback John Madeya flipped a 16-yard scoring pass to Nebraska's Jerry List in the final minutes to produce a 10-6 triumph in the American Bowl all-star game.

The South was superior in the Senior Bowl game at Mobile, Ala., 33-30, and in the Hula Bowl game at Honolulu, 17-3, in Saturday's games.

A 75-yard drive in nine plays pulled the favored North out of a 6-3 deficit with 4:55 left in the game before a crowd of 23,416 at Tampa.

The game not only wrapped up the 31-year college coaching career of Nebraska's Bob Devaney, who coached the North team, but also brought down the curtain on the 1972 college football season.

Auburn kicker Gardnet Jett booted second-half field goals of 44 and 38 yards to put the South ahead 6-3 after John Goerger of Kansas State opened scoring for the North ahead 3-0 with a 32-yarder as the half ended.

At Honolulu, Stanford's Jim Merlo ran eight yards with an intercepted pass and his defensive mates set up 10 more points as the South outsloshed the North in a mud-and-rain dampened Hula Bowl.

Recovered fumbles set up the South's other scoring drives—a 40-yard field goal by Mark Williams of Rice and a three-yard touchdown dive by Southern Cal's Sam Cunningham.

Chuck Foreman of Miami scored one major and rushed for more than 150 yards to emerge as the most valuable player in the Senior Bowl. Florida State's Barry Smith caught two touchdown passes to provide the South's additional sock at Mobile.

The South led 30-13 at one stage but the North, taking advantage of a game rule allowing a team nine points behind to receive all kickoffs, closed the gap in the final seven minutes on two 48-yard touchdown passes by Ron Jaworski of Youngstown State, the first to Daryl Stingley of Purdue with 6:54 left and the other to Marty Shuford of Arizona with 1:17 left.

Dead Heat Climaxes Long Run

VANCOUVER — Ken French of the University of British Columbia and Tom Howard, an unattached harrier, finished in a dead heat for first place Saturday in the third event of the six-race B.C. Cross Country League series at Stanley Park.

French and Howard finished in 33 minutes, four seconds while Rich Huston of UBC trailed by 13 seconds.

University of Victoria finishers in the 42-man field were John Wheeler (sixth), Jeff Hawker (10th), Jim Thorne (11th), Wally Thorne (16th), Chris Garrett-Petts (17th) and Simon Rogers (22nd).

UBC won the team title with 20 points, UVic was second with 64.

Movie Industry Hosts Founder

ZUKOR
. . . 'Ford' of films

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It was his birthday, and Adolph Zukor sat in the unaccustomed spotlight as the movie stars he made famous rose and applauded the achievements of his 100 years.

Zukor — the man most historians claim was the Henry Ford of the movies, the man who founded mass production of motion pictures — was saluted Sunday night on his 100th birthday by the film industry which he founded.

The star-studded gathering included salutes from Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour and Diana Ross.

Zukor, a wispy but alert centenarian, came on at the closing and told the audience: "I'm thrilled to be here. . . . I'm hoping the picture business will continue to do well."

Except for Samuel Goldwyn, Zukor is the last remaining link to the beginning of the film industry. He was born in Ricse, Hungary, on Jan. 7, 1873, and came to the United States at the age of 16 with $25 sewn in his clothing. His first job in a fur store brought him a weekly salary of $2.

Within four years, he had learned English at night school and was operating his own fur business in Chicago. Returning to New York, he invested in penny arcades which showed travel pictures to patrons who sat in railway cars.

"But that didn't work because there were not enough pictures to make changes every two weeks," Zukor recalled, "so we had to keep repeating."

"The next step was store shows or nickelodeons."

He continued expanding the infant business, plunging with the four-reel Queen Elizabeth starring Sarah Bernhardt. It was the first full-length, prestige film made in the U.S.

In 1912, Zukor formed Famous Players and began making movies starring stage favorites. The company became Paramount; and, during the 1920s, Zukor expanded it rapidly, buying up huge theatre chains and building a film factory.

HAD MANY STARS

Zukor steered Paramount through the Depression, when the company lapsed into bankruptcy, and into the prosperous 1930s and 1940s. Among his stars: Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Alan Ladd, Marlene Dietrich, Gary Cooper, the Marx Brothers, Mae West, Cary Grant, William Holden, Ray Milland, Betty Hutton.

He was well paid for his services. In 1929, Zukor received a salary of $130,000 and a bonus of $757,000.

Zukor remained active in Paramount until his 80s. Even with the sale of the company to Gulf and Western Industries in 1966, he remained board chairman emeritus.

His years have brought failing eyesight and hearing, but his mind remains alert.

Shelford Hired as Clerk

Former provincial agriculture minister Cyril Shelford has been hired as municipal clerk for the village of Fort St. James, in north-central British Columbia.

Shelford has been unemployed for the last four months — since Social Credit took a beating from the NDP in the Aug. 30 provincial election and he lost his Omenica seat.

He said he took the clerk's job out of financial necessity.

"I lost money all through politics and won't be eligible for a minister's pension for another four years," he said.

The 51-year-old former minister said he spent most of his personal savings during the four years of 1959-1963. During that period, before joining the cabinet, he attended hearings of a provincial royal commission on gasoline prices to press his case for one price system in all parts of the province.

He estimated he spent about $5,000 out of his own pocket during the gasoline price enquiry. He was first elected an MLA in 1952 and was named agriculture minister in 1968.

Shelford said he tried unsuccessfully for several jobs in industry before deciding to accept the position here.

"I guess I'm too political for people to touch."

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Curtis Belcher Jr., a criminology professor at Jefferson State Junior College, is learning about crime first hand. He was robbed recently for the fifth time.

"Things are getting pretty bad," Belcher said after two bandits held up a barbeque restaurant he owns.

Another of his businesses was robbed recently and he has lost a house trailer and two motorcycles to thieves.

HAMILTON — Constable Alfred Coulen thought he had the situation well in hand Saturday when he handcuffed a robbery suspect to the front door of a cigar store and set out in pursuit of a second thief.

After catching the second man, he returned to the cigar store. The door handle was missing and so was the handcuffed suspect.

HOUSTON (AP) — James A. Lovell Jr., the world's most experienced spaceman, announced he is retiring March 1 from the space agency and from the navy to become an executive with a Houston corporation.

Lovell, 44, will become senior executive vice-president of Bay Houston Towing Co.

BARNSLEY, England — Michael Morgan, 30, and Dennis Cutler, 40, said they will make a 2,500' parachute jump from a plane onto an airfield Thursday on the English East Coast to decide which of them takes a carnival vacation next month in Rio de Janeiro.

The one who lands closest to his own car on the airfield will take the $5,875 vacation trip which the garage they own won in a sales competition.

NEW YORK — Actress Melina Mercouri took part in a demonstration Sunday in front of the Greek consulate here. The group shouted slogans and tried to present a letter the Greek vice premier demanding the release of political prisoners in Greece.

Stylianos Patanos, vice premier and minister of interior affairs visiting the United States for the funeral of Harry Truman, was not at the consulate and the protestors had to settle for stuffing the letter under the door.

EDMONTON (CP) — A baby was sent to jail here Friday.

Senior provincial judge Carl Rolf sentenced a woman on welfare to one day in jail after she was caught shoplifting.

Crown prosecutor Steven Koval noted an arrest sheet that said the baby had been with her mother while she was shoplifting.

"Where is your baby now?" he asked.

The woman told Koval the baby was at the back of the courtroom and Koval instructed her to take the baby into the cell.

Judge Rolf explained to the court that a one-day sentence usually means simply booking in and booking out.

Mother and child left the jail almost immediately.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Glenn W. Turner, a Florida entrepreneur, has become president of Lilac Time Inc., a small perfume company that he and his wife acquired.

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, without giving a reason, has suspended the trading of Lilac Time stock through Jan. 14.

Other Turner enterprises include the Koscot Interplanetary cosmetics business and the Dare to be Great self-improvement program.

RISHON LEZION, Isrfael — Police said Sunday that Rachel Ohiyon, 70 died of injuries suffered when a burial society truck backed into her at a cemetery.

ANNE IN LOVE, PAPER CLAIMS

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne and cavalry Lieut. Mark Phillips are in love, but royal protocal has forced them to remain silent, a close friend of Phillips said today.

The unidentified source is quoted in the mass-circulation Sun newspaper as saying the couple can say nothing until the Royal Family decides a statement should be made.

"It takes a very strong love to survive in such a situation under these pressures," the friend said.

Phillips, 24, has persistently denied rumors that have buzzed around Britain for weeks that he and the 22-year-old princess will become engaged.

But the couple have been seen regularly together. Phillips has entertained the blonde princess at his wealthy family's 16th-century Wiltshire farm several times and has tiwce been a weekend guest at the Royal Family's 20,000-acre Sandringham estate.

They rode together at Sandringham during the weekend. Phillips left for West Germany Sunday with his regiment, the Queen's Dragoon Guards, to begin a two-year tour of duty.

Although Phillips is expected make periodic trips to Britain, the princess has a full schedule ahead, including an official tour to North Africa.

The Sun quotes Phillips's friend as saying the officer, member of Britain's gold medal equestrian team at the Munich Olympics, "must wait patiently for the Royal Family to make the first move before making any public statements himself" about the reported romance.

Any royal statement concerning the couple would likely announce an engagement.

The friend is quoted as saying:

"He (Phillips) can never betray by any gesture, either in private or in public, what his true feelings are.

"In this sort of unreal situation, a romance that would normally blossom into marriage is conducted in a goldfish-bowl atmosphere."

Zoo Animals Die

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Animals in the zoo here have been given antibiotics and the zoo is closed to visitors after 21 animals and some vultures were found dead in their cages. Sources said it was possible the animals had eaten spoiled meat. Among the dead were five pumas, eight monkeys and a bear.

Greenhouse Air Already Scented

An amateur's greenhouse from which frost is excluded will even now be showing signs of spring gaiety. During brief wintry spells we enjoy every minute spent in these retreats.

As experience grows, other plants will be added to the hardy spring bulbs showing flower buds but now it is usually the narcissi which are coming to the point of bud color. If you move the pots from the sunny part of the bench to one where afternoon sun does not reach them, the flowers will last longer.

Remember to give water carefully so that none is spilled, for a frost-free greenhouse has a night temperature around 40 degs. F. and high humidity is not desirable. Watering must be done before noon to reduce condensation on the inside of the glass or plastic at sight when temperatures drop.

Hyacinths will be adding their perfume to the greenhouse air, and winter crocuses in low flat pans open wide on sunny benches.

Notice how they close each day as daylight decreases or even when clouds come over the sun momentarily. They last for two or three weeks under the darker conditions. Notice too the delicate perfume of some of the gold and yellow winter crocuses, and of the exquisite slender Iris reticulata varieties.

Pots of sweet-smelling violets can be grown from plants lifted now from the garden when the soil is not frozen. Keep them for a week in semi-shade until growing nicely, then they will open their small but richly scented flowers to delight everyone entering your greenhouse.

If plants of polyanthus primulas were put into pots back in October, fat clusters of buds will now be visible.

These, like spring bulbs, prefer a cool greenhouse for blooming out of their normal season. They require only the most moderate of shelter from the elements to reach perfection. Heat spoils them, preventing the blooms from reaching full maturity.

Even though you may not have thought of them yet, you can look forward to Anemone coronaria flowers by the end of March. They are three to four-inch, saucer-shaped, and in either red, blue or white. Put a few corms into shallow pots or sandy compost; give a rooting period of three or four weeks under the bench; then as the lacy leaves emerge, bring them to the sunny bench top.

Provide no fertilizer to any of these plants until flowering is over. Then you need to rebuild the bulbs or corms for later use in the open garden beds.

Use fresh ones each year for greenhouse flowering. The used bulbs will recover if cared for in the pots until late April. Then transfer to the garden from the pots, continuing watering until the leaves become yellow.

Flower perfume is especially prized in winter. The amateur's greenhouse is the ideal place to find it.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

There is the anecdote of the two experts whose bidding had gone: one heart, one spade — two hearts, two spades — three hearts, three spades — four hearts, four spades. The four-spade contract suffered a three-trick set. Had the hand been played at hearts, eight tricks were all that could have been made.

The spade bidder apologized to his partner, explaining: "I wouldn't have kept on bidding, but the lady on my right inadvertently showed me her hand, and I knew where every card was."

"Do you think I'm blind?" asked the heart bidder.

An expert who usually plays as though he possesses E.S.P. and knows the location of every high card (without peeking) is Pietro Forquet, of the famous Italian Blue Team. Here is an example of Forquet in action: North-South vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ K Q 5
♡ K 9 6
◊ 7 5 4 3
♣ Q 6 3

WEST
♠ 10 9 8 7
♡ A 10 7 3
◊ J 9 8
♣ J 5

EAST
♠ 6 4 3 2
♡ Q 8 4
◊ 10 2
♣ A 9 7 4

SOUTH
♡ J 5 2
◊ A K Q 6
♣ K 10 8 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♡	Pass
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

Forquet's one-club opening showed at least 17 high-card points. North's one-heart response denoted a minimum of 6 points. The rest of the bidding was natural.

West's spade opening was taken by Forquet's ace, after which the ace and king of diamonds were cashed. When both opponents followed suit, four diamond winners now became a certainty.

At this point, most experts would have led a club to dummy's queen, which would have been captured by East's ace. Upon winning East's spade return with the board's queen, another club would be led, with South's ten being finessed. West's jack would take this trick, and a spade would be returned. South would now have to sweat out the fulfilment of his contract.

But Forquet evidently had a feeling about the jack of clubs being in the West hand. So he "listened to his voices and obeyed them."

After cashing his two top diamonds (at trick two and three), he made the abnormal play of laying down his king of clubs at trick four! East took the king with the ace and continued the attack on the spade suit. The board's queen captured the trick.

The club queen was cashed next, felling West's jack. Dummy's last club was then led, South's eight-spot being finessed. Eventually Forquet also made the heart king, and scored two overtricks.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Doug was putting up a fence at the end of the lawn. "You planned to have the posts five feet apart," said his wife, coming out to watch. "But you've got them more than that."

"I didn't think you'd notice," Doug chuckled. "But I found I was four posts short, so they had to be seven feet apart to do the same job."

How long would his fence be?

(Answer Tomorrow)

Friday's answer: Normally we use base-10 notation. In base-17, the number twenty-two would be written as 15.

Overpopulation Proves Fatal —Even in Well-Run Utopia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For five years Dr. John Calhoun gave his mouse colony the best of everthing — plenty of food, perpetual fair weather and freedom from both disease and natural enemies.

But this mouse utopia is now doomed to extinction through a sequence of over-population and social disintegration which Calhoun believes has lessons for humans.

"If man were in a comparable situation of overcrowding, we might anticipate a breakdown of social and intellectual behavior," he said in an interview. Calhoun is a research psychologist specializing in behavioral systems at the U.S. National Institute of Mental Health.

His colony began with four couples living in a space that could comfortably accommodate 160.

As the population grew, Calhoun said, the mice passed through states of rejection by each other, violence, sexual aggression by those rejected, destruction of social order, loss of sexual interest and ultimately passivity.

At one point there were 2,200 mice. On Dec. 5 the last male died, at the human equivalent of 100 years of age, leaving only four females. The five had been living together contentedly but withdrawn from each other.

"That was the trouble with all of them," Calhoun said. "They were too content. If an absence of stress is happiness, to that extent they were happy. Nothing bothered them. They had completely turned inward where every animal was an island unto itself."

He called those five "the beautiful ones" who were so pathological from generations of overcrowding and lack of privacy that "they didn't relate to each other."

Calhoun's experiment is described in the current issue of a British publication, Proceedings of the Royal Society of Medicine, and an international journal, Technological Forecasting and Social Change.

"They reached the behavioral sink of not relating to each other, but just being present in the same area," Calhoun said.

When utopia became nightmare and the colony dwindled in size, the survivors might have returned to normal social relationships, Calhoun said. But by that time they did not know how to relate at all.

The Perfect Marriage Discovered on the Rim

One of the resorts on the northern edge of the Pacific Rim National Park, the one that unashamedly calls itself Pacific Paradise, has had some anonymous scribe prepare a promotional brochure for the place. To begin with, I want to quote from it.

"After the long Indian Summer of September and October," it notes, "come the awe-inspiring winter storms when the ocean, in all its majestic fury, hurls its might against the coastline,"

Again: "The hard-packed sand and miles of enchanting ocean front compete with the ever-pounding surf (Nature's Orchestra) permit easy strolling beside the frollicking waves. Unique rock formations hewn by the tide throughout the ages and continually washed by the pounding surf, pools of miniature sea-life and many other 'Wonders of the Living Sea' form a few of the inspiring beauties of Nature, majestically and enchantically (sic) posed to enrapture the artist."

And again: ". . . a veritable haven of quiet splendor made vibrantly alive by the spectacular and ever-restless sea."

As a long-time student of over-rich and over-ripe prose you might think I was quoting these descriptive snippets with an unbecoming sneer. Fact is I am totally in sympathy with the guy what wrote them and if he hadn't I might have. It is a part of the world sure to bring out the romantic in any man and we hack writers simply run amok.

My wife and I are just back from four happy days on that wild, wet, wooded, western shore (you see what it does to your writing?) and, unless you go away right now, you'll have to hear about it. I want to tell you particularly about Old John Svoboda, one of nature's noblemen, who helped make this visit memorable.

We'd a small, snug cottage with windows looking out at the angry grey-green combers and flying spindrift of the Pacific, a kitchen in anticipation of a feed of Dungeness crab (that's where Old John came in) and a fireplace in which we burned the driftwood bark, enough of which is piled upon that beach to keep a fire going for eternity. At night a lighthouse on a wave-beseiged island off Cox's Bay threw a beam that lit our bedroom in methodical flashes that seemed eerily in rhythm with the rain drumming on the roof. Oh, it was fine!

The weather over there is totally unpredictable. Westward from Port Alberni over the 60-odd miles of blacktop to that point where you turn sharp left for Ucluelet or sharp right for Tofino it was wet snow all the way, the road in such deep slush that we left a massive rooster-tail in our wake. Homeward-bound it was through a lashing wind and rain storm with newly-formed waterfalls cascading across the road, so daunting that when we came out of it at Alberni my wife sighed, "At last — now I can stop this tuneless whistling."

Yet one whole day on the beach was spent without a cloud in the wide sky, not even the whisper of a breeze, the sun so warm that when I went down to the ridged, swept tidal flats to hit some golf balls with a sand wedge I was comfortable in shirt sleeves. The next day was pure Irish, my favorite kind of day with a grey overcast and a barely perceptible mist, ideal for the hike we made through the rain forest.

I am immensely, mysteriously, drawn to the place partly because of this unpredictability, but more, I suppose, because of the feeling of standing on an outermost rim of a continent. I am totally in disagreement with my naturalist friend Elton Anderson and with Recreation and Conservation Minister Bob Williams that the name should be changed. Pacific Rim seems to me a perfectly descriptive and evocative name for it.

Old John Svoboda — "Old John" to distinguish him from "Young John" — simply added a perfect human dimension to this rugged world of sea, wind and sky.

A certain panic had set in when we found that the crab fishermen of Tofino had been staying in port for the holidays and it appeared likely that The Dungeness Orgy, a West Coast ritual with us going back 25 years or more, was not to be. "Your only hope," we were told time and again, "is to find Old John."

Though they'd said he might be found anywhere else, we located Old John at his handsome bungalow looking over the inner bay of Tofino. He is Czechoslovakian-born, 70 years of age and it's been a long, hard road to this place on the Pacific shore, a saga I want to write one day.

Old John not only invited us in to meet his charming wife and to partake of some appropriate spirits for a cold winter's night, but provided us with 14 enormous Dungeness crabs and a generous slab of smoked salmon.

I'd like to, but I can't claim it was a "discovery." That honor goes to one Caroline Bates, the roving reporter of Gourmet, the Magazine of Good Living, who somehow found the Svobodas last summer and wrote: "Smoked salmon as I've never eaten it before and probably never will eat it again . . . the sides of salmon that emerge from the Svobodas' smokehouse have a buttery richness and an exquisite flavor."

Well, then, it was off to our wee cottage by the surf and the love's labor of cooking up those great crabs and then, with cold Heineken lager, a truly disgusting feed before our driftwood fire of many colors.

"We do have the perfect marriage, don't we?" my wife was moved to remark at the conclusion of this memorable feast.

"How so?" I asked.

"Well," said she, "I like the hearts of the crabs and you like the claws. What could be more perfect?"

HOME IN RUINS was discovered by 80-year-old Paul Dupuis whose 14-foot trailer at 3433 Luxton was destroyed Saturday by an explosion believed caused by a gas leak from a propane furnace. Dupuis was away from his home at the time of the blast. Damage is estimated at $4,000.

Schools Strike Closer

By
ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A union spokesman said today there is "every possibility of a strike" by blue collar workers against the Greater Victoria School District.

Alex Markides, staff representative in Victoria for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said 72-hour strike notice went into the mail this morning.

This, together with mediation officer Clark Gilmour turning in his report today or Tuesday, would leave CUPE Local 382 free to strike after Thursday morning.

Sig Dietze, director of facilities and school support, said today he thinks most schools will be able to stay open if there is a strike.

"We will try our utmost to keep the schools going," he said. "It depends on the heating system."

Some schools with old boilers require manual operation, but other heating systems are automatic, he said. "We think we can handle them with supervisors," he said.

More Talks Possible

But no decision has been made on which school will be open or closed because strike notice had not been received and there might be further negotiations, he said.

If there is a strike, teachers will report to work as normal, Bob Mitchell, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association, said today.

He said this had been discussed between the GVTA and CUPE.

"We will cross picket lines and report for work. We will not perform duties normally done by striking employees, nor will we expect students to do so," he said.

The Greater Victoria School District, with 54 schools and 30,878 students, is the second largest in British Columbia. CUPE Local 382 represents 269 janitors, groundsmen, tradesmen and laborers.

Gilmour met both sides in day-long negotiations Friday and Saturday.

Today, Markides said there was "no meeting of the minds. The areas of dispute are sufficiently far apart that continuation of the talks would not resolve anything."

Fair Hearings Sought

He said the major issues are:

—Work loads for janitors;

—Grievance procedure "there has to be some different wording to ensure an individual has a fair hearing;"

—Female janitors must be paid the same hourly wage as male janitors if they are doing the same work;

—A "number" of smaller items which are "difficult to explain but very important to individuals." One of them is consecutive graveyard shifts.

On wages, where the union has sought a raise of $1 an hour in a one-year contract plus some adjustments, Markides said "really, I suppose, wages could be solved quite easily. The other points are far more important."

The school district has offered seven per cent in a one-year contract, which comes out at 25 cents an hour on the lowest pay rates but more on higher ones.

Janitors and laborers, under the agreement which expired Dec. 31, earn $627 a month and electricians earn $899 a month.

Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board, declined comment today until the mediator's report has been officially received and until the strike notice arrives.

Hearing Rejects Press

A "no publication" order was issued today at the opening of a preliminary hearing of a heroin conspiracy charge.

Judge F. S. Green agreed to the defence council motion to disallow any press coverage.

Five people are involved in the two count charge of conspiracy to traffic in narcotics and conspiracy to possess narcotics for the purpose of trafficking.

The accused are Daniel Hadden, 57, of 1018 Oliphant; Michael Kincses, 27, of 1414 Hillside; Wendy Dance, 25, of 2321 Cook; Sharon Dannenberg, 28, of 425 Quebec; and Robert Langer, 30, of 1414 Hillside.

The five were arrested Oct. 26 by an RCMP drug squad. A total of 400 capsules, or one ounce of heroin with a street value of about $8,000 was seized.

Five lawyers are defending the accused: Dorothy Fetterley for Hadden, Robin Dalziel for Dannenberg, Douglas Macfarlane and David Lysson for Langer and Robert Price for Kincses and Dance.

Prosecuting is Cecil Branson.

The preliminary trial is expected to last four to five days. A special section of the provincial court has been set up at the Law Courts on Burdett Ave.

Report Readied

The report of a three-man board of reference into the dismissal of former Campbell River High School principal John Young is still being prepared by board chairman B. J. B. Morahan and is not expected to be released for several days.

A secretary in Morahan's office said today he is at work on the report. When it is finished, Education Minister Eileen Dailly will be informed of the findings along with the affected parties. The report will then be released to the press.

SPEC Leaders 'Irresponsible'

The leadership of SPEC has been "petulant and irresponsible" in their attacks on the Pollution Control Branch, PCB spokesman James McCrossan said today.

"I think SPEC should hold an inquiry into their leadership," McCrossan added, in commenting on criticisms of PCB's public inquiries leveled Sunday by SPEC executive-president Mickey Rockwell of Vancouver.

Rockwell responded to a question about SPEC's possible participation in a public inquiry into pollution control technology for municipal sewage and garbage disposal to be held in Victoria next April by calling the PCB probe "a sham of a procedure."

He said the Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society has officially boycotted the PCB's public inquiries because the terms of reference are too restrictive and their outcomes are "pre-determined by the director of the branch."

"The terms of reference for the hearings state only 'relevant technical information' will be accepted before the hearings," Rockwell said. "The PCB then goes through the exercise and comes up with exactly what the director wants."

"He (Rockwell) has not done his homework," McCrossan charged today.

"The terms of reference of the inquiries are purely technical because that is the function of the Pollution Control Branch according to the act (Pollution Control Act).

"The cabinet-level Environment and Land Use Committee holds hearings on the far wider environmental questions," he said, "while the branch has to be restricted to technical matters."

$2M Federal Share

A federal loan of $2 million is standing in the wings for a Capital Regional District project to clean up pollution at Clover Point in the city and McMicking Point in Oak Bay.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation announced in Ottawa today the loan has been approved and, under its terms, repayment of part of the loan for work completed by March 31, 1975, could amount to a saving of more than $500,000.

Dennis Young, executive director of the regional district, said each year the district submits to CMHC estimates of expenditures for the current year.

"We anticipate getting approval from the Pollution Control Branch for the Clover-McMicking work sometime in 1973 and we are all set to call working drawings as soon as we get PCB approval," he said.

"The $2 million is the CMHC share of what we hope to spend in 1973."

Ridding Harbor Of 'Buts'

Victoria's Inner Harbor probably has the potential to be "one of the most attractive areas in North America," says the man who will play a major role in trying to realize that potential.

Arthur Erickson, Canada's most widely acclaimed architect, was commenting from Vancouver today on his assignment to prepare an over-all plan for the integrated redevelopment of the Inner Harbor.

Erickson was absent on holiday last month when the $35,000 commission was approved by city council, but he said today he is pleased and excited at the challenge facing him.

"Anyone coming into the Inner Harbor now for the first time is frustrated. He or she says 'This is beautiful, but . . .' The big job is going to be getting rid of some of those buts," he said.

Precise terms of reference for his contribution are still being worked out with Victoria planning officials, and until these are completed Erickson is reluctant to discuss his own preliminary thoughts on how he will approach the task.

But he said he expects the job to take "several months" and involve close consultation with the city's officials and with developers of privately-owned sites around the harbor.

Mayor Peter Pollen said last month Erickson would be asked to prepare "conceptual plans" in the framework of an over-all plan for the Inner Harbor, including privately developed sites as well as those which will be undertaken by the public sector.

Erickson is no stranger to the Victoria scene. Several years ago, he recalled, he was commissioned by the Capital Region Planning Board to study the redevelopment potential of the city core's older section.

"Those efforts did set the direction for much of the thinking that now exists on the Inner Harbor," he added.

House Fire Set By TV Magnifier

Extreme fire hazard of a television screen-magnifier was demonstrated today by Saanich fire department after the device caused fire in a home Saturday.

Sunlight passing through a plastic lens called a Beam-scope set fire to newsprint in three seconds or less, Chief Harold Gains said.

Firemen took the 18 by 24-inch screen from the home of Mrs. Mary Hawthornthwaite, 456 Dupplin, after it set fire to a baseboard and wall near where it was resting on the floor.

Fire department was called as soon as it was found that the screen was causing smoke which had been detected earlier, and damage was estimated at $50.

Mrs. Hawthornthwaite said her husband, now deceased, bought the screen "at least eight years ago," and it had been used without trouble.

But on Saturday it had been removed from the television set and placed on the floor where noonday sunshine passed through it.

Until then, Mrs. Hawthornthwaite said, "In 41 years I've never had a fire in this house."

Two department store appliance men said they had not seen or heard of the magnifiers for years, but it was believed a number had been peddled in Victoria on a door-to-door basis.

Disenchanted With Unification, Cadets Leave for U.K.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Three local sea cadets and one of their officers left for England today to join the Royal Navy, disenchanted with the effect unification has had on Canada's armed forces.

Senior petty officers with the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps, the cadets are John Coldwell, 17, of 850 Coles; Russ Lazaruk, 18, of 1071 Beverley, and Ron Brain, 18, of 923 Fairfield.

Joining up with them will be Lieut. Maurice Tellier, 21, of 2810 Cedar Hill, who spent seven years with the corps as cadet and officer.

Although none of them like the green uniforms, this is not the main reason they are turning their back on their own country's forces.

Brain explains, "I don't like the green uniforms but I could accept them a little better if the navy's traditions and identity had not been lost. Since unification came in 1967 morale has gone down, as well as discipline."

Brain and the other two cadets have been able to assess the loss of morale since unification through contacts with servicemen at summer training camps they've attended.

Both Brain and Lazaruk can also draw on their fathers' experience.

Brain's father has 32 years' service and Lazaruk's 25 years.

The boys' parents and friends at first wouldn't take them seriously when told of their intentions to join the Royal Navy.

Then they tried to talk them out of it.

"My father had a lot of friends around during the holiday, some of them from the RN. They kept telling me things would be pretty rugged," Coldwell said.

"I admit there are a lot of things we'll have to get adjusted to. We'll have to accept much less pay and a lower standard of living," Brain said.

Tellier said his main reason for "going RN" is to gain the experience of living in other lands and learning to adjust to other people's ways.

He, like the others, doesn't expect any bed of roses. That's one of the reasons they're going.

Speaking for his buddies, Brain said unification of the cadet forces has also had its drawbacks.

In 1972 the defence department issued a proposed green uniform to certain cadets across Canada to get feedback from the cadets.

"When the area cadet officer visited our petty officers' mess and asked us how we felt about them only one out of 12 was in favor," he said.

"You can be proud of wearing a round rig but when you're all dressed the same, what do you have? In the RCN when a man got his hook and became a leading seaman he was something. Now, he becomes a corporal just one of many doing their jobs."

The cadets said naval traditions are also being squeezed out of the cadet training syllabus.

Coldwell said, "We carry out much the same training but now there's nothing taught about the beginning of the RCN, no looking back at tradition. We were also taught the significance of the different parts of our uniform, how they came into being. That's all gone."

The four hope to sign up for a three-year hitch with the RN on arrival in London. If Tellier doesn't get a commission, he said he'll be content to sign on as a seaman with the rest.

Although they're joining the RN in search of the intangibles they feel Canada's navy has lost, all four intend to return to Victoria.

"I want to come back and settle here — it's a good place with good people," Brain said.

He has one other ambition:

"I want to come back as an officer in Rainbow. This is my corps and this is where I'd like to return."

Now that the holiday season is behind us, clubs and societies are getting back into a regular routine.

Meetings are again scheduled. Projects are being reorganized. Others are up for discussion. Among them some that should, in this year of 1973, take many of these groups (if they are on their toes) into new and exciting fields of voluntary service.

Why do I say that? Because times are changing. In the past 25 years, clubs and organizations have moved from trying to meet acute welfare needs to a position where many of these needs are now met by governments.

Therefore, to meet the needs of their own members and of society today, clubs and organizations must adapt to change.

Some organizations will (if they have not done so already) discontinue long-standing projects and, instead, undertake services not provided or planned for elsewhere.

With critical welfare needs being met by governments, some clubs have already widened their scope to include rehabilitation and preventive welfare services.

Through the years, women's groups in particular, have provided educational services of one kind or another. But, as the report of the royal commission on the status of women tells us, need for these traditional programs has substantially changed and it could be necessary to adopt new programs and techniques.

Family Life

Already included on some club agendas are youth and educational services, family life and cultural enrichment, counselling, occupational and management training and integration of immigrants.

The granting of scholarships and bursaries has also been a popular means of service used by women's groups.

However, thought should perhaps be given to some of those programs, too, in view of the present system of student loans and the greater number of scholarships available.

Revising Plans

Through change, clubs and societies and their provincial and national organizations, might begin to interest their memberships in such wide-ranging subjects as plans for new community centres, safety promotion and housing.

They might also put emphasis on having a well-informed membership in order to be able to participate effectively.

Women especially are looking to clubs and societies to provide a particular kind of participation beyond their reach elsewhere.

Up to now they have been able through such groups to exercise power and influence for social change in many areas.

They intend to continue to exercise that power and influence and if that is not possible in one group they will search for it in another.

Much of the credit for equal pay legislation is due to women's organizations. Estate taxes, jury duty and penal reform are but a few of many other matters on which they have approached governments.

Canada's recent ratification of the International Labor Organization's convention 100, Equal Remuneration for Work of Equal Value, that came immediately after all 10 provinces agreed, can also be attributed to the work of women's groups.

Over the years women and men, through their clubs and organizations have made an impressive contribution. If they wish to maintain that enviable record they must now widen their horizons and as I said at the beginning of this column, adopt projects in new and exciting fields of voluntary service.

Not Easy

The task will not be easy. Indeed, it may become increasingly complex. But the effort must be made.

The scope of voluntary service must be widened. Only in that way will groups whose members, over the years, have given millions of service hours annually through co-operative activities, be able to assume their share of responsibility for meeting the needs of society in today's rapidly changing world.

Dreamers Meet Royalty

LONDON (UPI) — About twice a year Brian Masters finds himself sitting in Buckingham Palace with Queen Elizabeth. They watch television while she knits him a sweater.

Then dinner is announced, and Masters finds he's in jeans and badly unshaven. Getting presentable is a lengthy nightmare. When he finally bursts into the dining room the Queen is eating dessert. "You're too late now," she says coldly. "I couldn't wait."

"I usually wake up feeling tortured with embarrassment," Masters writes in a hilarious new book, the oddest one about Britain's royal family in years.

"Dreams about Her Majesty The Queen and Other Members of The Royal Family," published recently by Blond and Briggs, is just that — hundreds of ordinary peoples' dreams about the Queen and her family.

Apparently there are hordes of such people. As a curiosity, Masters mentioned his recurring dream at a party and found nearly everyone present also had dreamed about royalty. That set him collecting dreams from all over the Commonwealth, and a wildly incongruous lot they are.

One dreamer ran across the whole royal family, dressed to kill, on the London subway. "We are all going to open a fish and chips shop," explained the Queen, "and they thought this would be the quickest way of getting there. The traffic, you know."

Dreamers have seeen the Queen as a lady wrestler pinning a Canadian amazon or a soccer goalkeeper with her handbag over her arm. One found a tiny royal family imprisoned in Queen Mary's dolls' house and ran all over Windsor Castle finding them food. Another helped the Queen Mother when she lost her passport and was penned in a quarantine kennel with 20 of the Queen's dogs.

Masters thinks he knows why crowned heads pop into the dreams of people who would never get near them in waking life.

Dull Routine

"You dream about royalty because exalted, regal figures compensate for the dullness of routine existence," he wrote. "They inject some excitement into your prosaic world."

But there must be a connection with this world. And in Britain nothing is more prosaic than a cup of tea.

"If there is one activity which dominates the royal dreams of England, it is drinking tea," Masters wrote. Nearly half the dreams in his book involve sharing a cuppa with a royal.

Housewives by the score dream of the Queen dropping in unannounced for tea. One found Elizabeth stammering with embarrassment because she'd brought another guest. The dreamer looked out and there, "hiding beside the door, was the Queen Mother," in gum boots, looking very sheepish."

One sleeper visited Buckingham Palace after parliament made it a rooming house in an economy drive. Her majesty was working an expresso coffee machine to keep her hand-shaking arm in shape. "Philip doesn't like coffee," she said, gesturing to her husband in a rocking chair "Surrounded by hundreds of cups of untouched coffee."

In that dream the royal stables were gone, so the Queen kept horses in her bedroom. ("They said it was unhygenic, but I still have a little influence," she said.)

Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon almost always appear in dreams together, Masters said. They "prefer gin to tea." Prince Charles "is very easy to talk to, but is somewhat revolutionary in that he shows no liking for cups of tea."

Princess Anne is usually seen at a party, desperately lonely. A Montreal man dreamed he was assigned as her boyfriend "to whisk her off to a red Indian camp in Northern Ontario, where we could be alone."

Prince Philip "is never harassed or ruffled," even when actress Judi Dench dreamed she could offer him no place to sit but a basin filled with manure. "The prince sat right in, without a murmur,'' she reported. "'Don't worry,' he said, 'we take everything in our stride.'"

Odd Situations

But mostly it's the Queen, in the oddest situations. She's standing under Niagara Falls, muttering about wearing "this ghastly mackintosh" but clapping her tarnished crown atop her rain hat because "one's people expect it of one over here." Or she's a truck driver, sitting on a telephone book, trying to be unrecognized despite her imperial state crown.

All these royal dreams, Masters wrote, are a way of working off hidden personal dissatisfactions.

"Her majesty the Queen," he said, "is unofficial private psychiatrist to a great number of her subjects. She is queen of the British psyche."

Mystery Deaths

LONDON (AP) — More than 2,000 apparently healthy babies under two years old die mysteriously in their cots every year in Britain and doctors are baffled, the man investigating the mystery says.

Charles de Selincourt, chairman of the executive committee of the Foundation for the Study of Infant Deaths, said the babies usually die in their sleep.

Doctors and research workers had ruled out pillow suffocation as the cause of the deaths and now were investigating theories that virus infections, milk allergy, hypersensitivity, vitamin deficiency or respiratory disorders were to blame.

De Selincourt said the babies apparently suffer no pain and die without crying.

But he said investigations are hampered because symptoms develop so rapidly that doctors often have little to go on, even though some of the deaths occur in hospitals.

The mysterious deaths total more than one-third of infant deaths in Britain every year.

The foundation, a charity, was set up in 1971 to promote research into the mystery deaths and to help the dead infants' parents.

New Opera House To Lose Money

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Sydney's new opera house will lose $2.4 milllion a year, chairman Sir Philip Baxter predicted. It is scheduled to open late in 1973.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tuesday, Jan. 9, 1973
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Not so good for attempting to keep secrets. Best now to ride with tide. Means maintain steady pace. Avoid making any promise which you may not be able to fulfill. Aquarius, Scorpio persons are in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't mix friendship and money. Be analytical. Some now make promises they cannot fulfill. Know it and respond accordingly. Accent is on being more realistic about hopes, desires. Close budget loophole.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What appears to be a clear path actually has obstacles. Prepare accordingly. Don't be discouraged by delay. Set your own pace. Taurus, Libra persons play important roles. One in authority makes special request. Fulfill it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Strive to understand one who currently is brooding. Don't cast first stone. Plan for future. Build bridge of friendship. Pisces individual plays key role. Heed inner voice. You will know what to do.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't force issues. You get what you deserve. If you try for more, the price escalates. Accept responsibility. Rewards can be greater than you imagine. Member of opposite sex is serious. Don't play games.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Lie low. Finish rahter than initiate projects. Your judgment, intuition may be slightly off target. Let others, including mate, partner, show their hands. You learn by listening, observing. Legal matter needs attention.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Highlight independence, originality. You make exciting contacts if receptive. Leo could be in picture. Your ability to imprint personal style is highlighted. Refuse to be discouraged by one who sings blues.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your feeling of doubt, suspicion should be heeded. If you don't know what to do, do nothing. Wait and see. Obtain valid hint from Virgo message. One who taught you in past could make reappearance. Analyze motive of one who writes to you.

SAGGITARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can rise above circumstances. Key now is to give yourself a chance. Stop imposing limitations. Look beyond the immediate. Change routine. Socialize. What appears a heavy burden really is temporary. Know it and celebrate!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Postpone trip if possible. What you seek could be close at hand. Relatives now are not apt to give sound advice. Break free. Be your own person. Strive for new experiences. Stop carrying another's burden.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Change now could prevent money loss. Act accordingly. Young person is playing same old tune. Draw line. Refused to be used by one who is cynical. You will understand. Protect self in clinches.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Friend from past makes amends for broken promise. Be a gracious winner. Taurus, Libra persons could be involved. Strive for new start in different direction. Someone may be trying to sell you bill of goods.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you will be more active this year, travelling, expressing yourself. There will be many dealings with persons born under Sagittarius. May will be your most significan month of 1973. In September, long journey is indicated.

FIREPERSON JOINS NAVY

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sharon Holt, like almost any other sailor in the boiler room, wants a tattoo.

"But," she says, "it would have to be a dainty one."

Tattoo or no, 21-year-old Sharon, of Hobbs, N.M., is the first women in the history of the U.S. navy to break into the "black gang" — the group below deck who deals with the valves of a ship's boiler.

Miss Holt enlisted Oct. 6 as an E-1 fireman (fireperson?) recruit. Dressed in dungarees, chambrey shirt and blue garrison hat, she is the only woman in her class of 35 men at Great Lakes Naval Traning Centre.

"After the shock wore off, they treat me like a lady, watch their language and are perfect gentlemen," she said.

Why did she enlist? "I was married once and didn't want to get married again," Miss Holt said. "I worked as a waitress and a car hop and I wanted to make something of myself. I enlisted to get an education and see the world — so far, the navy has given me everything I wanted.

She decided to break the boiler room barrier because "it's something that just opened up to females and I wanted to see if I could do it. I like mechanics . . . I worked on my own car. I like physical work, it's better than sitting behind a desk doing nothing."

Women to Compete In Scotland Yard

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard, Britain's famed police organization, has acknowledged women's rights. Feminine units are being integrated into the regular force, allowing 650 women to compete directly with men for jobs and promotions within the total force of 21,000.

Superstitions Junk

DEAR ABBY: In regard to that lady who felt guilty if she didn't continue to circulate "chain letters," please tell her she should feel guilty if she does. They are against the law and should be turned over to the local postmaster.

Only last week I received a "prayer" chain letter in the mail. It said:

"Trust in the Lord Jesus with all your heart and always acknowledge Him and He will light your way. This prayer has been sent to you to bring you luck. The original copy came from the Holy Land and has been sent around the world 23 times. Make four copies and send them to your friends. You must do this within four days or you will suffer dire consequences. One man broke the chain and on the sixth day he died. On the seventh day he won $50,000, which he was unable to collect."

Such rot!

I am a Presbyterian minister, over 80 years of age. I still preach every Sunday and I believe in prayer, but I broke the chain, and my "four days" are long past and I still feel great!

I shall surely tell my congregation to forward any chain letters to their postmaster and feel repaid for having headed off at least one more piece of superstitious junk.—Harold A. Smith.

Dear Rev. Smith: Thanks. And I'll tell my readers the same.

DEAR ABBY: You have said many times in your column that it is not considered good etiquette to put "No children, please" on wedding reception invitations.

Well, I don't care what you say. If you had to pay a caterer $15 a person you would make sure Mom and Pop didn't bring their six kids along to get a free meal.

Some people have to be told in plain English to leave their kids at home, and I say, "Tell 'em!"—Plain Talker.

Dear Plain: Here is another point of view.

DEAR ABBY: To the lady with four children by her first husband who married a man who had five children by his first wife and was frequently asked, "Are all those children yours?" here is the best reply I've ever heard:

When travelling by train a lady with 11 children was seated just ahead of us. The conductor asked, "Are all these children yours, lady, or is it a picnic?"

She replied, "Yes, they are all mine. And since you asked, it sure ain't no picnic!"—E.W.

Electricity has become essential to our way of life. Without it offices and factories would stand idle, schools and hospitals would cease to function and public transportation would come to a halt. You could not telephone, watch television or use most of your household appliances.

In Canada, the demand for electricity has been growing so fast — about seven per cent a year — that traditional sources can no longer satisfy our needs. Therefore, during the past ten years, nuclear power reactors have been put into operation. In these up-to-date electricity plants, the heat to produce steam comes from the splitting of atoms inside uranium fuel.

The illustrated 16-page booklet Nuclear Power and our Environment in Canada explains the different ways in which electricity is generated and in particular how it is generated with nuclear power. It also points out that nuclear reactors actually reduce pollution.

Pregnancy No Barrier To Completing School

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

School students who get pregnant undoubtedly face a lot of problems, but one they don't face any more is getting thrown out of public school.

A survey of high school principals — all of them men — indicates that pregnant students who want to stay in school have no difficulty in doing so, and the attitude of their fellow students is increasingly tolerant.

The principals point out that pregnant students who stay in school are probably the exception. Many may leave school under another pretext, simply don't continue studies, or have an abortion without the school administration ever knowing.

The Greater Victoria school board has a policy book six inches thick, but nowhere does it decree what should be done with expectant pupils. That leaves it up to the principal.

"In seven years I've never asked a girl to leave because she was pregnant," says Victoria high school principal Duncan Lorimer, typifying the reaction of Greater Victoria's senior principals.

"Very few who do get pregnant stay in school, but it is certainly not because of any policy here. My only concern has been that the girl, her doctor and her mother should be made aware of an element of danger in the four flights of staircases this school is built around."

"I've never had a case of a girl staying right through to the late stages. They may stay six or seven months then work at home or elsewhere by correspondence."

Oak Bay high school principal David Voth said he remembers when the attitude of a girl's fellow students was more cruel — "That's the only word" — than it is now. He said that time was in the 1940s and 50s.

"In 26 years as a school principal I have never dismissed a student for being pregnant," he said. "I think the attitude is that we must not add to the problem by interfering with the student's education."

He said cases of pregnant students staying in school occurred only once or twice in a year, "although to say that was the number of pregnancies that occurred would make a student laugh. We might never hear about many cases."

Mount View high school principal Robert Hunter said such matters were broached between a student and her counsellor and thus was kept in complete confidence. The question of abortion would be a matter for the home, he said.

"Counselling is non-judgmental. It's informational only. The same applies in cases of venereal disease. The counsellor can say what avenues are open for the student. We don't make decisions for the student."

Pregnancy is not something to make an issue of, Hunter said.

Esquimalt principal Roy Temple said there were half a dozen pregnant students continuing studies normally at his school.

Policy is for the student to remain until she has to leave, then to come back to pick up the necessary work, he said.

"The student can come back married or unmarried."

"This kind of thing is kept very personal. I know of no case in which a student was directed to an abortion without parental knowledge."

Temple said he remembers the day when pregnant students were asked to leave school on the grounds that embarrassment might be created in classes.

"In no instance do we now encourage the student to leave," Temple said.

Bruce Hoardley, principal of Reynolds high, said he thought pregnancy in school was a "false issue."

"I know it was raised in the John Young hearings in Campbell River but I don't think it has really been a problem."

He said it was reasonable to find out what principals' policies were, in the absence of board policy.

"We wouldn't pounce on anybody and dismiss them," he said. The matter of abortion was a decision between the individual student and her parents, he said.

Les Isaacson, principal of Cedar Hill junior secondary said he had not had a case of pregnancy emerge at his school, but that his policy was to treat each case "on its merits."

"Students are more tolerant now, even the younger ones. The effect on a pregnant student's peers would not be very great. They'd say she was unlucky," he said.

Claude Campbell, principal of Victoria West elementary school, said he thought pregnancy was unknown in Greater Victoria elementary schools.

INFECTION IMPROVES CHANCES

BOSTON (AP) — Getting a lung infection after lung-cancer surgery appears to improve long-term survival rates, researchers report, and there have been studies to infect cancer patients.

A statistical study done at the Albany Medical Centre Hospital in Albany, N.Y., indicates that lung-cancer patients who develop pulmonary infections in their lungs after surgery have a five-year survival rate, more than twice as high as non-infected patients.

The study, which appears in this week's New England Journal of Medicine, says that the infection phenomenon has been observed in other studies. But the researchers say their data is much better and puts this long-suspected observation on more solid ground.

Dr. Martin F. McKneally said in a telephone interview that research applying the results of the studies to human cancer patients is in progress in Albany. He said the newly-published study by his group was based on hospital statistics and not the results of a planned experiment.

"Now people can experiment and test," McNeally said, "and, as odd as it might sound, we propose to introduce infection at the end of an operation as a form of therapy."

The study said the added protection from recurrent lung cancer evident in the patients who had pulmonary infections may be caused by the body's immune mechanism which fight infections.

The reaction between infection-fighting white corpuscles and the bacteria antigens, or secretions, which create antibodies, may release antibodies and large white cells which inadvertently may destroy residenual tumor cells as they go about their job of fighting the bacterial infection, the researchers said.

Another hypothesis, the study said, is that the body's immune reaction does not destroy inadvertently the residual cancer cells but causes them to expose their specific antigens so the tumor cells can be attacked directly by special antibodies."

The study said the over-all five-year service rate of the 18 patients in the study's "infected" group was 50 per cent, compared with 18 per cent in a contract group of 34 randomly selected cases of non-infected patients.

The increased survival rate of the infected group also compared favorably, the study said, with the over-all 22-per-cent five-year rate of all 411 patients who underwent lung cancer surgery at the hospital between 1952 and 1966, the period on which the study was based.

Best-Seller Sparks Uproar

LONDON (UPI) — In the last 13 months Esther Vilar has been spat on, shouted down, sued, picketed, threatened with bombs and asked by a delegation of Englishwomen to leave the country.

She also has appeared on dozens of television programs, been invited to make a lecture tour of American colleges and earned enough money to support herself comfortably for the rest of her life.

All of this because of "The Manipulated Man," a slim volume—written, one critic said, with all the style of a jackhammer — which turns the postulates of women's liberation upside down.

Men Strong

—"Men are strong, intelligent and imaginative; women are weak, dumb and uningenious," she writes.

—"By the age of twelve at the latest, most women have decided to become prostitutes. Or, to put it another way, they have planned a future for themselves which consists of choosing a man and letting him do all the work."

—Men, far from subjugating women, have given them "every opportunity of achieving freedom and if, after all this time, they have not liberated themselves and thrown off their shackles, we can only arrive at one conclusion: that there are, in fact, none to throw off."

She contends that "a cocktail party or the purchase of a new pair of aubergine (eggplant) colored patent-leather boots rates far higher" than sex for a woman, that a woman has children only as "hostages" to keep her husband after she has lost her youth and that any intelligent person can complete the housework for a household of four in two hours a day.

The book came out in West Germany last year. Since then it has sold more than half a million hardcover copies there and appeared in 27 other countries. This month Farrar Straus and Giroux will publish it in the U.S., where Miss Vilar wrote the book.

"I thought America really is the country where men are most manipulated by women," she said in an interview. "So I thought if I would write the book I had to go there. I got so furious I stayed and wrote the book there" — in a Greenwich Village rooming house.

The author, a slight, delicate-featured woman of 37 who has a medical degree and speaks four languages, admits she set out to write a best seller. But she says she is amazed at the intense reaction to her book.

In West Germany, where she lives near Munich, she was deluged with abusive letters, spat on in the street and sued by 120 Dusseldorf housewives who charged that she had represented them as whores.

Anonymous bomb threats forced Swiss police to search the shelves of a bookshop where she was signing autographs. In Norway female militants invaded the office of her publisher, destroying furniture and painting anti-Vilar slogans on the walls.

In London women picketed a reading of the book with signs saying "Vilar, go home" and a delegation of hatted and gloved, middle-aged matrons knocked on her hotel room door to deliver the same message.

The idea from which her book sprang she calls "the principle of pleasure in non-freedom — you don't want to be free. Yon always want to be in a system which gives you rules for your behavior and which tells you if you are successful or not. Women are one way of telling men this."

She believes both men and women are victims of a vicious circle in which men are brought up by women to need to support a wife and women are corrupted by male offers of support. But women are more to blame, she says, because they have a choice and men do not.

Born in Argentina of German refugee parents who separated when she was 3, she worked her way through medical school at the University of Buenos Aires by modeling leather goods and with an assembly line job in a thermometer factory.

In 1960 she went to Germany on a scholarship to study psychology and sociology and work as a doctor in a Bavarian hospital. After a year she gave up medicine to concentrate on writing.

Right Thing

The same year she married Klaus Wagn, a German writer, and they had a son, Martin, now 9. "I'm just the same as all the others. I thought marriage was the right thing to do when you're in love," she said.

They continued to live separately, however, and after two years they got a divorce. "It was just a formal thing," she said. "I didn't break with the man, just with the institution.

"We meet every day just as we always have."

Educational TV Drops Wooden-Faced Look

TORONTO (CP) — Educational television has come a long way since wooden-faced teachers stiffly read lectures to an immobile camera.

At the Ontario Educational Communications Authority OECA, the programming is often a kaleidoscope of fast-paced, attention-grabbing scenes, part of shows aimed not only at classrooms but also at the general public.

The current spearhead of OECA's drive for professional, entertaining programs is the planned series The True North, due to be shown in March.

The pilot program won acclaim from newspaper critics and the public at a recent Toronto showing — plus an award at the Hollywood World Television Festival.

Jim Hanley, one of The True North's three directors, says that nowhere else have satire, historical dramatization, soap opera, cartoons, music, historic film and journalistic comment been combined in such a format.

The pilot alternates between cynicism, patriotism, cool analysis, genial humor and nostalgia in examining what Hanley sees as the continuing colonial mentality of Canadians.

He said that many persons who saw the trial broadcast over CICA-TV, the OECA television station in Toronto, thought for at least the first part of the hour-long program that it was anti-American.

"But it isn't. If it's got anything to say, if it's slamming anything, it's slamming Canadians and their attitudes towards these kinds of things" — pollution, export of resources, foreign economic control.

The only restraint was OECA's normal low production budget, but even that was loosened for The True North. Officials said the average cost for each program in the series will be $24,000, compared with $12,000 for an average hour of OECA programming. That makes The True North the most expensive OECA production.

Another top program now in production is Careless Love, a special on venereal disease. Among other revelations in the show will be that the current venereal disease rate in the armed forces is almost as high as during the Second World War.

OECA shows now on the air, on CICA-TV in Toronto or in morning slots on CBC stations elsewhere, include:

—P.L.O., a series of skits on the educational system that manage to portray in only slightly-exaggerated form the absurdities of the school system.

—An Arts 100 university credit course in communications, the hosts a professor and a yellow toad.

—Polka Dot Door, a low-budget show for pre-schoolers that OECA research shows they like more than the U.S. show Sesame Street, whose $9 million annual budget compares with OECA's total budget of $12.8 million. Ninety shows of Polka Dot Door cost $270,000.

Programs range over all topics, as well as problems in other Canadian provinces and other countries.

Now under preparation is a series of videotape programs to train Canadian businessmen in management skills.

OECA's 24 producers — who usually use free-lance film crews — are ranging farther and farther in their productions, making television programs in foreign locations. The United Nations recently invited OECA to make some of the programs in a UN series on ecology and pollution.

In evaluating its programming, OECA relies on its research department, the views of teachers, representations from the public and a special system of advisory councils drawn from the regions of Ontario.

Although all these indicators point to success, OECA chairman T. R. Ide admitted that OECA started out with a fundamental misconception about educational programming:

"The basic philosophical mistake was that we thought that the programs should be largely enrichment to the existing curriculum and not as integral part of the existing curriculum."

Making television an integral part of the curriculum requires educating teachers better in its uses and providing videotapes to them so they can fit television into their schedules instead of trying to adjust the schedules to broadcast times.

The OECA is stepping up its efforts in both these fields, partly prompted by a survey last winter which showed that only 20 per cent of 280 high school teachers interviewed in Toronto had used television in the classroom at least once in a three-month period.

OECA officials apparently still remember fears expressed at its creation in 1970 that it would be a government propaganda agency.

Squares Top Pot Luck

By MARY MOORE

The Christmas party of the Ladies' Guild of St. Johns Chapel in Edmonton took the form of a pot luck supper.

Every guest arrived bearing something swaddled in towels to keep the heat in (it was 17 below zero) or on finest china beautifully arranged. Casseroles were in abundance. One specialty was an oblong pyrex dish of lemon squares. Almost everyone in the party of twenty-four tasted them and I asked the donor for her recipe.

LEMON SQUARES
(9 x 13-inch pan)

Filling: 1½ pkgs. (1 c. plus 2 Tbsp.) commercial lemon pie filling

¾ c. sugar
6 Tbsp. cold water
3 egg yolks
3 c. hot water

Crumb Mixture:

1¼ c. fine soda cracker crumbs
½ c. brown sugar
¾ c. all-purpose flour
1½ c. coconut (desiccated, strip or flake)

Make filling first by mixing lemon pie filling with sugar and cold water. Stir in yolks then hot water and cook stirring until thick and boiling. Cool, stirring once or twice.

Meanwhile mix together all crumb ingredients using pastry blender or your finger tips. Pat two thirds of mixture into 9 x 13-inch ungreased pan, smoothly. (I used pyrex.) Cover evenly with cold lemon filling. Now sprinkle all remaining crumbs over top to cover. Pat them down gently.

Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 20 to 25 minutes or until tinged with gold top and bottom. Chill before cutting into squares.

Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents for each specified recipe.

U.K. Police Hunt Dial-a-Diddle Phantom

LONDON (AP) — Police are on the trail of the phantom who rigged a British city's telephone exchange so that 2,000 students could make calls all over the world for free.

Government investigators traced the secret wiring in the southwest England city of Bath last month.

But they fear the phantom has already wired up other cities for free calls that are costing the post office, which operates Britain's telephone system, a fortune in lost revenue.

And worse, they believe there may be more than one phantom.

"This is a serious national problem," a post office spokesman said. "We are making investigations in other towns all over the country to get to the bottom of this fraud."

The Bath affair was the first "dial a diddle" fraud investigators had cracked.

They found that the Kingshead exchange in the historic city had been illegally wired and that at least 2,000 students at the univeristy there knew about it.

Investigators installed a monitor that enabled them to trace the illegal calls and trap nine students. Each was fined a nominal £2 ($4.70) last week for "dishonestly obtaining electricity from the post office."

But the university's students and many townspeople knew the special dialing code that activated the hookup to obtain an open line to anywhere in the world without the call being registered. Police said the secret circuit was "extensively used."

Waffle Slams Ford

TORONTO (CP) — The government should impose a duty on all imported products which originate from United States companies making use of tax subsidies, the Ontario Waffle executive said Sunday.

The group said in a press release the duty should apply to the Ford Motor Co. which "admitted last spring that it is using DISC (Domestic International Sales Corporations) to export duty-free goods to Canada under the auto pact."

The Waffle executive's demand follows an announcement by the U.S. government that products of the Michelin tire company in Nova Scotia will be subject to a 6.6-per-cent duty because the company is taking advantage of government subsidies.

"What the Nixon administration is asserting is that it will respond to any Canadian initiative to bolster our manufacturing exports," the Waffle group said. "The American government action makes clear that the second Nixon administration is continuing the efforts of the first to shut Canadian manufacturing exports out of the U.S. and thereby making worse an already intolerably high unemployment level in Canada."

The Waffle group called on Ottawa to make public the names of American companies using DISC to subsidize exports to Canada.

The Ontario Waffle Movement for an Independent Socialist Canada was formerly a radical wing of the Ontario New Democratic Party. It was ordered by the party to disband and now is a separate non-political movement supporting nationalism.

Heath Orders Inquiry Into Soaring Beef Prices

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has ordered an urgent study into soaring meat prices that have put Britian's traditional weekend joint of beef out of reach for thousands of families.

As housewives began a beef boycott, Heath asked three investigators Saturday to report on the price boom within days.

Best beef has risen 12 cents a pound in the past week after an upward spiral that began last November.

A pound of sirloin steak now costs up to $3 a pound and is close to continental levels.

Only a few years ago, meat prices in Britian were half those in Western Europe.

The growth in prices has embarrassed the government at the time of Britian's entry into the Common Market after official promises that price levels would take some time to reach continental heights.

Many butchers have balmed the high prices on expanded beef efforts to Britian's Common Market partners. They claim their own profit margins have not changed.

In the U.S., beef, the meat preferred by most Americans, sizzled to new price records last year, and the heat will be turned up more. The cattle supply simply is not keeping up with consumer craving.

Sirloin steak and even once-lowly hamburger now bring 15 to 30 cents a pound more than a year ago. Higher cattle prices are a big reason, but so are rising middleman markups.

Clarence G. Adamy, president of the National Association of Food Chains, was asked where meat prices are going.

"There is little question but what they'll go up," Adams said. "We're praying rather than hoping that they may plateau in February, but that's the most optimistic thing I can say."

An Associated Press survey of supermarket prices and consumer reaction shows despite their grumbling over rising prices, most people pay whatever they must to get beef for part of their weekly menu.

Cattle prices, buoyed by the unflagging consumer demand for red meat, are near record peaks set last summer. The agriculture department and the cattle industry think the price situation, favorable to producers, will continue at least another six months.

"There may be some slacking off in live cattle prices by late winter," says George Spencer of Denver, Colo., an executive vice-president for the American National Cattlemen's Association. "But for all of 1973 we think they'll avarage out at least as good as last year."

The experts say farmers are raising out more beef and pork this year, prompted by the market price outlook, but it will be many months before this new stock reaches the consumer.

Adamy, representing retail food chains, says "it looks good for 1974," but no big increase in beef and pork supplies can be expected for many months.

BEFORE JUDGE

A 37-year-old View Royal man was sent to jail for a total of 22 days by Judge F. S. Green in provincial court Saturday, on two charges of being unlawfully at large.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett suggested that the accused, James Robert Albert, of 1920 Erskine Lane "should be dealt with rather severely by the court" to prevent the new, more lenient bail provisions of the Criminal Code "from collaspsing like a pack of cards."

Albert failed to appear in court Sep. 18 to set a trial date on a charge of care or control of a vehicle while impaird. The accused was arrested Sept 25, and was subsequently released twice, once on his own undertaking and once on his own recognisance.

Green said in passing sentence that Albert had shown "an arrogant defiance of the law," and sentenced him to seven days for being at large on his own undertaking and 15 days on the recognisance charge. Sentences are to run consecutively.

James Rupert Ballendine, 39, of 1941 Bee was fined $350 and had his licence suspended for three months by Green on a charge of impaired driving. Ballendine was arrested by Oak Bay police in a Foul Bay Road apartment early Saturday. A later test showed the accused had a blood-alcohol rading of .23.

The accused had abandoned his vehicle on the 900 block Foul Bay after losing control and striking a utility pole.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me:
thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

PSALM 23.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Disturbances in Body Chemistry

I just read that the illustrious two-time Nobel prize winner, Dr. Linus Pauling has said that there are at least 40 or 50 essential nutrients and perhaps 50,000 enzymes (chemicals that make certain processes possible) in the human body.

Typical of a disease caused by a disturbance of the body chemistry is diabetes, which is due to the lack of a chemical called insulin. Insulin is necessary if we human beings are to utilize sugar properly. Another disturbance of body chemistry is called gout, which comes from the inability of a body to get rid of uric acid.

Today, more and more psychiatrists are coming to believe that a mental disease such as schizophrenia or severe depression, can also be due to the lack of some chemical, or perhaps to the presence of some harmful chemical. Obviously, if a mental disease is due to some chemical abnormality, psychotherapy will not be of much use, so long as the abnormality remains uncorrected.

Pellagra is an illustration of how a disturbance of body chemistry can affect the brain's function. Years ago, when I was young, many people, especially poor people in our southern states, and also in northern Spain and Italy, were mentally disturbed by pellagra, which also attacked the skin.

In the early 1900s, Joseph Goldberger of the U.S. Public Health Service showed that pellagra was produced by a defective diet, and it could be cured by the addition of niacin to the diet. Then, in 1937, Elvehjem showed that nicotinic acid would cure a pellagra-like disease called "black tongue" in dogs. Soon, with a better diet, the disease practically disappeared in America.

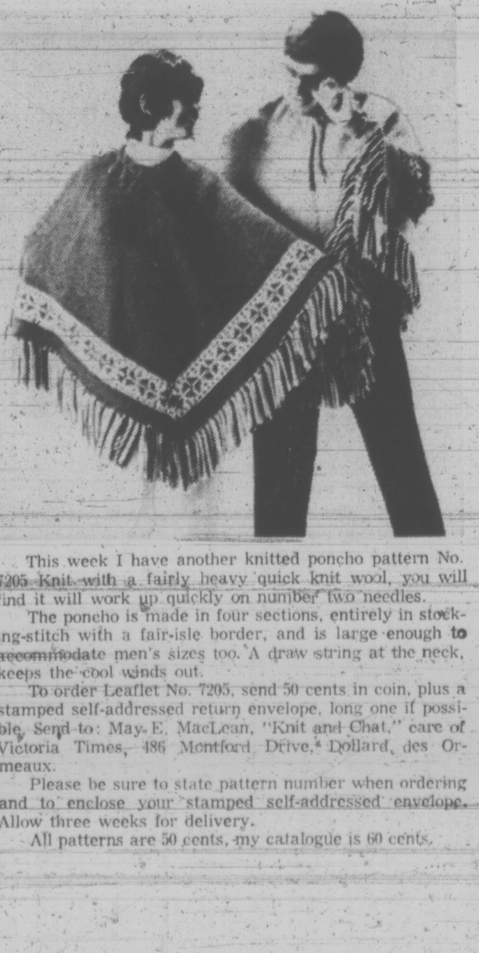
KNIT & CHAT



This week I have another knitted poncho pattern No. 7205 Knit with a fairly heavy quick knit wool, you will find it will work up quickly on number two needles.

The poncho is made in four sections, entirely in stocking-stitch with a fair-isle border, and is large enough to accommodate men's sizes too. A draw string at the neck, keeps the cool winds out.

To order Leaflet No. 7205, send 50 cents in coin, plus a stamped self-addressed return envelope, long one if possible. Send to: May E. MacLean, "Knit and Chat," care of Victoria Times, 486 Montford Drive, Dollard, des Ormeaux.

Please be sure to state pattern number when ordering and to enclose your stamped self-addressed envelope. Allow three weeks for delivery.

All patterns are 50 cents, my catalogue is 60 cents.

CHINESE LAD RESCUED BY CANADIAN

By JOHN BURNS
Special to the Times

PEKING — Chinese officials have credited a young Canadian with saving the life of Chinese boy who fell through the ice covering the moat around the Forbidden City, once the home of China's emperors.

Margaret Cornish, 24, of Toronto, plunged through the ice wearing skates and a heavy overcoat when she went to the aid of the boy, a non-swimmer about four years old.

With panic around her as several other would-be rescuers plunged into the frozen water, Miss Cornish succeeded in guiding the boy into the hands of helpers located on a stretch of firmer ice.

Later with Miss Cornish thawing out in hospital, an official of the Chinese Foreign Ministry telephoned the Canadian embassy with a formal message of thanks for her bravery in saving the child.

He added that he understood the boy had survived the incident without serious injury, along with all the other persons involved.

One of them, Ann Dale-Harris, another secretary at the Embassy, was kept in hospital overnight after receiving stitches for a cut she sustained in her leg when struggling to get out of the water.

"It wasn't so much that I kept him afloat as his padded overcoat," Miss Cornish said, referring to the buoyant cotton-padded coat worn by the boy.

The incident occurred just before dusk, as the two girls skated among a group of Chinese youngsters on home-made ice toboggans.

When the children became excited as they often do when foreigners are around — one of them propelled himself off the firm ice onto a weak patch, which gave way under him.

Alerted by his creams, the two girls rushed to the rescue.

After rescue, a crowd of Chinese pressed their bodies against Miss Cornish to relieve the chill, while others commandeered a bicycle to carry her to the nearest street and to hospital.

Watergate Case Moves to Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate affair, one of the spicier issues of last fall's U.S. presidential election, has finally reached court. Seven men go on trial today on charges of breaking into the Democratic party's national headquarters.

The trial could take up to three months to complete, with the jury sequestered to insulate it from the anticipated glare of publicity. Because of the controversy and high interest in the case 1,000 prospective jurors have been called.

The defendants, including former White House aides and officials of President Nixon's re-election campaign, are charged with breaking into the Democratic national committee's headquarters in Washington's Watergate hotel. Five of the men were captured at gunpoint inside the sixth-floor offices at 4:30 a.m. last June 17 at a time when Democrats were winding up their presidential primary races.

LINKED TO NIXON

The incident immediately became a campaign issue because of the links between the men and the Nixon administration and campaign. But the White House and Republican party have consistently denied any connection with the break-in and the alleged related electronic eavesdropping and theft of documents.

Just how deeply the trial would delve into the political implications of the case remained a mystery, but the possibility continued that witnesses could include some men near the top in the administration and the Republican party.

Congressional attempts to bring some kind of official inquiry into the open before the Nov. 7 presidential election failed, making this trial the first public display of an official investigation.

So far, most of the investigation which has reached the public has been conducted by news media, which have reported allegations that the break-in was part of a wide-scale campaign of political espionage and sabotage against Democrats.

PROBE ORDERED

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield disclosed during the weekend that he has ordered a full-scale Senate investigation, ensuring an investigation into any political areas that might be overlooked by the trial.

In a pre-trial hearing last week, Charles Morgan Jr., a lawyer representing a number of Democratic officials and party employees, said he had information that the government prosecutors will try to show that blackmail, and not politics, was the motive behind the bugging.

CN Breaks Grain Records

EDMONTON (CP) — Delivery of grain by Canadian National Railways to terminal elevators at Thunder Bay, Vancouver and Prince Rupert set records in 1972, the railway announced today.

During the year CN delivered 129,999 carloads of grain from Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba to Thunder Bay, an increase of 10,703 over the previous record set in 1971.

CN grain shipments to Vancouver totalled 63,716 carloads, an increase of 3,525 over 1971, while shipments to Prince Rupert amounted to 10,128 carloads, an increase of 2,592 over the previous year.

VAMPIRE DEFENCE FATAL

STOKE, England (AP) — A fear of vampires caused the death of a 56-year-old pottery worker, a coroner's inquest was told today.

A physician testified that Polish-born Demetrius Myiciura died from choking on a garlic clove which he left in his mouth overnight to keep vampires away.

Police testified that Myiciura's bedroom was littered with salt, pepper and garlic, all traditional anti-vampire precautions.

Driver 'Fair' After Hitting Power Pole

A 19-year-old Langford man is in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital today after losing control of his car and colliding with a utility pole Saturday.

Colwood RCMP said Ron Smith, 2846 Jacklin, was driving north in the 500-block Goldstream when the accident occurred at 9:15 p.m.

Kim Riekki, 561 Hallsor, a passenger, was also taken to hospital where his condition is good. Four other passengers were unharmed.

The car was a "write-off," police said.

WESTERN PARLEY OVERDUE: BARRETT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Dave Barrett of British Columbia said Saturday night the federal government's plan for a conference on Western Canada economic problems is welcome and overdue.

"The federal government is recognizing that there are regional problems that have not had the attention that Ottawa should have been giving them," the premier said on his return from a holiday in Mexico.

Barrett confirmed that government-run car insurance will be a top-priority item when the British Columbia legislature opens its session later this month.

He said a $100,000 advertising campaign by the private insurance companies of the province, challenging the idea of monopoly insurance by government, was good news for newspapers, radio and television.

B.C. Checks Land Plans On Kuper

Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer said today he has members of his staff looking into a proposed development of land on Kuper Island by a Richmond development company.

Lorimer won't comment further on the development plan until he has more information from his staff, which he said would likely take until later this week. Kuper Island is off Ladysmith.

The proposal calls for Dawson Land Co. to take out a 99-year lease on 750 acres of the 1,800-acre island. The company plans to subdivide the land into 450 lots of 1.66 acres each and build cottages on the lots. A marina, golf course, riding stables and general store are also planned, and would be taken over by the Indians of the Penelakut band when qualified personnel are trained.

Ken Smith, deputy minister of municipal affairs, said last week the provincial gov- over Indian land and so would ernment has no jurisdiction not be able to enforce the provincial limit of a minimum subdivision acreage of 10 acres.

Three hundred members of the Penelakut band will vote on the development proposal Jan. 17. If the proposal is approved, work could start as soon as April 1.

The Indian Affairs department apparently approves of the plan for the development and is organizing the vote. Band members are to be employed in all phases of the project with the company providing on-the-job training. The band would get income from rents (about $115 per lot annually) and from the purchase prices of the cottages.

Another proposal for a development facing the Penelakut Indians involves a lease on Tent Island to the provincial parks department. Mrs. Alex James of Chemainus, Penelakut chief, said in September the band council had voted to lease the 78-acre island for a housing development.

Tent Island is a favorite place for yachtsmen as a marine park. It has been leased to the parks department on a year-to-year basis.

LIP Organizer Loses Benefits

A woman who has been refused unemployment insurance benefits because she was organizer of a Local Initiatives Project last year says she will probably have to go on welfare.

Jean Wallace of 536 Niagara says she's been ordered to repay two months of unemployment benefits she received last year after the project ended in October.

And she is now ineligible for unemployment insurance because, as organizer of Island Home Industries, she is considered by the government as an employer.

All other organizers of LIP projects are being made ineligible for unemployment insurance on the same grounds, George Bevis, manager of the local Canada Manpower office, said.

Mrs. Wallace is refusing to repay the benefits. The Unemployment Insurance Commission has offered to pay back the premiums she paid in, but she won't accept the money.

"I maintain that I'm eligible for unemployment benefits. Once I take back the premiums, I waive the rights to any benefits."

Mrs. Wallace, a weaver with a master's degree in fine arts, says she won't be able to get another job, because she's afraid the Unemployment Insurance Commission will garnishee part of her wage to pay the money she owes them.

She said she was never warned that she would not be eligible for unemployment insurance while she worked on the Island Home Industries project for November, 1971, to last October.

Other workers on the project, not considered to be the organizers, are eligible for unemployment benefits.

Ferry Spill Kills 38

POSADAS, Argentina (AP) — A ferryboat returning here from Paraguay capsized in strong winds early today and the coast guard said 38 persons were drowned.

Twenty-two other passengers were rescued.

Most of the victims were Argentines returning from neighboring Encarnacion, Paraguay, the coast guard reported.

Sudden winds of more than 60 miles an hour churned the normally-calm Parana River, separating Paraguay and Argentina, and overturned the Paraguayan ferry Pirysal.

The Parana is about a mile wide between Posadas and Encarnacion, which are about 450 miles north of Buenos Aires.

Fire Help Sought

The Salvation Army is collecting clothing, furniture and kitchen utensils for a family who lost all belongings in a fire that destroyed an old frame house at 3152 Gamma early Saturday.

Sixteen persons, including Mrs. Greta Thomas and her seven children, escaped the fire and are now living at 740 Audley, Saanich.

A pickup for donations can be arranged by calling 386-3295, or donated clothing or furniture can be brought to the Salvation Army's Men's Social and Rehabilitation Centre at 521 Johnson.

Next Week's Y Week

Mayor Peter Pollen will proclaim National "Y" Week in Victoria next Saturday at noon in the Hillside Shopping Mall.

The "Y" Week in Victoria doesn't start until Sunday, but on Saturday the mall will be filled with displays showing activities offered by the Victoria YM-YWCA: Primitive weaving, gymnastics, crochet, trampoline, fitness testing and others.

The displays will be up from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and free guest passes will be handed out for the Y's open house Sunday at its 880 Courtney location.

Open house guests will be invited to participate in recreational gym and swim at the open house, and are invited to come and see Y activities all next week.

50,000 Defence Job Cut

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Richard Nixon's budget for the next year will require the U.S. defence department to eliminate less than 50,000 of its one millon civilian jobs.

Earlier speculation had the Pentagon making much more substantial cuts — of from 100,000 to 150,000 jobs — that would have required massive layoffs in many offices and bases. Insiders at the office of Management and Budget say such cuts never were seriously considered, and that the actual reduction will be less than 5 per cent of DOD's workforce.

Sometime this week the Joint Congressional Committee on Reduction of Federal Expenditures will release November job figures for defence showing 1,028,673 civilians on board. Actual job totals for January will drop to the well below one million, however, primarily because of the hiring freeze imposed several weeks ago by the White House.

Defence probably will be assigned a new mid-year job ceiling of less than 990,000. This would permit some army, navy and air force agencies to continue to reduce personnel, and permit other functions to hire. The hiring and promotion freeze will be lifted partially for some agencies on Jan. 29.

Anatomy for Engineers

DETROIT (UPI) — A group of professors from the University of Michigan's medical school are teaching anatomy to automotive engineers so they can design car interiors that produce the fewest injuries to occupants.

The short course in anatomy is one of the many features the 25,000 engineers attending the week-long Society of Automotive Engineers international conventio nad exposition that opened today.

"Over the past several years, we have seen injury reduction through automotive design — for example, the energy-absorbing steering column and lap and shoulder belts," said Dr. Donald C. Huelke, professor of anatomy at U-M.

"To continue reducing injury severity through vehicle design, those who design the cars must know which interior compents are causing occupant injury," he said. And they must have an understanding of the various types of injuries."

Those attending the day-long course begin by learning some medical technology and go on to see how the human machine is constructed and what happens when it gets smashed in an automobile accident. Over the years, says Huelke, there have been many safety improvements, including prevention of facial injuries from windshields.

"Although generally speaking, facial injuries do not cause death, it is the area of the body of which a person is most conscious," said Dr. William C. Grabb, clinical professor of plastic surgery.

"If a person has a disfiguring facial injury, it can lead to psychological problems later on," he said. "Fortunately, we are seeing fewer and fewer severe facial lacerations due to the use of seat belts and improvements in windshield design."

U.S., European Bankers Tackle Interest Rates

BASEL (AP) — European central bank governors and Arthur Burns, chairman of the United States Federal Reserve Bank, are reported to have discussed concerted action to prevent interest rates on both sides of the Atlantic from climbing.

Burns and other central bankers, however, said they would not comment on their informal talks Sunday.

The governors are scheduled to meet officially today as members of the board of the Bank for International Settlements. As usual, their meeting was preceded by private weekend disucssions.

Since Dec. 22, the Bank of England's minimum lending rate has been at nine per cent, its highest level in 60 years. The U.S. banking industry's interest charge on corporate loans — the prime rate — has reached six per cent.

By injecting funds in their countries' banking systems, for instance through the acquisition of securities under a repurchase agreement, the central banks will jointly try to stop the international interest rise, sources close to the bankers said.

The cenral bankers also discussed with their U.S. colleague problems arising from unwatned dollars they have to buy whenever the exchange rate of the U.S. currency reaches the lower support point fixed in the Smithsonian Agreement, the sources said.

Course in Devil No Medicine Show

NEW YORK (AP) — The subject is devils.

And however appropriate, Fordham University's newest course will not be taught at midnight.

"My colleagues took it perfectly in stride," said the Jesuit teacher, Rev. Robert E. McNally. "What they would not like is if I turn the class into a medicine show."

Heightened interest in demons, witchcraft, demonic possession and devil worship prompted the course, Father McNally said in an interview, adding that the 35 places were filled within a half-hour of registration.

Father McNally, who earned a doctorate in medieval theology from Munich's Ludwig Maximilian University, said the concept of the devil kept arising in his studies.

"That's how I got into it," recalled the theology department chairman, describing "devilogy" as "a peculiar interest of my own over the years."

He said the course would study how much credence could be given to the devil and how much the devil could be demythologized. Such "low-grade superstitions" as ouija boards will be given short shrift, he added.

Instead, he continued, the course will examine the theological, historical, literary and anthropological aspects of how the devil has been viewed, plus the impact satanic concepts have had on mental health.

"We can explain away almost all of the reports of witchcraft, possession and so forth as superstition, faulty observation or psychological quirk," Father McNally said. "The remainder? Well, there is a lot we don't know."

He expressed his belief that there is a force of evil working against mankind's interest. When the evil becomes "very acute," he said, people like to think of a devil in person.

Soviet Jews Seen Awaiting Mass Exodus

TORONTO (CP) — Fifteen to 25 per cent of the Jews in Russia are waiting to leave the country, a spokesman for the B'nai B'rith International Council said Saturday.

Dr. William Korey of New York said as many as 500,000 Jews want to emigrate but added that conservative estimates range from 200,000 to 300,000.

"In spite of the fact that tremendous amounts of world pressure have been brought to bear, the Russian government still indicates it is going to maintain the ransom tax," said Dr. Korey, referring to the education tax imposed on Jews wanting to leave the country.

JEWISH SURVIVAL CRISIS

TORONTO (CP) — A New York rabbi said Sunday night Jews should jettison all ecumenical activities because Christians are "sparing no effort" in trying to convert Jews.

Rabbi Bernard Rosensweig, spiritual leader of Adath Yeshurin Congregation in New York, was delivering a lecture at the Shaarea Tefillah Synagogue here.

"The danger to Jewish survival in the long run has never been greater than it is today," he said.

He said Christian missionary activity combined with Jewish apathy is presenting the Jewish community in North America with an unprecedented challenge.

Three Snipers Terrorize New Orleans: 7 Dead

Times News Services

NEW ORLEANS — Hundreds of heavily-armed police ringed a downtown hotel this morning where two snipers continued a marathon shooting spree which began Sunday morning and has left seven persons dead and 17 injured.

One sniper was slain early by police stationed in a helicopter gunship circling the roof of the hotel. After he fell, police continued to riddle his body with machine-gun fire for a further five minutes.

The dead included three policemen, one of them the city's second-highest police official.

Among the injured were three policemen wounded as the shooting continued early today.

The battle began after three men, identified by police as blacks, stormed into the Downtown Howard Johnson Hotel Sunday morning. They began setting fires to curtains in the hotel rooms, officers said, and then aimed a stream of bullets on firemen and police who appeared on the scene.

One of the gunmen was killed late Sunday by sharpshooters in a police helicopter hovering over the hotel.

Louisiana's Attorney - General William Guste has called for a federal investigation to determine whether the killings were part of a national terrorist conspiracy.

"I am now convinced that there is an underground, national, suicidal group bent on creating terror in America," Guste said after asking the U.S. attorney-general for an investigation. "Their purpose is to cause the people to be dissatisfied, to bring race against race, black against white, young against old, to cause internal national chaos."

Guste said he had been promised a full federal investigation into the slayings.

It was quiet from dawn until nearly noon today, but then sniper fire rang out again. Police marksmen, stationed in surrounding buildings with high-powered rifles, raked the hotel roof where the men were believed still holed up.

The gunshots came a few minutes after a helicopter, with police sharpshooters at the ready, hovered a few feet over the roof and blasted high-velocity tear gas at a stairwell.

Minutes later, police reported gunfire on a patrolman stationed at an intersection several blocks from the hotel.

Israeli, Syrian Tanks Battle

Times News Services

Israel and Syria fought aerial, artillery and tank battles along their border today.

The Israeli military command said in Tel Aviv that its pilots shot down five enemy MiG-21s and raided targets deep inside Syrian territory. An official communique said six Syrian tanks were also destroyed in the ground fighting.

In Cairo, a usually well-informed Egyptian official said President Anwar Sadat has instructed his war minister, Gen. Ahmed Ismail, to plan an Egyptian military response to Israeli air and artillery attacks against Syria.

The renewal of military action being contemplated at the highest level of the Egyptian government would be limited in nature, the source indicated. It could involve Egyptian air strikes at Israeli targets, he suggested.

Syria today urged other Arab countries to "immediately go into battle with Israel and not let Syria stand alone to take the enemy's heavy blows."

In a message that seemed aimed at Syria's federation partners, Libya and Egypt, the broadcast said: "Only the combined efforts of Arab countries can bring an end to Israeli arrogance."

Israel listed its own casualties as one soldier wounded and denied any of its planes or tanks were lost.

In Damascus, a Syrian military spokesman said that three Israeli planes were shot down in the fighting and raids and conceded the loss of three Syrian planes.

Interrupting its regular programs at 4:45 p.m. Damacus Radio quoted the spokesman as saying:

"The fighting between our forces and the Israelis is still going, on with artillery and tanks, along the entire length of the front."

As the two sides blazed away at each other on the ground, the Israeli command said, Israeli planes raided an army camp near Latakia on the northern Syrian coast and hit a radar station on the outskirts of Damascus.

The strike, against a coastal headquarters base, was one of the northernmost since the 1967 Middle East war. The latter, five miles northwest of the Syrian capital, was the closest to Damascus since Oct. 30.

It was the fourth such battle since Israel began its hunter-killer strikes into Syria in retaliation for the massacre of its 11 Olympians in Munich Sept. 5.

Upset Bid By Tories

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield is expected to make his first attempt to topple the minority Liberal government as he speaks today in the eight-day debate on the speech from the throne.

Stanfield, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, New Democrat Leader David Lewis and Social Credit Leader Real Caouette are all scheduled to speak today.

Stanfield, speaking first, will move a motion of non-confidence in the government, a move already doomed by the NDP decision of last week to support the government for the time being.

But, while the 107 Conservatives know they cannot defeat the 109-member Liberal government by themselves, they may hope to come up with a motion that will make the NDP squirm if it declines to support the motion.

ICY WEATHER DIPS AS DEEP AS TEXAS

The whole of Canada and much of the United States, as far south as Texas, is clamped in deep-freeze temperatures with no respite expected for at least 48 hours.

Shortages of natural gas, propane and heating oil in six midwestern states has forced closure of factories, schools, churches and civic buildings.

The Nixon administration today authorized increased imports of heating oil to help meet the emergency. The office of emergency preparedness has increased quotas from the Virgin Islands by 250 million gallons for the January-April period.

Hardest hit are Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Indiana, Colorado and Ohio.

Governor Arthur Link of North Dakota today met with legislative leaders and state officials to draft legislation which will order public facilities, including schools, to cut back on use of heating fuel.

Link said it may be necessary to close facilities on a priority basis.

Billions of bushels of crops may be spoiled in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio. The weather in these states turned from rain in October and November directly to snow and bitter cold in December.

Low temperature records were shattered across Canada on the weekend.

Several records toppled in British Columbia, even two in Victoria, which fared better than most parts of the country.

A 30-year-old record fell Saturday in Victoria when the temperature dipped to 15 degrees, beating out a 21 degree record for Jan. 6, set in 1942.

Sunday it was the same story. The temperature dropped to 15. The coldest temperature for Jan. 7 before Sunday was 26 degrees in 1964.

Oldest record to fall in B.C. Sunday was in Revelstoke, where a reading of 19 below zero broke by two degrees a record set 36 years ago.

Coldest spot in B.C. was Puntzi Mountain where the temperature crashed to 38 below.

Nanaimo reported a low of nine degrees, 16 degrees below the previous record. Vancouver bottomed out at 14 degrees, compared to a previous low of 17 in 1937.

At Prince George it was a chilly 27 below zero, beating

No Dock Talks Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for both sides in the British Columbia dock dispute said Sunday no new talks have been scheduled following a breaking off of negotiations Friday night.

However, spokesmen for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Unions and the B.C. Maritime Employers Association indicated there is no immediate danger of a shutdown of B.C. ports.

BCMEA President Ed Strang said his group will probably want to meet to discuss the situation, but said no arrangements have been made for further negotiations with the union. He said the employers are not considering any form of lockout action.

Mills Holding Back Supplies

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Lumber prices in B.C., which have risen between 30 per cent and 70 per cent in the past year, are expected to rise again this month, according to retailers.

A spokesman for the Vancouver Island Building Suppliers Association said his organization is planning a publicity drive to make the public aware of these increasing costs which he said, are the results of price increases by mills.

He said retailers are reluctant to discuss the increases as individuals because of the great difficulty already being experienced in getting lumber at any prices from mills.

"We don't want to annoy our suppliers," he said. "At the present time we are unable to get any more lumber from them. We believe they are planning to increase prices again before supplying any lumber except for lines where they have a big surplus."

He gave these examples of price increases in the past year in Victoria.

The most popular construction item, he said, is 2 by 4 hemlock mill run studs. These have increased 45 per cent in the past 12 months.

Second most popular construction item is 1 by 8 mill run hemlock shiplap. This is up 77 per cent in the past year.

Third popular item for contractors is 2 by 4 fir number 1 and 2 grades for rafters. These are up 30 per cent.

Most popular retail item for homeowners is the six-foot special 2 by 4 or 1 by 3. These are up between 50 per cent and 70 per cent, depending on dimensions.

Plywood prices are expected to go up 12 per cent.

Over-all, there have been 13 occasions in the past 12 months when mills have instituted across-the-board price increases.

"There was no increase in December and because of past experience we are certain there will be a new price

The Perfect Marriage Discovered on the Rim

One of the resorts on the northern edge of the Pacific Rim National Park, the one that unashamedly calls itself Pacific Paradise, has had some anonymous scribe prepare a promotional brochure for the place. To begin with, I want to quote from it.

"After the long Indian Summer of September and October," it notes, "come the awe-inspiring winter storms when the ocean, in all its majestic fury, hurls its might against the coastline."

Again: "The hard-packed sand and miles of enchanting ocean front compete with the ever-pounding surf (Nature's Orchestra) permit easy strolling beside the frollicking waves. Unique rock formations hewn by the tide throughout the ages and continually washed by the pounding surf, pools of miniature sea-life and many other 'Wonders of the Living Sea' form a few of the inspiring beauties of Nature, majestically and enchantically (sic) posed to enrapture the artist."

And again: ". . . a veritable haven of quiet splendor made vibrantly alive by the spectacular and ever-restless sea."

As a long-time student of over-rich and over-ripe prose you might think I was quoting these descriptive snippets with an unbecoming sneer. Fact is I am totally in sympathy with the guy what wrote them and if he hadn't I might have. It is a part of the world sure to bring out the romantic in any man and we hack writers simply run amok.

My wife and I are just back from four happy days on that wild, wet, wooded, western shore (you see what it does to your writing?) and, unless you go away right now, you'll have to hear about it. I want to tell you particularly about Old John Svoboda, one of nature's noblemen, who helped make this visit memorable.

We'd a small, snug cottage with windows looking out at the angry grey-green combers and flying spindrift of the Pacific, a kitchen in anticipation of a feed of Dungeness crab (that's where Old John came in) and a fireplace in which we burned the driftwood bark, enough of which is piled upon that beach to keep a fire going for eternity. At night a lighthouse on a wave-beseiged island off Cox's Bay threw a beam that lit our bedroom in methodical flashes that seemed eerily in rhythm with the rain drumming on the roof. Oh, it was fine!

The weather over there is totally unpredictable. Westward from Port Alberni over the 60-odd miles of blacktop to that point where you turn sharp left for Ucluelet or sharp right for Tofino it was wet snow all the way, the road in such deep slush that we left a massive rooster-tail in our wake. Homeward-bound it was through a lashing wind and rain storm with newly-formed waterfalls cascading across the road, so daunting that when we came out of it at Alberni my wife sighed, "At last — now I can stop this tuneless whistling."

Yet one whole day on the beach was spent without a cloud in the wide sky, not even the whisper of a breeze, the sun so warm that when I went down to the ridged, swept tidal flats to hit some golf balls with a sand wedge I was comfortable in shirt sleeves. The next day was pure Irish, my favorite kind of day with a grey overcast and a barely perceptible mist, ideal for the hike we made through the rain forest.

I am immensely, mysteriously, drawn to the place partly because of this unpredictability, but more, I suppose, because of the feeling of standing on an outermost rim of a continent. I am totally in disagreement with my naturalist friend Elton Anderson and with Recreation and Conservation Minister Bob Williams that the name should be changed. Pacific Rim seems to me a perfectly descriptive and evocative name for it.

Old John Svoboda — "Old John" to distinguish him from "Young John" — simply added a perfect human dimension to this rugged world of sea, wind and sky.

A certain panic had set in when we found that the crab fishermen of Tofino had been staying in port for the holidays and it appeared likely that The Dungeness Orgy, a West Coast ritual with us going back 25 years or more, was not to be. "Your only hope," we were told time and again, "is to find Old John."

Though they'd said he might be found anywhere else, we located Old John at his handsome bungalow looking over the inner bay of Tofino. He is Czechoslovakian-born, 70 years of age and it's been a long, hard road to this place on the Pacific shore, a saga I want to write one day.

Old John not only invited us in to meet his charming wife and to partake of some appropriate spirits for a cold winter's night, but provided us with 14 enormous Dungeness crabs and a generous slab of smoked salmon.

I'd like to, but I can't claim it was a "discovery." That honor goes to one Caroline Bates, the roving reporter of Gourmet, the Magazine of Good Living, who somehow found the Svobodas last summer and wrote: "Smoked salmon as I've never eaten it before and probably never will eat it again . . . the sides of salmon that emerge from the Svobodas' smokehouse have a buttery richness and an exquisite flavor."

Well, then, it was off to our wee cottage by the surf and the love's labor of cooking up those great crabs and then, with cold Heinken lager, a truly disgusting feed before our driftwood fire of many colors.

"We do have the perfect marriage, don't we?" my wife was moved to remark at the conclusion of this memorable feast.

"How so?" I asked.

"Well," said she, "I like the hearts of the crabs and you like the claws. What could be more perfect?"

HOME IN RUINS was discovered by 80-year-old Paul Dupuis whose 14-foot trailer at 3433 Luxton was destroyed Saturday by an explosion believed caused by a gas leak from a propane furnace. Dupuis was away from his home at the time of the blast. Damage is estimated at $4,000.

Schools Strike Closer

By
ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A union spokesman said today there is "every possibility of a strike" by blue collar workers against the Greater Victoria School District.

Alex Markides, staff representative in Victoria for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said 72-hour strike notice went into the mail this morning.

This, together with mediation officer Clark Gilmour turning in his report today or Tuesday, would leave CUPE Local 382 free to strike after Thursday morning.

Sig Dietze, director of facilities and school support, said today he thinks most schools will be able to stay open if there is a strike.

"We will try our utmost to keep the schools going," he said. "It depends on the heating system."

Some schools with old boilers require manual operation, but other heating systems are automatic, he said. "We think we can handle them with supervisors," he said.

More Talks Possible

But no decision has been made on which school will be open or closed because strike notice had not been received and there might be further negotiations, he said.

If there is a strike, teachers will report to work as normal, Bob Mitchell, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association, said today.

He said this had been discussed between the GVTA and CUPE.

"We will cross picket lines and report for work. We will not perform duties normally done by striking employees, nor will we expect students to do so," he said.

The Greater Victoria School District, with 54 schools and 30,878 students, is the second largest in British Columbia. CUPE Local 382 represents 269 janitors, groundsmen, tradesmen and laborers.

Gilmour met both sides in day-long negotiations Friday and Saturday.

Today, Markides said there was "no meeting of the minds. The areas of dispute are sufficiently far apart that continuation of the talks would not resolve anything."

Fair Hearings Sought

He said the major issues are:

—Work loads for janitors;

—Grievance procedure "there has to be some different wording to ensure an individual has a fair hearing;"

—Female janitors must be paid the same hourly wage as male janitors if they are doing the same work;

—A "number" of smaller items which are "difficult to explain but very important to individuals." One of them is consecutive graveyard shifts.

On wages, where the union has sought a raise of $1 an hour in a one-year contract plus some adjustments, Markides said "really, I suppose, wages could be solved quite easily. The other points are far more important."

The school district has offered seven per cent in a one-year contract, which comes out at 25 cents an hour on the lowest pay rates but more on higher ones.

Janitors and laborers, under the agreement which expired Dec. 31, earn $627 a month and electricians earn $899 a month.

Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board, declined comment today until the mediator's report has been officially received and until the strike notice arrives.

Hearing Rejects Press

A "no publication" order was issued today at the opening of a preliminary hearing of a heroin conspiracy charge.

Judge F. S. Green agreed to the defence council motion to disallow any press coverage.

Five people are involved in the two count charge of conspiracy to traffic in narcotics and conspiracy to possess narcotics for the purpose of trafficking.

The accused are Daniel Hadden, 57, of 1018 Oliphant; Michael Kincses, 27, of 1414 Hillside; Wendy Dance, 25, of 2321 Cook; Sharon Dannenberg, 28, of 425 Quebec; and Robert Langer, 30, of 1414 Hillside.

The five were arrested Oct. 26 by an RCMP drug squad. A total of 400 capsules, or one ounce of heroin with a street value of about $8,000 was seized.

Four lawyers are defending the accused: Dorothy Fetterley for Hadden, Robin Dalziel for Dannenberg, Douglas Macfarlane for Langer and Robert Price for Kincses and Dance.

Prosecuting is Cecil Branson.

The preliminary trial is expected to last four to five days. A special section of the provincial court has been set up at the Law Courts on Burdett Ave.

SPEC Leaders 'Irresponsible'

The leadership of SPEC has been "petulant and irresponsible" in their attacks on the Pollution Control Branch, PCB spokesman James McCrossan said today.

"I think SPEC should hold an inquiry into their leadership," McCrossan added, in commenting on criticisms of PCB's public inquiries leveled Sunday by SPEC executive-president Mickey Rockwell of Vancouver.

Rockwell responded to a question about SPEC's possible participation in a public inquiry into pollution control technology for municipal sewage and garbage disposal to be held in Victoria next April by calling the PCB probe "a sham of a procedure."

He said the Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society has officially boycotted the PCB's public inquiries because the terms of reference are too restrictive and their outcomes are "pre-determined by the director of the branch."

"The terms of reference for the hearings state only 'relevant technical information' will be accepted before the hearings," Rockwell said. "The PCB then goes through the exercise and comes up with exactly what the director wants."

"He (Rockwell) has not done his homework," McCrossan charged today.

"The terms of reference of the inquiries are purely technical because that is the function of the Pollution Control Branch according to the act (Pollution Control Act).

"The cabinet-level Environment and Land Use Committee holds hearings on the far wider environmental questions," he said, "while the branch has to be restricted to technical matters."

Report Readied

The report of a three-man board of reference into the dismissal of former Campbell River High School principal John Young is still being prepared by board chairman B. J. B. Morahan and is not expected to be released for several days.

A secretary in Morahan's office said today he is at work on the report. When it is finished, Education Minister Eileen Dailly will be informed of the findings along with the affected parties. The report will then be released to the press.

$2M Federal Share

A federal loan of $2 million is standing in the wings for a Capital Regional District project to clean up pollution at Clover Point in the city and McMicking Point in Oak Bay.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation announced in Ottawa today the loan has been approved and, under its terms, repayment of part of the loan for work completed by March 31, 1975, could amount to a saving of more than $500,000.

Dennis Young, executive director of the regional district, said each year the district submits to CMHC estimates of expenditures for the current year.

"We anticipate getting approval from the Pollution Control Branch for the Clover-McMicking work sometime in 1973 and we are all set to call working drawings as soon as we get PCB approval," he said.

"The $2 million is the CMHC share of what we hope to spend in 1973."

Ridding Harbor Of 'Buts'

Victoria's Inner Harbor probably has the potential to be "one of the most attractive areas in North America," says the man who will play a major role in trying to realize that potential.

Arthur Erickson, Canada's most widely acclaimed architect, was commenting from Vancouver today on his assignment to prepare an over-all plan for the integrated redevelopment of the Inner Harbor.

Erickson was absent on holiday last month when the $35,000 commission was approved by city council, but he said today he is pleased and excited at the challenge facing him:

"Anyone coming into the Inner Harbor now for the first time is frustrated. He or she says 'This is beautiful, but . . .' The big job is going to be getting rid of some of those buts," he said.

Precise terms of reference for his contribution are still being worked out with Victoria planning officials, and until these are completed Erickson is reluctant to discuss his own preliminary thoughts on how he will approach the task.

But he said he expects the job to take "several months" and involve close consultation with the city's officials and with developers of privately-owned sites around the harbor.

Mayor Peter Pollen said last month Erickson would be asked to prepare "conceptual plans" in the framework of an over-all plan for the Inner Harbor, including privately developed sites as well as those which will be undertaken by the public sector.

Erickson is no stranger to the Victoria scene. Several years ago, he recalled, he was commissioned by the Capital Region Planning Board to study the redevelopment potential of the city core's older section."

"Those efforts did set the direction for much of the thinking that now exists on the Inner Harbor," he added.

House Fire Set By TV Magnifier

Extreme fire hazard of a television screen-magnifier was demonstrated today by Saanich fire department after the device caused fire in a home Saturday.

Sunlight passing through a plastic lens called a Beamscope set fire to newsprint in three seconds or less, Chief Harold Gains said.

Firemen took the 18 by 24-inch screen from the home of Mrs. Mary Hawthornthwaite, 456 Dupplin, after it set fire to a baseboard and wall near where it was resting on the floor.

Fire department was called as soon as it was found that the screen was causing smoke which had been detected earlier, and damage was estimated at $50.

Mrs. Hawthornthwaite said her husband, now deceased, bought the screen "at least eight years ago," and it had been used without trouble.

But on Saturday it had been removed from the television set and placed on the floor where noonday sunshine passed through it.

Until then, Mrs. Hawthornthwaite said, "In 41 years I've never had a fire in this house."

Two department store appliance men said they had not seen or heard of the magnifiers for years, but it was believed a number had been peddled in Victoria on a door-to-door basis.

Disenchanted With Unification, Cadets Leave for U.K.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Three local sea cadets and one of their officers left for England today to join the Royal Navy, disenchanted with the effect unification has had on Canada's armed forces.

Senior petty officers with the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps, the cadets are John Coldwell, 17, of 850 Coles; Russ Lazaruk, 18, of 1071 Beverley, and Ron Brain, 18, of 923 Fairfield.

Joining up with them will be Lieut. Maurice Tellier, 21, of 2810 Cedar Hill, who spent seven years with the corps as cadet and officer.

Although none of them like the green uniforms, this is not the main reason they are turning their back on their own country's forces.

Brain explains, "I don't like the green uniforms but I could accept them a little better if the navy's traditions and identity had not been lost. Since unification came in 1967 morale has gone down, as well as discipline."

Brain and the other two cadets have been able to assess the loss of morale since unification through contacts with servicemen at summer training camps they've attended.

Both Brain and Lazaruk can also draw on their fathers' experience.

Brain's father has 32 years' service and Lazaruk's 25 years.

The boys' parents and friends at first wouldn't take them seriously when told of their intentions to join the Royal Navy.

Then they tried to talk them out of it.

"My father had a lot of friends around during the holiday, some of them from the RN. They kept telling me things would be pretty rugged," Caldwell said.

"I admit there are a lot of things we'll have to get adjusted to. We'll have to accept much less pay and a lower standard of living," Brain said.

Tellier said his main reason for "goin RN" is to gain the experience of living in other lands and learning to adjust to other people's ways.

He, like the others, doesn't expect any bed of roses. That's one of the reasons they're going.

Speaking for his buddies, Brain said unification of the cadet forces has also had its drawbacks.

In 1972 the defence department issued a proposed green uniform to certain cadets across Canada to get feedback from the cadets.

"When the area cadet officer visited our petty officers' mess and asked us how we felt about them only one out of 12 was in favor," he said.

"You can be proud of wearing a round rig but when you're all dressed the same, what do you have? In the RCN when a man got his hooks and became a leading seaman he was something. Now, he becomes a corporal — just one of many doing their jobs."

The cadets said naval traditions are also being squeezed out of the cadet training syllabus.

Coldwell said, "We carry out much the same training but now there's nothing taught about the beginning of the RCN, no looking back at tradition. We were also taught the significance of the different parts of our uniform, how they came into being. That's all gone."

The four hope to sign up for a three-year hitch with the RN on arrival in London. If Tellier doesn't get a commission, he said he'll be content to sign on as a seaman with the rest.

Although they're joining the RN in search of the intangibles they feel Canada's navy has lost, all four intend to return to Victoria.

"I want to come back and settle here — it's a good place with good people," Brain said.

He has one other ambition:

"I want to come back as an officer in Rainbow. This is my corps and this is where I'd like to return."

the previous record by 10 degrees.

Other record lows were established at Abbotsford, Port Hardy and Kamloops.

Ontario's coldest spot was Armstrong, 100 miles north of Lake Superior, where residents shivered in 41 below temperatures. It was 29 below in Muskoka and 30 below in the province's far north.

Three Alberta locations set new records — 29 below at Jasper, 30 below at Rocky Mountain House and 27 below at Banff.

Suppliers of oil fuel in Victoria said today that deliveries were normal but road conditions had posed some problems in getting around.

"We're just keeping our fingers crossed that we don't have more snow," one dealer said.

Another said there had been some problems Friday when a barge had been late in arriving from the mainland.

"But we have good supplies now," he added, "and don't anticipate any more trouble."

Doctors, too, have reported being extra busy, coping with residents stricken with a particularly virulent form of flu.

Panama Flats, off Carey Road in Saanich and other flooded areas became a winterland delight for hundreds Sunday, who donned skates and took advantage of the iced surfaces.

A weather office spokesman said today that although sunshine should bring the temperature up to the 30s today the thermometer should stay between 15 and 20 overnight.

There'll be more of the same for at least 48 hours.

"There is a large area of high pressure still around," he said, "and what storms there are coming in will hit well down the California coast."

Boy Injured In Car Mishap

Nine-year-old Duncan Bamforth, 73 Sylvan Lane, was treated Saturday for hip and leg injuries at Royal Jubilee Hospital after being struck by a car in the 1600 block Edgeware.

Police identified the driver of the car as Robert Pearce of 2551 Blackwood.

The mishap was among a rash of weekend auto accidents that did a total of $2,000 in damage.

Gunship Rains Lead

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Time after time throughout the night, the big helicopter hovered over the roof of the hotel, acting as a gunship for police sharpshooters doing battle with snipers holed up on the roof.

Over and over, Lt.-Col. C. H. Pitman turned on the chopper's powerful landing lights, illuminating the roof of the 18-storey Downtown Howard Johnson Hotel, and the police gunners aboard let the lead fly.

It was bad weather for it. Misting rain. Poor visibility. The sky came down to the 30th floor, and tops of taller buildings near the hotel disappeared into the cloud ceiling.

The marine crew of four didn't get into the shooting, restricting their role to providing police with a gun platform.

Thousands of bullets were fired at the target a one-room concrete structure above the hotel's emergency stairwell at one end of the rectangular roof. It was like a fortress bunker.

Until the marine chopper was pressed into emergency service as a makeshift gunship, the snipers were in a nearly-impregnable position.

But three police gunners aboard the chopper concentrated their fire and finally ripped a hole in the windowless wall of the bunker.

Then, on every pass, they aimed their automatic rifles into the hole so that bullets ricocheted inside.

On each pass, the helicopter hovered about two minutes while they emptied clip after clip of 5.56-millimetre bullets — small but of high velocity — mixed with bright red streaks of tracers.

"I just don't see how they can survive those ricochets," said Frank Burns, one of the gunners.

They did it, it developed, by ducking part-way down the stairs when the chopper passed.

At one point Sunday, one of the snipers darted out of the stairway opening in the bunker to get a better shot at the helicopter. The gunners zeroed in on him. He tried to run, zig-zagging across the roof, but was cut down by a fusillade of bullets.

"He darted out and aimed that big rifle, and the guys in the chopper ripped him up," said John E. Fields, a police sharpshooter who was watching with binoculars from atop the nearby City Hall.

Each time the helicopter landed in a parking lot, two crew members went over every inch of it with flashlights. After 20 passes they had found several bullet holes but no serious damage.

Firemen Set To Handle Heart Attacks

Training is completed for seven Saanich firemen in the administration of drugs for heart attack victims and the new emergency service will be available before the end of January.

Mayor Hugh Curtis made the announcement in advance of his annual address to council which takes place tonight.

He called the certification of paramedic ambulance attendants "further refinement of an already superlative service," the only heart-monitoring ambulance service in the country.

Saanich ambulance, operated by the fire department, was fitted with two-way radio-telemetry equipment in 1969 to put paramedics in communication with Royal Jubilee Hospital intensive care ward as heart victims are sped toward medical treatment. Telemetry enables the hospital to monitor heart action.

A defibrillator also is part of the equipment carried, which may be used to restore heartbeats of persons who have suffered cardiac arrest, or restore rhythmic action.

Curtis said the firemen were trained under direction of Dr. George M. Woodwark to inject intramuscular drugs for patients suspected of having mild myocardial infarction and arrythmias. The drugs are used to regulate heartbeats.

Their certificates rate paramedic firemen as having "sound competence" in the duties for which they were trained by Dr. Woodwark.

Curtis said these men are protected by municipal indemnity in the event of civil suit arising from emergency action.

list any day now," the spokesman said.

"Some people become alarmed about price increases of 2 per cent or 5 per cent per year. These are price increases of from 5 per cent to 10 per cent each month. We think the public should be aware of what is going on. We are alarmed and we think they should be too."

He said retailers are selling lumber to contractors and then discovering that the wholesale price has risen above the amount of the retail price.

"The profit margin is very slim as it is and sometimes it is gone completely because of these increases in price."

He said the retailers could do nothing about the increases except prepare the public for more.

Wayne Farmer, president of the British Columbia Construction Association, said the increasing prices were putting great pressures on contractors.

Farmer, general manager of Farmer Construction, said the escalating costs were adding to the already high bankruptcy rate among contracting firms.

"Some jobs are being completed at a loss and contractors are very often left holding the bag," he said.

The small contractor is particularly vulnerable because he must buy lumber on a day basis. Some large contractors are able to negotiate a price that stays firm for 30 days, Farmer said.

He said the only defence for contractors was to inflate bidding prices and hope for the best.

In some cases bids that were thought to be inflated were overtaken by price increases.

SYDNEY HIT BY RECORD RAINFALL

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Sydney was swamped today with 6½ inches of rain in the wettest night anyone can remember.

The deluge started at midnight Sunday night and eased at 7 a.m. Parts of some streets collapsed under the flooding waters. Hundreds of cars stalled and there was a giant traffic tangle this morning.

SNIPERS TERRORIZE CITY

Authorities determined that the new shots were coming from a nearby building, and a police tank-like armored car was sent to the scene.

The helicopter drew no fire on three early-morning passes over the hotel, including the third pass for the tear gas.

As hundreds of spectators rushed to the scene Sunday, streets around the hotel were blockaded as police moved cautiously in an attempt to prevent further slaughter. The hotel is across the street from the city hall and about six blocks from the famed French quarter.

Police contemplated an assault today but later appeared content to play a waiting game and wear down the gunmen with sharpshooting.

"Time is our ally," said Police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso. "They're at our will now. We're going to win."

Motive for the bloodbath remained a puzzle though some reports identified the gunmen as black militants. One hotel employee, a black, was quoted as saying the snipers were firing only at whites.

Some city officials suggested the gunmen were maintaining a pattern of violence against city police that began Dec. 1 when a police cadet was killed near his headquarters. Since then, several other officers have been wounded.

At one point early today, one of the surviving snipers was reported to have crawled to the other end of the hotel roof. Police sharpshooters in surrounding buildings opened fire, but Giarrusso ordered all firing stopped except by marksmen 600 yards away in the federal building.

FIRED ON COMRADES

His order came after police on the 17th floor of the hotel said they were coming under fire, apparently by their own men.

The toll of dead included the three policemen, two hotel guests believed to have died in the fires set by the snipers, a front-desk clerk mowed down when the gunmen burst into the hotel and an unidentified man found in the hotel.

As the drama continued, most of the city's business district was paralysed, with streets blockaded around the hotel. Officials allowed no one through.

Two separate fires in which arson is suspected and which authorities say may be linked with the shootings destroyed two downtown warehouses Jan. 1.

Fever Strikes

BRASILIA (Reuter) — A yellow fever epidemic is sweeping the state of Goias in Brazil and hospitals have reported 38 deaths. Health officials said the victims came mainly from settlements on the Columbia River.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain futures came under heavy selling pressure on the board of trade today.

There appeared to be no outside influence on commodities.

Weather over the weekend in the Midwestern United States was generally cold with some snow flurries.

At one time, some selling in the soybean complex was attributed to easiness of cash meal.

The selling in wheat, corn and oats was generally without much outside influence, although the weather had some effect on corn prices. Commercial support was lacking from the opening bell.

Dividend Payments Higher

TORONTO (CP) — Dividend payments by Canadian companies last year were up 3.3 per cent from 1971 but fell slightly lower than the record total in 1970, says Pitfield, Mackay, Ross and Co. of Toronto.

Despite a decline of $40 million in the mining sector, the 1972 total reached $1.63 billion. This compares with 1.58 billion in 1971 and is $900,000 below the 1970 figure.

Payments for 1972 were more than five times the 1938 pre-war high of $313 million.

Bell Canada continued as Canada's highest dividend payer with a 1972 total of $110 million, up from $104 million the year before. International Nickel Co. of Canada paid $74.5 million or 29 per cent of dividends paid by mining companies, down from $97 million in 1971.

Of last year's total dividends, miscellaneous industrials accounted for $795 million, up from $739 million a year earlier, mines accounted for $254 million, down from $294 million, utilities accounted for $300 million, up from $277 million, and institutions and trusts accounted for $278 million, up from $266 million.

Spill Laws Stiffened

SEATTLE (AP) — The U.S. coast guard has announced new anti-pollution regulations aimed at reducing accidental oil discharges.

The preventive actions are emphasized by the new rules, Rear Admiral Joseph McClelland, 13th district commander, says. Tank vessels, barges and certain terminal facilities which conduct bulk oil transfers are affected.

One rule will require operating personnel to demonstrate knowledge of procedures for stopping pollution.

Most of the new regulations take effect July 1, 1974.

GARBAGEMEN AIM FOR PEAK

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Student garbagemen will clean up refuse left by climbers on Alaska's Mt. McKinley, North America's highest mountain.

Students in the Denali Arctic Environmental Project at Idaho State University will concentrate on carrying off litter left by climbing expeditions on the west buttress and Muldrow routes of the 20,320-foot mountain.

TSE Prices Mixed In Active Trading

Prices on the Toronto market were mixed to lower in active trading today.

Bank, oil refining, trust and loan and beverage stocks were among sectors of the market recording losses while chemical, merchandising, pipeline and real estate issues were higher.

Advances remained well ahead of declines, 285 to 193, while 251 issues remained unchanged.

Western Supplies A rose 1¾ to $24, Holiday Inns 1¼ to $14¼, Doman Industries 1 to $15⅞, Falconbridge Nickel 1 to $72¼ and Woodward A ⅞ to $31¾.

Columbia Cellulose dropped 10 cents to $1.15, Imperial Oil ½ to $46⅝, A.G.F. Management ¼ to $6, Agra Industries ⅛ to $13⅞ and Auto Electric ⅛ to $10.

Placer climbed ¾ to $46¼ and Cassiar ⅝ to $14. Dome Mines slipped ¾ to $68⅜ and McIntyre ½ to $48.

New York

New York stopped to catch its breath after the sweeping advances of the last few sessions. Trading was fairly active. Most price changes were fractional.

Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. was down ⅜ to $15⅝. Last week the company reported a larger loss than a year ago in its fiscal quarter ended Nov. 25, and said it ENDED Nov. 25, and said it would omit the fourth quarter dividend.

Holiday Inns was 1⅛ lower at $39⅝, after the publication of an unfavorable report from an analyst.

Montreal

All sectors declined in moderate trading at Montreal today.

Banister Corp. rose 5⅝ to $32⅞, Simpsons Sears 3 to $48 and Falcon Nickel 1¼ to $72¼ while Hudson Bay Oil dropped

London

The London market drifted lower in quiet trading today as investors stayed on the sidelines pending the outcome of economic talks between the British government and union and business leaders.

The Financial Times index dropped 3.5 to 504.6 near the end of the session.

Many leading stocks dropped between two and six pence. Among exceptions were Unilever and P and O.

Thomson Organisation advanced 15 pence, reflecting its heavy selling pressure on the troleum consortium.

Special Hearing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver lawyer Douglas Jolliff has been summoned to appear before a special hearing of the Law Society of British Columbia Jan. 30 to answer charges that he conducted himself in a disrespectful manner towards the court and provincial judge Les Bewley. Jolliff was banned by Judge Bewley from appearing before him after Jolliff criticized the judge for failing to appear in court to sentence a client last May.

Bapco to Cut Paint Production

There will be some reduction in paint production as a result of consolidation of manufacturing processes in Surrey, says Bapco president Robert Law.

But the start-up capacity had not yet been determined.

Earlier, union sources predicted that Bapco would cut back from its annual production of 2 million gallons per year to 500,000 gallons per year.

Law said there would be some reduction but probably not as severe as union sources were predicting.

Bapco has announced it will phase out its operations at Laurel Point in Victoria and move to a seven-acre site at Newton in Surrey. The move is expected to be completed by year's end.

Law said preliminary production figures would be misleading in any case because Bapco planned to expand production rapidly, going into new lines.

He said the move to more efficient premises was necessary because the Bapco line was under cost pressures. It was unable to raise prices much for competitive reasons and yet cost of production was escalating.

Some of the cost pressures would be reduced with the new production equipment and the mainland location. Transportation costs were proving to be a major expense, he said.

Law said the marketing flow of paints would change when the move takes place.

At present Bapco, owned by Canadian Industries Ltd., sells paint across western Canada.

Bapco will continue to sell to some customers on the Prairies but CIL paints in Ontario will take over some Bapco customers in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Law said it was not simply a declaration of zones on a provincial basis, although Bapco would sell mainly in B.C., Alberta and Saskatchewan.

"Unfortunately, the paint business can not be divided along provincial lines," he said. "It is not that easy."

He said Bapco has not been excluded from any areas but was discussing servicing of eastern customers with CIL to see if the present system could be made more efficient.

Copper Next For Japanese

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

A new round of investment in British Columbia copper production is expected from Japan this year as supplies become scarce and prices rise.

Japan has already invested heavily in coal and investment in copper is expected to be the next development.

There is already some Japanese investment in production of copper concentrates. Lornex Mining in Highland Valley is being financed in part by a consortium of nine Japanese companies to assure the consortium can purchase the entire copper production for 12 years.

The additional financing was forced upon Lornex when it discovered its costs for starting its mine-mill venture would be $143 million, not its original estimate of $124 million.

Production of copper concentrates at Lornex began in October.

However, because the new provincial government will attempt to discourage export of copper concentrates this year, there will be tremendous pressures to construct copper smelters to produce refined copper or copper wire.

Smelters involve expenditures in the order of $50 million each and Japan is known to be interested in supplying much of this capital in exchange for a guaranteed source of copper.

The trend toward rising copper prices also will encourage Japanese investors to invest in British Columbia production.

British Columbia had advantages in the race for copper smelters not shared by some other major copper producing countries.

For example, Chile and Zambia are hampered by political instability and production difficulties. They are encountering machinery breakdowns and a shortage of parts.

The United States continues to be the major copper producer but is encountering severe pollution problems. Costs of altering existing smelters to halt air pollution would be so high as to be prohibitive.

The U.S. is faced with phasing out some of its old smelters and building new ones to replace them.

So, for the first time British Columbia is starting even with the big copper producers in the southwest U.S., for smelter costs are comparable in both countries.

The only difference is the U.S. firms have access to more borrowing power, a factor which may be offset by the eager Japanese.

Premier Barrett has said he would welcome Japanese investment in British Columbia, but on his terms.

Talks between the premier and Japanese copper purchasers are expected early this year.

Three Snipers Terrorize New Orleans: 7 Dead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Police in full guerrilla warfare gear stormed onto the roof of a downtown hotel today which had been occupied by two black snipers who had killed six persons and wounded 15 others during a night and day of bloody fighting.

There was no sign of the two men.

One sniper was slain early by police stationed in a helicopter gunship circling the roof of the hotel. After he fell, police continued to riddle his body with machine-gun fire for a further five minutes.

Two officers were wounded at the start of the rush. One was dragged away by fellow officers and the other hobbled off with a leg wound. Police said they did not know if the officers were wounded by fire from the snipers or from ricocheting police bullets.

The dramatic storming of the rooftop fortress was broadcast live on nationwide television.

Reaching the roof, the officers hacked away with an axe at the door of one of the bunkers and poured gunfire inside.

The body of one dead sniper — torn apart by police gunfire Sunday night — lay sprawled face up nearby.

Before the police rush, helicopters and police marksmen fired bullets, armor-piercing shells and tear gas at the two snipers atop the 18-floor Howard Johnson Hotel. Seven persons had been killed before police stormed the roof.

The battle began after three men, identified by police as blacks, stormed into the downtown Howard Johnson Hotel Sunday morning. They began setting fires to curtains in the hotel rooms, officers said, and then aimed a stream of bullets on firemen and police who appeared on the scene.

Louisiana's Attorney-General William Guste has called for a federal investigation to determine whether the killings were part of a national terrorist conspiracy.

"I am now convinced that there is an underground, national, suicidal group bent on creating terror in America," Guste said after asking the U.S. attorney-general for an investigation.

It was quiet from dawn until nearly noon today, but then sniper fire rang out again.

The gunshots came a few minutes after a helicopter, with police sharpshooters at the ready, hovered a few feet over the roof and blasted high-velocity tear gas at a stairwell.

Minutes later, police reported gunfire on a patrolman stationed at an intersection several blocks from the hotel,

Israeli, Syrian Tanks Battle

Times News Services

Israel and Syria fought aerial, artillery and tank battles along their border today.

The Israeli military command said in Tel Aviv that its pilots shot down five enemy MiG-21s and raided targets deep inside Syrian territory. An official communique said six Syrian tanks were also destroyed in the ground fighting.

In Cairo, a usually well-informed Egyptian official said President Anwar Sadat has instructed his war minister, Gen. Ahmed Ismail, to plan an Egyptian military response to Israeli air and artillery attacks against Syria.

The renewal of military action being contemplated at the highest level of the Egyptian government would be limited in nature, the source indicated. It could involve Egyptian air strikes at Israeli targets, he suggested.

Syria today urged other Arab countries to "immediately go into battle with Israel and not let Syria stand alone to take the enemy's heavy blows."

In a message that seemed aimed at Syria's federation partners, Libya and Egypt, the broadcast said: "Only the combined efforts of Arab countries can bring an end to Israeli arrogance."

Israel listed its own casualties as one soldier wounded and denied any of its planes or tanks were lost.

In Damascus, a Syrian military spokesman said that three Israeli planes were shot down in the fighting and raids and conceded the loss of three Syrian planes.

Interrupting its regular programs at 4:45 p.m. Damacus Radio quoted the spokesman as saying:

"The fighting between our forces and the Israelis is still going on with artillery and tanks, along the entire length of the front."

As the two sides blazed away at each other on the ground, the Israeli command said, Israeli planes raided an army camp near Latakia on the northern Syrian coast and hit a radar station on the outskirts of Damascus.

Upset Bid By Tories

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield is expected to make his first attempt to topple the minority Liberal government as he speaks today in the eight-day debate on the speech from the throne.

Stanfield, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, New Democrat Leader David Lewis, and Social Credit Leader Real Caouette are all scheduled to speak today.

Stanfield, speaking first, will move a motion of non-confidence in the government, a move already doomed by the NDP decision of last week to support the government for the time being.

But, while the 107 Conservatives know they cannot defeat the 109-member Liberal government by themselves, they may hope to come up with a motion that will make the NDP squirm if it declines to support the motion.

ICY WEATHER DIPS AS DEEP AS TEXAS

The whole of Canada and much of the United States, as far south as Texas, is clamped in deep-freeze temperatures with no respite expected for at least 48 hours.

Shortages of natural gas, propane and heating oil in six midwestern states has forced closure of factories, schools, churches and civic buildings.

The Nixon administration today authorized increased imports of heating oil to help meet the emergency. The office of emergency preparedness has increased quotas from the Virgin Islands by 250 million gallons for the January-April period.

Hardest hit are Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Indiana, Colorado and Ohio.

Governor Arthur Link of North Dakota today met with legislative leaders and state officials to draft legislation which will order public facilities, including schools, to cut back on use of heating fuel.

Link said it may be necessary to close facilities on a priority basis.

Billions of bushels of crops may be spoiled in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio. The weather in these states turned from rain in October and November directly to snow and bitter cold in December.

Low temperature records were shattered across Canada on the weekend.

Several records toppled in British Columbia, even two in Victoria, which fared better than most parts of the country.

A 30-year-old record fell Saturday in Victoria when the temperature dipped to 15 degrees, beating out a 21 degree record for Jan. 6, set in 1942.

Sunday it was the same story. The temperature dropped to 15. The coldest temperature for Jan. 7 before Sunday was 26 degrees in 1964.

Oldest record to fall in B.C. Sunday was in Revelstoke, where a reading of 19 below zero broke by two degrees a record set 36 years ago.

Coldest spot in B.C. was Puntzi Mountain where the temperature crashed to 38 below.

Nanaimo reported a low of nine degrees, 16 degrees below the previous record. Vancouver bottomed out at 14 degrees, compared to a previous low of 17 in 1937.

At Prince George it was a chilly 27 below zero, beating

No Dock Talks Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for both sides in the British Columbia dock dispute said Sunday no new talks have been scheduled following a breaking off of negotiations Friday night.

However, spokesmen for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Unions and the B.C. Maritime Employers Association indicated there is no immediate danger of a shutdown of B.C. ports.

BCMEA President Ed Strang said his group will probably want to meet to discuss the situation, but said no arrangements have been made for further negotiations with the union. He said the employers are not considering any form of lockout action.

Mills Holding Back Supplies

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Lumber prices in B.C., which have risen between 30 per cent and 70 per cent in the past year, are expected to rise again this month, according to retailers.

A spokesman for the Vancouver Island Building Suppliers Association said his organization is planning a publicity drive to make the public aware of these increasing costs which, he said, are the results of price increases by mills.

He said retailers are reluctant to discuss the increases as individuals because of the great difficulty already being experienced in getting lumber at any prices from mills.

"We don't want to annoy our suppliers," he said. "At the present time we are unable to get any more lumber from them. We believe they are planning to increase prices again before supplying any lumber except for lines where they have a big surplus."

He gave these examples of price increases in the past year in Victoria.

The most popular construction item, he said, is 2 by 4 hemlock mill-run studs. These have increased 45 per cent in the past 12 months.

Second most popular construction item is 1 by 8 mill run hemlock shiplap. This is up 77 per cent in the past year.

Third popular item for contractors is 2 by 4 fir number 1 and 2 grades for rafters. These are up 30 per cent.

Most popular retail item for homeowners is the six-foot special 2 by 4 or 1 by 3. These are up between 50 per cent and 70 per cent, depending on dimensions.

Plywood prices are expected to go up 12 per cent.

Over-all, there have been 13 occasions in the past 12 months when mills have instituted across-the-board price increases.

"There was no increase in December and because of past experience we are certain there will be a new price
